ASK CHAIR IN DAICHES CASE

ROOSEVELT'S BIG WORK PROGRAM IS DEAD ISSUE

Senate Returns Bill to Committee.

Votes Larger Army

The house approves 378 million dollars for army, the largest peace time military program in history of country. Only a half dozen feeble noes were recorded against the measure. Details on page 3.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's ambitious work relief program which called for an appropriation of 4 billion 880 million dollars, the largest in history, is dead for this session of the 74th congress.

That was the unequivocal statement of Senator James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.], the President's spokesman on the appropriations committee, this afternoon after the senate had voted to recommit the work relief bill for the drafting of a new measure.

"The senate will not have a work relief bill without the McCarran amendment and the President will not have one with it, so it is apparent that work relief is dead for the session," said Senator Byrnes.

Recommit Without Record Vote.

The motion to send the bill back to committee was made by Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson and carried without a record vote after administration leaders had tried in vain to muster strength for a vote to reconsider yesterday's action in adopting, 44 to 43, the McCarran prevailing wage amendment. Senators Robinson and Byrnes were unable to find a single Democrat who would change his vote from "aye" to "nay," the prerequisite of a motion to reconsider.

Moreover, it transpired that at least four and possibly five Democrats who voted with the administration yesterday would vote for the amendment in the event of a reconsideration. Thus, hopelessly blocked, Senator Robinson made his motion to recommit the bill, which apparently spelled the doom of a works program.

The appropriations committee will begin hearings to evolve a new bill tomorrow, and indications were that an appropriation of 1 billion 880 million dollars, or enough to carry on the present system of relief for one year, would be reported out.

Favored by Republicans.

This is the amount favored by the Republicans, excepting the radicals of the Nye-La Follette bloc and a good many conservative Democrats, notably Senators Harry Flood Byrd and Carter Glass of Virginia and Alva B. Adams of Colorado.

The full import of President Roosevelt's defeat in the senate, the second for the session, became evident today in the failure of efforts to effect a reconsideration, and it was a heavier rebuff than the vote of 44 to 43 would indicate. Some of the newer senators who voted against the McCarran amendment against their wishes, choosing to antagonize organized labor rather than the White House, today said it was time "for the President to take it on the chin and stop making us."

This attitude accounted for the fact that four or five more votes would have been recorded for the amendment on reconsideration.

Blame Lack of Candor.

The senators, who declined to have their names used, ascribed the President's defeat in part to a lack of candor in refusing to divulge the purposes of the gigantic appropriation and refusing also to have any restrictions placed upon his powers. The President, moreover, was represented as making a tactical error in failing to recognize Senator Glass, the appropriations chairman, until it became apparent that the bill was in grave danger.

A source of much criticism of the administration's tactics was the revelation made by Senator Byrnes today that funds totaling 176 million dollars still are available in unexpended balances for immediate relief requirements. This is in addition to the $95,000,000 already transferred from the Public Works administration to Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

When the works bill first went to the senate appropriations committee about a month ago Hopkins delivered ultimatums to the effect that all funds would be exhausted by Feb. 10 and that persons on the relief rolls would face starvation unless the 4 billion 880 million dollar bill, with 880 million for immediate direct relief, were enacted into law.

Senator Adams, a member of the appropriations committee, will offer a

Denies TVA Right to Sell Power

U. S. JUDGE BARS PWA LOANS FOR ALABAMA TOWNS

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Tennessee Valley authority was held to be without legal right to sell surplus power produced at dams on the Tennessee river by Judge W. I. Grubb in United States District court here today, preliminary to issuing an injunction halting the TVA electrification program.

In the same opinion Judge Grubb made permanent an injunction restraining fourteen north Alabama cities and towns from borrowing funds from the PWA to construct municipal distribution systems to use TVA power.

Judge Grubb pointed out that he was not passing on the constitutionality of the act creating the TVA since "that is a matter of debate."

No Rights Within State.

"Under the tenth amendment, or regardless of it," Judge Grubb ruled, "the United States has no right within the limits of a state to conduct any proprietary business, unless tied to some constitutional grant of power, and, if the grant of power existed, it carries the right to do business."

Judge Grubb held that, attached to a constitutional power such as navigation, national defense or flood control, a surplus of energy developed could be sold. On the other hand, he held, it appeared from the evidence that the Tennessee Valley authority intended to produce power not as a surplus but to get into the utility business.

The court held that the TVA would have authority to sell any surplus created "in the use of some of its granted constitutional powers," and added, "Recognizing the impossibility of making the exact amount of electricity go over the needs, it has the implied right of the government to sell any power created over and above that, provided that surplus is legitimately created."

Files Appeal Notice.

James L. Fly, chief of counsel for TVA, immediately gave notice of an appeal, which probably will be filed at an early date with the United States Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

A group of preferred share holders of the Alabama Power company brought the suit in which the ruling was made, alleging that plans for an extensive electrification program in northwest Alabama were unconstitutional.

The suit was filed after the Alabama Power company had entered a contract to sell to the TVA 14 distribution systems, transmission lines, and the site of the Joe Wheeler dam for approximately $2,200,000.

Judge Grubb in his decision said he had informed counsel he would consider the validity of this contract, which was not exercised, "but throws light on their intentions."

Refers to Evidence.

"They offer evidence tending to show it was connected with navigation or with national defense and other activities. There is no doubt that if the doing of this business of selling retail and wholesale power electricity is attached to any one of these powers it is legal.

"But if it could not be attributed to one of those powers, then the TVA would be in a position of doing utility business in the state of Alabama, and it would be ultra vires and illegal."

Concerning the injunction against loans from PWA, Judge Grubb said: "With reference to the restraining order I held that PWA ordinarily had the right to lend money. However, it is clear that PWA and TVA, both branches of the government, had an understanding that the PWA lend the money to provide a market for TVA's power.

"If the business is illegal, then through its knowledge of the fact PWA has no right to lend the money, and the injunction ought to be made permanent."

Defense Presents Case.

In concluding arguments today Fly, counsel for the TVA, told Judge Grubb that the only specific question before the court was whether the TVA had the legal right to "purchase a little transmission line which will take wasting power of Muscle Shoals to the market that reaches for it."

Fly opened his argument with the statement that the court, in deciding

Planes Must Keep Clear of White House

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Because President Roosevelt's slumber has been ruffled by the drone of their motors, all airplanes will be ordered by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper to stay away from the White House grounds at night.

Two prankish airplanes, playing an uproarious game of tag back and forth over the White House and up and down historic Pennsylvania avenue at 3 a. m. one night this week, are the immediate cause of the Presidential ire, the bureau of air commerce revealed.

"Shake White House."

These two mysteriously frolicking planes, according to the complaint of Stephen Early, one of President Roosevelt's secretaries, actually "shook the White House" with the throb of their motors, awakening all of the occupants, including Mr. Roosevelt.

Another presidential plaint, Mr. Early pointed out, is that regular passenger planes roaring into Washington at night have developed the clubby habit of zooming low over the White House in democratic fashion to give their passengers a bird's eye view of the executive mansion, where, presumably, the President of the United States lies slumbering.

Request Fails of Purpose.

President Roosevelt, who admits recalling without pleasure the sound of German Zeppelin motors over London during the war, politely asked the air transport lines a year ago to stay away from the White House. Mr. Early explained.

Secretary Roper, according to Mr. Early, will issue an order through the bureau of air commerce commanding planes to give the White House a wide berth. Air commerce officials said they had received no such instructions yet and believed that the disturbance could be eliminated by enforcing the rule against low flying over cities.

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Pedro Candioti, Argentine swimmer, who is attempting to make a nonstop swim down the Parana and Plata rivers from Santa Fe to Buenos Aires—a distance of about 260 miles—was about a hundred miles on his way today after two days in the water. Candioti started from Santa Fe at noon Wednesday and this morning passed Rosario, about 100 miles downstream. He hopes to reach Buenos Aires Monday morning.

MAN WHO FOUND $42,000, GAVE IT UP; GOES INSANE

New York, Feb. 23 [Saturday].—[Special.]—Frank Greges, 67 year old sandwich man who recently found negotiable securities worth $42,000 in a Wall street gutter and turned them over to police, early today went insane at his Bowery hotel. By coincidence a man fell dead when Greges shouted, "I am God. I can kill any one who looks at me."

Greges shouted his threat while a doctor and police were trying to calm him in the hotel reading room. At that moment a man identified as Robert E. Edwards of Ware, Mass., and Los Angeles, Cal., walked into the room.

Greges shouted his boast again and glared at Edwards, who fell without a word and was dead when the doctor attending Greges rushed to his side.

For his honesty in returning the lost securities Greges was pensioned off at $20 a week for the winter, plus a $75 cash award, and a banker presented him $25. Later, Belden & Co., owners of the securities, gave him a job in their office at $70 a month.

A Philosopher of Pants; He's Not Ashamed!

For forty years Kenneth McCallum, who is now 72 and silvery of hair, has been developing a philosophy of life. It is eminently simple.

"I go along until I get hungry," he said yesterday, "and then I steal a pair of pants."

He was sitting in the detective bureau, where he had been taken after store detectives seized him as he was leavings Sears, Roebuck & Co. with two pairs of his favorite loot, valued at $9.96, plus sales tax. His record had been looked up, and it showed that he had been arrested in New York, Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, and Chicago almost an infinite number of times, and always for purloining pants.

Ashamed? Not He.

"There is nothing to apologize for in my career," he asserted. "I invented it, and it gives me a living. I never stole anything but pants in my life. Coats and vests? Phooey! There's no market for them. But pants! Ah, my boy, half the world needs and must have them. You can sell 'em anywhere. If I had a thousand pairs I could walk into offices in the loop and get rid of them in a few days."

"But doesn't your conscience hurt you?" he was asked.

"No," said the pioneer pants stealer, "I can't say that it does. My operations help clothe people who wouldn't be able to pay the regular prices.

A Noble Calling, Indeed.

"Putting pants on the public seems to me to be a worthy calling. If I go to the Bridewell I work in the kitchen and get plenty to eat. And I stay off the relief."

"After this, though, you'll probably reform," his questioner suggested.

Kenneth McCallum shook his gray head.

"No," he replied, "I guess not. We all have to eat, and you know the saying about an old dog and new tricks. When I get out again I'll go back east and steal some pants."

It Starts Like Pneumonia and Ends Like Whatsis

New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The puzzlers have a word for it and it is—take a deep breath—pneumonoultramicroscopicsilicovolcanokoniosis.

That forty-five letter word has replaced electrophotomicrographically, a mere upstart of twenty-eight letters, as the longest word in the English language recognized by the National Puzzlers' league. It's the name of a special form of silicosis caused by ultramicroscopic particles of siliceous volcanic dust.

Spain Accused of Torturing Rebels in Jail

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Feb. 22.—Behind the veil of the censorship the campaign concerning the torture and ill-treatment of many of the 30,000 prisoners held since the Red revolt of October is gaining weight.

Clandestine sheets have been answered by a small government pamphlet in which the official record of the revolt is given with details of the 4,000 killed and wounded, the 1,000 buildings wholly or partly damaged, and the seizure of 350,000 weapons.

The latest of the documents alleging brutal treatment of prisoners is that presented by Premier Alejandro Lerroux by the Socialist deputy, Julio Alvarez del Vayo, former ambassador to Mexico and recently president of the league of nations commission investigating the Chaco war. Signed by 564 prisoners in Oviedo's so-called "model" prison, this document specifies 70 cases of torture or mistreatment.

Prisoners Use Slang Terms.

The prisoners have slang terms for the various tortures alleged to be applied in order to obtain confessions. The "three-motor airplane" refers to the slinging up of prisoners tied by their wrists by means of a pulley. The "tube of laughter" consists of running between a double file of police, who beat the victim with clubs or the butts of their rifles. The "Maria bath" consists of long immersion in cold water.

Here are some of the charges the prisoners make:

Juan Pablo Garcia, a lawyer of Mieres, was forced to pass through the "tube of laughter." Afterward he was beaten for two hours by a detective, a civil guard, and an infantry sergeant. When he fainted he was revived and the beating resumed.

Fernando Muniz de la Fox of Morcin was beaten with rifle butts. After several days of this treatment he became insane and is now in an asylum. Conrado Garcia of Los Barrados-Laviana was beaten, kept without food or water, and made to remain in a standing position for three days. He leaped 36 feet from his prison gallery in at attempt to commit suicide. He is reported to be in a grave condition.

Shot by Policeman.

Cesar Caso Prendes of Sograndio was detained in cellars under the barracks of the Guardias de Asalto. He was taken from his cell and beaten several nights, losing his teeth and the sight of an eye. On the night of Nov. 1 a policeman shot and killed him.

Ramon Arias Menendes of Trubia had been badly beaten by the police. He was ill in a cell for ten days. Permission to take him to the infirmary was refused. The doctor visited him once. He died Nov. 5.

Manuel Rodriguez, Manuel Perez, Ramon Garcia, and Amador Menendez, all of Llanera, were brought to Oviedo's prison on Oct. 14. A few hours later several shots were heard. The four were reported dead.

Juan Bahillo of Sotrondio, 54 years old, had two ribs fractured by guards who beat him with their rifles.

Sends Account to President.

Felix Gordon Ordas, former minister, who takes the lead in the campaign to halt the alleged torturing of prisoners, has sent an 18,000 word account of the "inquisitorial" tortures to President Alcala Zamora.

The document is an answer to Premier Lerroux's assertion that the excesses of repression were "pure fantasy."

Gordon Ordas describes as "elephantine stupidity" the attempts to "hush up" the Asturias repression scandal. He sees vital danger for Spain ahead. If the workers find out what has happened in this repression, he predicts dire events.

He asks the immediate punishment of the guilty police, civil guard, and other officers. The Lerroux cabinet has heeded the denunciations by sending a magistrate to Asturias to make investigations.

MURDER PLOT DENIED ON STAND BY WEITZMAN

Slaying Trial to Go to Jury Today.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

A verdict of death in the electric chair was demanded in Judge Harry B. Miller's Criminal court yesterday from the jury which today will determine the fate of Irving Weitzman, owner of a chain of south side bakeries. Weitzman is on trial charged with inspiring the murder last March 3 of Eli Daiches, wealthy advertising executive.

Assistant State's Attorney John P. Boyle made the prosecution's demand for the death penalty in the first of the state's closing arguments.

Prosecutor Boyle started the summation for the prosecution after Weitzman had spent several hours on the witness stand attempting to convince the jury that he did not plot the murder of Daiches, who was shot to death in his automobile at 53d street and the outer drive.

Jury to Get Case After Noon.

The case is expected to be given into the hands of the jury soon after noon today. This morning's session of court will be taken up with final arguments by Defense Attorney James M. Burke and Assistant State's Attorney Emmett Moynihan. Defense Attorney Harold Levy spoke in behalf of Weitzman yesterday after Boyle had finished his address.

"You gentlemen have listened to the revelation of a crime that might have appeared as a fantastic detective story if you read it in book form," said Mr. Boyle to the jurors. "It is hardly conceivable that such a cold blooded, premeditated crime could be committed in this day and age. You have heard the witnesses tell you the story of why Eli Daiches was slain by professional killers so that the $317,000 insurance on his life could be collected.

"There is only one answer, one verdict, for a crime of this character. It was not a murder committed in passion, for love, or because of a diseased mind. It was a cold blooded, premeditated murder committed by a business man as a business proposition. This defendant needed money, and his brother needed money.

Calls Death Only Fitting Penalty.

"It is the old story of 'thirty drops of blood for thirty pieces of silver.' It is an unpleasant duty you gentlemen have to perform, but if ever a case deserved the electric chair it is this one. You have before you a case where hired killers were employed to blow a fellow human to pieces for gold. Only death in the electric chair is fitting for such a crime.

"This defendant hated Daiches. He will be haunted by his memory until the day he dies. And, gentlemen, let us hope that will be soon."

The climax of Prosecutor Boyle's speech failed to shake the calm of the small defendant. He snickered at something said by his lawyer as Judge Miller called a recess after the prosecutor concluded his speech.

Upholds Veracity of Witness.

In his summary of the prosecution evidence Mr. Doyle repeatedly asked the jury how it was possible for Walter McManamon, alias Walter Murphy, accomplice who became the state's star witness, to know the details of the crime and of the business of Irving Weitzman and his brother, Louis, unless he testified truthfully. Louis Weitzman was chairman of the board of the Thomas M. Bowers Advertising agency, which was beneficiary of Daiches' $317,000 insurance policies. Daiches was nominal president of the company.

Murphy told the jury that he and Jack London, fugitive gambling house guard, were employed by Weitzman to murder Daiches so the defendant's brother, Louis, could collect the insurance. They were employed, Murphy said, after Arthur Emblen, Gary hoodlum named in the Daiches murder conspiracy indictment, who at the last minute refused to become a state witness, had failed to carry out the alleged murder mission.

Defense Attorney Levy spent his time in summing up the evidence and pointing out what he argued were the improbabilities of the story told by Murphy as a state witness. He charged that Murphy concocted the story of the murder plot implicating Weitzman in order to save himself from the electric chair.

Weitzman's Calm Surprises Counsel.

Weitzman, a small, thin man, just five feet tall and weighing not much more than 100 pounds, surprised even his lawyers, they admitted, by his calm demeanor while on the witness stand in his own defense. They frankly admitted that they had been apprehensive about his ability to withstand the strain of cross-examination.

The defendant walked steadily and quickly to the witness stand when his name was called by his attorney. He seemed almost like a child as he peered over the rail of the witness box to tell in a tone seldom rising above conversational pitch his side of the story and to deny the murder plot story told by Murphy.

Occasionally he tilted his head and rolled his eyes toward the ceiling as he paused for a moment to consider his answers to some of the interrogations. Now and then he glanced at his wife, at his married daughter, Dorothy, and at his 12 year old son, Eugene, who sat in one of the front benches on the opposite side of the courtroom.

He was emphatic in denying, sentence by sentence, the testimony of Murphy.

WEITZMAN'S STORY

Weitzman's story as told under direct examination by Attorney Levy was as follows:

Q.—What is your name? A.—Irving Weitzman.

Q.—Where do you live? A.—At 5000 Cornell avenue, with my wife and son.

Q.—What education did you have? A.—I graduated from grammar school and spent two years in high school.

At this point the witness told of the beginning of his career as an actor. While going to high school, he said, he performed as one of a team of boy singers with Harley Conlon. They worked for Flo Adler. He spent twelve years, he said, in appearances at movie houses in the United States and Canada.

Married at 16, Becomes Baker.

Q.—When were you married? A.—I was married when 16 years old.

Q.—When did you go into the bakery business? A.—I left the stage in 1920 to go into the bakery supply business with my two brothers. Later we started the Chicago Cream Fried Cake company and then changed the name to the Dottie Lee bakeries.

Weitzman told the jury with a flourish that he considers his bakery plant worth $200,000 even today.

Attorney Levy suddenly brought his client around to telling of his relations with London.

Q.—When did you first meet Jack London? A.—In November, 1932, in a handbook at 47th street and Drexel boulevard. I went there to make a bet. I went into the place once or twice a week.

Q.—Did you have any business dealings with him? A.—I don't know if you would call them business dealings. He delivered beer to my house.

Brings Murphy Into Story.

Again the attorney showed that the defendant did not intend to deny acquaintanceship with any of the alleged hoodlum trio when he bluntly asked Weitzman when and where he first met Murphy.

"I first met Murphy in August, 1933, in my own home," the witness said.

Q.—What was the occasion? A.—He came with London, who first called me on the telephone and asked if he could come over to my house and talk over something. I told him he could.

Q.—What happened? A.—Well, he came with another man and said as he entered: "Walter, I want you to meet Mr. Weitzman." That was the man I now know as Walter Murphy.

Q.—What was the conversation if any? A.—London said he had a proposition he wanted to talk over. He said there was a bowling alley known as The Vista at 47th street and the Grove [Cottage Grove avenue]. He said he could open it as a gambling house and make it very profitable with his acquaintanceship in the neighborhood.

Turns Down Gambling Offer.

Q.—Did he ask you to participate? A.—He wanted me to back him to the extent of $5,000. I told him I was not interested in it.

It was during this period, Weitzman said, that London volunteered to help him out of some labor troubles on Aug. 20, 1933.

Q.—Tell us about London coming to your bakery. A.—When I met him he again asked me to go into the gambling venture. I told him I had troubles of my own at the bakery. He asked what troubles, and I told him some labor troubles. He said he would bring down some of the boys and take care of it.

London, Murphy and two more of the "boys" appeared the next day, Weitzman testified, and he gave them $40 for their trouble. The witness said he did make a trip to Florida in January, 1934, but denied that he saw either London or Murphy there. He did not see Murphy again, he said, until July, 1934, when he met him accidentally in Union Pier, Mich., where, he said, London had opened a gambling house.

Excitedly Tells of Murder Quiz.

Weitzman became a bit excited as he told of being "dragged out of bed" by a police squad on the morning after Daiches was murdered. He talked rapidly as he told of how he was questioned at the Hyde Park station.

Q.—Tell us what happened on March 4, 1934. A.—I was dragged out of bed by Sergt. Keeley and his squad and taken to the Hyde Park station. They asked me if I was in the advertising business with Daiches. I told them I was not, but my brother was. They asked me if I sold Daiches my automobile, and I said I did, for $375. They asked me if I knew Daiches was keeping a married woman and I said "no." They asked me if I knew of his queer actions and I said "no." They asked me if I knew he drank heavily and I said "yes."

Weitzman seemed to remember every question and answer in the course of the police quiz, including the fact that he was asked if he knew that Daiches had spent the night before the murder at a night club and came home intoxicated. He was also asked, he said, if he knew Daiches owed a $40,000 gambling debt. He said he knew nothing of it.

Q.—Did you ever meet London and Murphy in 1933 and say to either or both of them that you wanted a man killed and would pay $25,000 for the job? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you ever tell either Murphy or London that your brother had Daiches insured for $250,000 and that you wanted them to go to Florida and kill Daiches to take the heat off the Chicago connections? A.—No, sir.

Attorney Levy went over, question by question, the previous testimony of Murphy, and Weitzman made categorical denial that he had ever hatched such a plot as Murphy reported. Only once or twice did he vary from the "no, sir" answer.

"I never spoke more than 100 words to Murphy in my life," Weitzman replied at one point in the questioning.

Q.—Did you at any time ask any one to kill Eli Daiches? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you have any knowledge of the insurance that the Bowers agency had on Daiches' life? A.—No, sir.

He ended his direct examination by telling of his financial condition, which he said was always good. He said it was nothing unusual for him to loan money to his brother, Louis.

BANK AID TELLS HOW HE STOOGED FOR DAVE BARRY

His Night Job: Luring Customers at Fair.

Adventures of an attorney, a prize fighter, a barber, and two bank clerks in the operation of a side show at A Century of Progress and in the acquisition of a life insurance company were described yesterday by witnesses before an amused, and at times bewildered, jury in the Criminal court of Judge Michael Feinberg.

The attorney, Abraham Karatz, and the one time prize fighter, Dave [Long Count] Barry, referee of the Tunney-Dempsey Chicago fight, are on trial, charged with the theft of $55,000 from the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank. Joseph Balata, the former barber and an ex-convict, has pleaded guilty. Otto Van Derck, 24 year old bank clerk, was a state witness, testifying that he covered overdrafts totaling $55,000 on Barry's accounts.

Bookkeeper Chief Witness.

Arthur Fortier, head bookkeeper of the Amalgamated bank, was the chief witness yesterday, substantiating Van Derck's story and identifying records showing that $20,180 had been paid from the funds of the bank without being properly deducted from Barry's account.

Fortier, $65 a month clerk in charge of clearing house records of the bank, told of his friendship with Balata and Karatz—a friendship that blossomed over free beer and sandwiches at Barry's loop tavern and bloomed at Barry's "Garden of Champions" concession at the Fair.

"Karatz gave me a job at the Fair," Fortier said. "I worked days and nights during my vacation for $5 a day and nights afterward for $3. At first I worked around the place, but most of the time I was a 'shill.' I stood around while the barker was talking and then pretended to buy a ticket.

"Karatz was around all the time. Mostly he stood out in front with the barker and pulled the bell that attracted people. Dave was inside refereeing the bouts."

Barry, following the calling that has been his since he retired from the ring, was president of the Dave Barry Enterprises, Inc., and Dave Barry, Inc. Balata, third member of the firm, was managing Barry's tavern where Van Derck, "silent partner" and income producing member of the firm, was entertained.

But in September of 1934 the plans of the group grew more ambitious. Fortier testified. Purchase of the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company of Springfield, Ill., with the funds obtained through Van Derck's peculations was contemplated.

Promised $5,000 a Year.

"Balata told me that he and Karatz were interested in an insurance company," young Fortier continued. "Balata told me that I could get a job there and later Karatz called me several mornings to talk about the job. I was to be assistant treasurer at a salary of $5,000 a year."

The $65 a month clerk who padded out his meager salary by working as a "shill" at the Fair, grinned sheepishly as he told of the promised job. During these morning conferences with Karatz, he said, Van Derck had ample opportunity to remove Barry's overdrafts.

Employés of the Northern Trust company, Terminal National bank, First National bank, and Bank of Montreal identified records tracing deposits made by Balata and Barry in various accounts.

Deposits and Missing Checks.

The deposits tallied with the missing checks shown in the Amalgamated records and the withdrawals from these accounts coincided with payments made by Karatz, Balata, and Gustav Lindquist, fugitive president of the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company of Springfield, to the stockholders of the company, in accordance with their purchase contract.

Assistant State's Attorneys Vernon C. Thompson and Thomas Dodd Healy presented to the jury only ten large checks, readily traced through the complex records of the various banks, although the amount actually charged is $55,000. The remainder of the sum consists of small items, mostly drawn to defray expenses of the Fair concession.

Philip Balata, brother of Joseph and successor to his barber business, testified that he had honored Van Derck's notes bearing the message, "Please give bearer one haircut," and the signature of his brother or Barry.

The state will resume its case Monday morning.

WIFE OF PRESIDENT GLAD SHE WASN'T ON HAUPTMANN'S JURY

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is "terribly glad" she did not have to serve on Bruno Richard Hauptmann's trial jury.

She thinks he "probably deserved everything." She has no sympathy for the condemned Bronx carpenter, but—

"I wonder what would happen to an innocent person under the same circumstances?"

She gave these opinions today in Atlantic City, where she addressed the annual meeting of the National Association of Deans of Women.

When Mrs. Roosevelt was questioned about her remarks in New York tonight, she said, "No, I don't take any of it back. The only thing that troubled me was that the conviction was on circumstantial evidence."

She qualified her opinions in two ways: First, she was not at the trial; second, she is opposed to capital punishment.

Her views were given in answer to the question: "What do you think of the Hauptmann trial, and do you think it will deter kidnaping and crime?"

The last part of the question went unanswered. To the first part of it she answered quite frankly:

"I don't believe one who was not at the Hauptmann trial could have an important opinion."

Handbills were posted throughout Yorkville today announcing a mass-meeting in behalf of Hauptmann. The meeting will be held in Yorkville Casino next Wednesday night. The posters promise that Mrs. Anna Hauptmann and Edward J. Reilly, Hauptmann's chief counsel during the trial, will speak.

Austria to Try Leading Figure in Nazi Putsch

VIENNA, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The last obstacle to the trial on March 2 of Anton Rintelen appeared to be removed today by the court physician, who said he would be able to stand trial for treason in connection with the July putsch last year. Rintelen has been under medical care since the Nazis announced over a captured government radio that he had succeeded the slain Engelbert Dollfuss as chancellor.

EVANSTON TRIES, BUT CRIME WAVE WON'T STAND UP

Two Shootings, However, Rouse Excitement.

Evanston underwent a brief period of excitement last night. It started shortly after 7 o'clock when phones in the Evanston police station began ringing at a rate which practically inundated Lieut. Fred Toenies.

In rapid succession he cried out that there were "three or four people shot at 1526 Washington street," "a girl killed down at 319 Dempster street," "a woman shot herself in the Orrington hotel."

After the police department had scurried into action such as it had not experienced for months it began to be evident that most of the reports were exaggerated. Information got out, however, that the shooting at 319 Dempster street—the Claridge hotel—involved a policeman.

There was some inquiry about that, but the information given out by the police was meager.

An "Accidental" Shooting.

Finally, however, the story from the Claridge was ferreted out by newspapermen. Miss Jessie Standford, 22 years old, a stenographer, who lives at the hotel, had dropped into the room occupied by Policeman Douglas Murray and his twin brother, Donald, a lawyer, for a visit.

According to the report made to the station by Policeman Murray, who remained in seclusion, he had cleaned his revolver, and was reloading it when the weapon was accidentally discharged, the bullet striking the girl in the left thigh. At the St. Francis hospital Miss Standford was said by other policemen to have corroborated this version.

"Why didn't you give us the whole story right off?" they asked him.

"O," said he, "I didn't know if Murray wanted it in the papers or not."

Another Gun Speaks.

The alarm at 1526 Washington street brought policemen to the home of Jacob Majesty, 62 years old. He had walked into the room where his wife, Dorothy, was playing cards with two other women and fired six shots with a .44 caliber repeating rifle. One shot struck his wife in the elbow, the others going wild.

Mrs. Majesty and the other two women fled screaming from the house and took refuge with a neighbor. Policemen William Calderwood and Burt Kinder found that Majesty had barricaded the door of his home. When they broke in they found him lying on the dining room floor.

He had slashed his throat with a razor blade. At the St. Francis hospital, where both he and his wife were taken, it was said he would recover. He made no statement, but his wife told police that she and Majesty had quarreled earlier in the day.

Investigating the call from the Orrington hotel, police found that Miss Rillia Kelby, 55 years old, had been found dead in her room, apparently from natural causes.

BETTY GOW RETURNS TO ENGLAND; BITTER OVER REILLY CHARGES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Locked in her cabin and refusing to see or speak to anybody but her mother and two close friends, Betty Gow, Scottish nursemaid formerly employed by Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, reached Southampton today from New York. She had testified in the trial of Bruno Hauptmann for the murder of Col. Lindbergh's first son. She left the ship an hour after its arrival. Escorted by friends and stewards, she sped down the gangway into a curtained auto.

Although silent at Southampton, Miss Gow did air her feelings to an interviewer between Cherbourg and Southampton. She was bitterly resentful that Hauptmann's lawyer, Edward Reilly, attempted to cast suspicion on her.

"That is something I will never forget nor forgive," she said. "I take this first opportunity since leaving New York to say how grossly unfair were his innuendoes and suggestions about my alleged complicity in the kidnaping. I did not get a square deal from Reilly, and I hope he realizes it."

Referring to the stage and film offers pouring in to her from the United States and England, she remarked:

"Some offers are altogether degrading, and no self-respecting girl would think for a moment of accepting them. I don't want to make myself cheap in the eyes of the world."

HELD FOR FARM THEFTS.

Logansport, Ind., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Charles J. Tucker, 38, paroled from the Texas state prison three months ago where he was serving a term for murder, was arrested here today as the leader of a gang of farm grain and live stock thieves.

Police Seize Brothers Near Scene of Holdup

Thomas Smith, 29 years old, and his brother Robert, 15 years old, both of 223 West 63d street, were arrested last night shortly after they had held up John Minion, 6515 Harvard avenue, in front of his home and robbed him of $30. Minion, after the robbery, reported to the Englewood police and Sergts. James Pickett and Garrett Veith arrested the Smith brothers.

HOUSE APPROVES LARGEST PEACE TIME ARMY BILL

Provides 378 Millions for Defense.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—A thundering roll of "ayes" in the house of representatives this afternoon carried over the top the largest peace-time military program in the history of the country. A scattering half dozen feeble "noes" were insufficient to bring a record vote on the 378 million dollar war department appropriations bill.

Opponents of the bill, who raised the pacifist cry that strong national defense invites war, brought their attack through an amendment which would have blocked federal aid for compulsory military training in schools and colleges. When this amendment was crushed by a vote of 119 to 31, opposition, which had threatened to delay passage of the bill, melted and the measure was carried.

Reverses Strength Amendment.

In the final moments of the session the house reversed itself and removed from the bill the amendment of R. Ewing Thomason [Dem., Tex.], which would have raised the standing army by 11,500 men at an annual cost of five million dollars. This restores the provision authorizing the President to increase the army from 118,750 to 165,000 if he sees fit. An amendment which would have increased enrollment in citizens' military training camps from 14,000 to 37,000 men at a cost of $1,600,000 was also defeated.

Swaying on his crutches in the intensity of his appeal, Representative Bernard M. Jacobson [Dem., Ia.] launched the opposition to the bill. He characterized the bill as "a waste of money," pointing out that the fund might be used to build roads, and endow schools and colleges. He declared the military high command's plea for adequate national defense was groundless.

Answered by Blanton.

Jacobson was answered by Representative Tom Blanton [Dem., Tex.] who declared himself against "spineless pacifism" and declared the country would at all times be equipped "to repel any invasion and put down any internal disorder." Other supporters of the bill hailed it as a "sound move for peace."

Representative Vito Marcantonio [Rep., N. Y.] introduced the amendment on compulsory military training, precipitating an hour of debate which at time reached furious intensity. He said he was introducing the issue, involving the right of conscientious objectors to refuse military training at land grant colleges was "whether the liberties of youth are to be abolished." He said he was attempting to prevent "goosestepping."

His supporters argued that the training given college students was of no value, that military authorities might seek to train girls at such schools, that no war had ever accomplished anything for this country except the war of the revolution, and that no war threatened the country.

Insurance Against War.

Former soldiers in the house said the discipline of close order drill was of paramount importance to a soldier and an army. They declared that the greatest insurance against threat of war is an adequate national defense.

With the defeat of this amendment the reading of the bill was completed and passage followed. The bill carries a total of 318 million for military activities of the war department and 60 million for nonmilitary activities. The total of 318 million dollars is an increase of 49 million dollars over the appropriation of last year. Among the provisions is one for 547 new airplanes.

On the passage of the bill the house adjourned until Monday.

U. S. ENVOY ASKS JAPAN TO PROBE YANKS' CHARGES

TOKIO, Feb. 23.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—An American's complaint that he and two others were mistreated by Japanese police reached the stage of diplomatic action today when Ambassador Joseph P. Grew called upon the Japanese foreign office. Grew called it "an informal and friendly conversation" with Vice Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu.

The ambassador, it was learned, expressed hope that the Japanese government would make "an impartial investigation of the affair, not based exclusively on ex parte statements of Osaka police," which were in direct variance with sworn American versions of the incident.

R. S. K. Irvin, director of a corn products refining company, contended he and two employés, J. W. Scott and William P. Palmroth, were roped by police and led through the streets to the police station after a dispute with Coreans who he claimed were trying to blackmail him. Then they were detained four hours, he said.

THREATENS TO SUE OVER BOY'S SHOE SHINE BOX

New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—A lawsuit over a shoe shining box was threatened today by Attorney Henry Zeltner on behalf of his client, Sebastian Carmello, 14.

Carmello, who supports a mother and four brothers and sisters, saw ruin staring him in the face Wednesday when he found a city marshal's notice of a levy tacked on the door of a restaurant near City Hall park.

Carmello's box was inside, left there while he attended a movie, and the notice declared a sale would be held to satisfy a judgment.

Attorney Zeltner said he would seek not only to recover the box, but that he might also sue the marshal for the bootblack's lost earnings, estimated at $2.50 a day.

FOUR LAUNDRIES WARNED UNDER SANITARY RULES

Bundesen Campaigns for Cleanliness.

Four laundries were warned yesterday that their licenses will be revoked unless they comply immediately with the sanitary regulations of the city health department. The warnings were issued by Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen, who is conducting a campaign to enforce cleanliness in laundries as a means of checking the spread of contagious diseases.

Lists Violations by Four.

The four laundries and their violations of the health department ordinance, as reported by Dr. Bundesen's inspectors, are:

Chicago Wet Wash and New Way laundry, 4224 West Division street. Common drinking cup for all employés and no wash stands and towels for the employés. This laundry has branches at 2901 Montrose avenue and 5533 Cottage Grove avenue.

Laundry in tenement house at 18 South Cicero avenue. Location of a laundry in a tenement house is a violation of the health ordinance and the owner was ordered to vacate the premises.

Inspector Falls in Vat.

During an examination of the Chief Wet Wash laundry at 5425 North Hoyne avenue on Thursday, Frank Becker, 2720 Potwyne place, a city inspector, suffered serious burns when a plank broke as he was crossing it, plunging him into a vat of boiling water. Becker was taken to the Ravenswood hospital.

Dr. Bundesen announced that a majority of the laundry owners have declared they will coöperate with him and will conduct their own cleanup campaigns. The health commissioner asked the public to report all violations of the sanitary regulations to his assistant, Maj. Joel I. Connolly, chief of the bureau of sanitary inspection and engineering.

CONVICTED IN GIRL'S DEATH.

Olympia, Wash., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Merritt Hunter Jr., 20, was convicted today of the murder of his attractive Japanese-American sweetheart, Lillian Kanda, 19, and the jury recommended a death sentence.

DIONNES HIRE LAWYER IN FIGHT TO SHARE FORTUNE OF QUINTS

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, it was learned today, have retained Paul Martin, Windsor lawyer, in an effort to gain full parental control of their quintuplet daughters and to obtain a share of the money accruing from testimonials and newspapers.

Martin, it is understood, will confer with Premier Mitchell Hepburn next Thursday, seeking the Ontario government's permission to use some of the money held in trust for their five baby daughters, for the support of their other children. The money, which has been estimated will total around $100,000 by the time the babies are one year old, is to be held as a trust fund until they reach the age of 18. The Dionnes recently went to Chicago to make vaudeville appearances.

The quintuplets themselves were eight months and 25 days old today. They were wheeled out on the veranda of their private hospital near Callander for their usual daily airing.

POLICEMAN KILLS SUSPECTED AUTO THIEF IN FIGHT

Evert Larson, 29 years old, a suspected automobile thief who had served three years in a Michigan prison for robbery, was killed yesterday in his apartment at 917 East 47th street by Policeman Frank Docaur of the stolen automobile detail. Docaur and his companion, Policeman George Vasicek, called at the apartment to arrest Larson on a warant. Larson knocked Vasicek down and attempted to reach a pistol that was in a bureau drawer. Then Docaur shot him.

Larson was using the name of William Simmons. In the flat the police found Viola Simmons, 29 years old, a waitress, formerly of Arkansas.

The warant for Larson's arrest was issued after a stolen car was found in the possession of Llewellen Finlay, 24 years old, 5815 Dorchester avenue. The car had been used in several robberies. Finlay told police he had rented the car from "Simmons."

THIRD COAL TRUCK DRIVER IS SHOT IN STRIKE VIOLENCE

Gunmen Fire on Four and Dump Loads; 5 Seized.

Ignoring police organization against them, gunmen in automobiles continued to rove the streets yesterday, the fifth day of the strike of the Chicago Coal Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Hikers' union, local 704. The gunmen fired on the crews of four trucks making coal deliveries, wounding one driver in both legs.

Yesterday's shooting was the third during the strike against Chicago and suburban coal dealers to inforce a demand for a $1 increase in the $6 a day pay of the striking union members.

Fire on Driver from Car.

Yesterday's strike victim is Charles Wicker, 39 years old, 2311 Normandy avenue, a driver for the Eastman Coal company. He was shot by several men in a dark sedan as he was driving his truck at 2029 North Racine avenue. The men drew alongside in a car and fired into the truck cab, one bullet wounding Wicker in both ankles.

John Stramaglia, 40 years old, 3840 Division street, a driver for the Bunge Brothers Coal company, who was making deliveries to relief clients, was fired on at 23d street and St. Louis avenue, several bullets passing through his clothing. He was not wounded, however.

Drivers were also fired on at 3244 Wabansia avenue and at 59th street and St. Louis avenue, the bullets going wild.

Dumping of coal in the streets continued yesterday as on previous days. The police arrested five men who confessed dumping at least two loads.

Five Identified by Police.

The men were seized in an automobile at Madison street and Kostner avenue. They identified themselves as Benjamin Mayer, 4350 Shields avenue, owner of the car; William Massolle, 2020 Albany avenue; John Downey, 1167 West 18th street; Ernest Martin, 729 West 18th street, and David Southard, 933 Belmont avenue. All are striking drivers except Southard, who is a member of the rival Coal Drivers, Hustlers and Handlers' union, local 704, American Federation of Labor affiliate. This union is not on strike.

Despite the growing violence, there was little, if any suspension of coal deliveries. Police continued to accompany loads consigned to institutions and public buildings.

ARREST 17 STRIKERS

Policemen of the Town Hall station, answering a riot call yesterday, placed under arrest 17 strikers who had picketed the plant of the Peacock Cleaners and Dyers, 4744 Broadway, and attempted to prevent trucks from making deliveries there.

One of the men arrested, George Johnson, 37 years old, 2251 South California avenue, who was alleged to have purposely driven another car against one of the company's trucks, was charged with malicious mischief. The others were booked on disorderly conduct charges.

After the disorders started, police squads were kept on duty at the plant.

Officials of the company asserted that only about 60 per cent of their union employés had obeyed a strike order of the cleaners and dyers' union. They announced also that they would protest to the United States district attorney over the wrecking of one of their trucks carrying an interstate shipment to Hammond.

MORE STRIKE DISORDER

Meanwhile disorders continued on a lesser scale in the strike called Wednesday by the White Cotton Goods Workers' union, unit of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union of America. The strikers are seeking a 15 per cent wage increase for cutters and a $16 minimum weekly wage for other workers.

Pickets continued to heckle nonunion workers as they arrived at or departed from their places of employment. The tossing of bricks constituted the most serious violence yesterday. A dozen demonstrators, most of them women, were arrested.

A. Plotkin, general organizer for the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, predicted that the tieup in the shops affected by the strike would be complete by Monday, when, he estimated, 10,000 workers will have walked out.

100 CROWD INTO DARK ROADHOUSE FLEEING STORM

Blairsville, Pa., Feb. 23 [Saturday].—(AP)—At least 100 storm refugees crowded into a lightless roadhouse on gale swept Penn View mountain early today, some of them motorists caught in the snowstorm and others occupants of two buses that stalled on the long mountain.

Highway workers who penetrated close to Penn View inn, on top of the mountain, said they learned that scores of cars and the two buses had become buried in drifts, but as far as they knew all persons had found refuge in the roadhouse.

Power lines up the long mountain were cut off and the inn was without lights, the workers said. About 18 inches of snow has fallen on the mountain, which is on the William Penn highway, and drifts were several feet thick in places.

ACCUSE BARONESS OF AIDING TROOPS TO ESCAPE LEGION

TAZA, French Morocco, Feb. 22.—(AP)—An itinerant Russian dancer and baroness by marriage was under arrest today on charges of operating a "desertion service" for soldiers of the French Foreign legion.

The woman, Irene De Sirvers, 36, came here from Fez. She quit dancing after failing to attract applause in the amusement places of Taza, the authorities said, and set up a cheese vender's stand in the market place.

Police charge that the cheeses were only a disguise and that her real business was providing legionnaires with means of deserting to nearby Spanish Morocco. This offense is officially considered to be similar to espionage.

STREET CAR MAN KILLED BY TRAIN IN SNOWSTORM

Heavy Downfall on South Side; Warmer Today.

Somewhat warmer weather is expected in Chicago this afternoon, according to the weather forecast. Tomorrow, it is expected, will be unsettled and colder.

Conditions in the city and over the country yesterday were marked by contrasts. On Chicago's south side and in the southern suburbs there was a fall of almost an inch of snow, while the loop and the north side had mere flurries. In the plains states and in the southwest, where high temperatures and dust storms were recorded on Thursday, it was much colder. Unusual warmth continued in the extreme south.

Blinding Snow Causes Death.

One death, that of Thomas Leahy, 32 years old, 1722 West 77th street, was attributed in part to the south side snowstorm. Leahy, a conductor for the surface lines, left his car at 89th street and Ashland avenue to inspect the Rock Island tracks and determine whether the crossing was safe for the car. The snow blinded him and a westbound suburban train struck and killed him.

Fears that the dust storms had injured the wheat crop in the southwest were somewhat allayed yesterday, but experts said it would be impossible to estimate the damage for several days. The dust clouds swept over Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, and western Texas on a 56-mile wind.

Streets Lighted at Midday.

Residents of the territories affected by the dust storm said that the sun was obscured and that trafic was interrupted. Some towns turned on their street lights in midday. The cloud was similar to those that swept over huge areas in the mid-continent last spring.

Temperature records for the day were set at several points yesterday. At Topeka, Kas., the mercury rose to 74 and at Jefferson City, Mo., to 79.

AIM TO CUT RED TAPE TO TRY U. S. KIDNAP SUSPECT

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Diplomatic red tape may be cut or shortened so K. P. [Piccolo Pete] Murray can be brought to London from Covington, Ky., in time to be tried on kidnaping charges at the spring assizes, opening here two weeks from next Monday.

Acting Crown Attorney Norman Newton said it was still problematical whether Murray would be extradited in time for the next court, when he would face charges arising out of the kidnaping last August of John S. Labatt, wealthy brewer.

Murray was ordered extradited by a United States commissioner at Covington, but the order must first be ratified by the state department at Washington.

BELDEN BAPTISTS QUIT CONVENTION IN FIGHT ON REDS

Assail Modernism; Join New Movement.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Charging that the modernism of the Northern Baptist convention is tending toward cordial espousal of state socialism or communism the Belden Avenue Baptist church, 2309 North Halsted street, yesterday announced its withdrawal from that convention. The Belden Avenue church is one of the largest Baptist congregations in the city.

Revealed for the first time in the same announcement is the rapid development of a new Baptist convention which not only repudiates pulpit socialism but also affirms adherence to the historic "New Hampshire confession" which was officially set aside by the 1922 sessions of the Northern Baptist convention.

The new convention, it was learned, was first projected in Chicago two years ago. According to the Rev. Howard Fulton, pastor of the Belden Avenue church, the convention now has a membership of about 200 churches and will hold its fourth annual sessions at Grand Rapids, Mich., next May.

Quits Other Groups.

Its name is "The General Association of Regular Baptist Churches in the United States." The Rev. Dr. R. T. Ketcham of Gary is president.

The Belden Avenue church also withdrew from the Chicago Baptist association and the Illinois Baptist State convention. The Rev. Mr. Fulton, in making public the resolution of withdrawal, said that it was adopted with only two members of his congregation dissenting. The resolution was prepared by the board of deacons of the church under the chairmanship of G. A. Connor.

"The resolution declared that socialistically inclined modernists have seized control "of our conventions, policies, and programs."

Charge Variance from Bible.

"These leaders, the resolution said, "have injected their pernicious doctrains . . . so that our missionary enterprises, educational institutions, and administrative policies are no longer conducted as set forth by the holy scriptures and historically held by regular Baptists."

The resolution cited the 1934 sessions of the Northern convention as evidence of this alleged apostacy, declaring that the convention "adopted socialistic and pacifistic resolutions" and displayed "a tendency . . . to show sympathy toward God denying, Christ hating communism."

The resolution pointed to a proposal which is scheduled to come before the 1935 Northern convention at Colorado Springs in May. This proposal "if adopted will commit the convention to state socialism and communism," said the resolution of the Belden Avenue church. The proposal is said to deal with demands for a new social order.

Charge Moscow Trend.

As added proof of the Northern convention's alleged march toward Moscow the resolution pointed to one mission house maintained by Baptist givers where, it charged, communistic meetings are held. This mission center is Brooks house at Hammond, Ind.

Brooks house was described in the resolution as "a so-called Baptist Christian center under the supervision of the Rev. John M. Hestenes. One of the communist meetings, said the resolution, "was for the commemoration of the 11th anniversary of the death of N. I. Lenin, who led the communist revolution in Russia."

The Rev. Mr. Hestenes was in California yesterday, according to a woman member of the Brooks house staff. She said the Lenin memorial meeting was held by young Hammond communists who rented the house for the purpose. She declared that it had been the only meeting held at Brooks house under communist auspices.

Bandit Gets Wrong Number and Lady Puts Things Right

Mrs. Thelma McHenry, 18 North California avenue, was angry yesterday when a robber walked into her home, presented a pistol, and demanded her purse. She was doubly angry because the purse contained a sum with which she intended to buy a new dress. As the bandit looked through it she picked up the telephone in the hall and hit him in the right eye with it. This so discouraged the man that he dropped the money and fled.

All Things Come to Him Who Waits, Even a Robber

A robber sat down last evening in the automobile of Joseph Slovy, 4516 Jackson boulevard, while it was parked in front of 65 East South Water street. When Slovy arrived the robber showed him a pistol and forced him to drive to the lower level of Michigan avenue. There Slovy surrendered $111. He was then compelled to drive to Lincoln avenue and Wells street, where the bandit got out and fled on foot.

Seeks Closer Relations for Churches and Mission

The Rev. Dr. Joshua Oden, president of the Chicago Church federation, announced yesterday that the first monthly union ministers' meeting during his administration will be devoted Monday morning to the problem of better understanding between churches and city rescue missions. Dr. Oden was elected president of the federation two weeks ago. The meeting will be held in the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street.

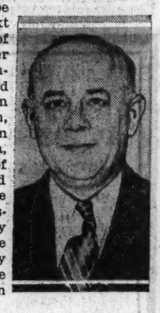
CINCINNATI CITY MANAGER TELLS "NO GRAFT" PLAN

"Government at Cost" System Explained.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

"To serve no private or party interests and to have no fear."

This might be taken as the text of a discussion of the city manager form of government, as opposed to the common spoils system, which was given by C. A. Dykstra, city manager of Cincinnati and president of the International Association of City Managers, before the Ohio Society of Chicago at the Hotel Sherman yesterday.



C. A. DYKSTRA.

While 450 cities have adopted this system in name at least, not all are as successful in overthrowing political graft and corruption as Cincinnati, he admitted. For instance, there are Newport and Covington, Ky., twin cities across the Ohio river from Cincinnati. These have city managers but have recently been exposed as the hiding place for a gang of international extortionists and kidnapers.

Politics Behind Scenes.

"There is a vast distinction between these cities and Cincinnati," said Mr. Dykstra. "They do not have the charter form of government as we do. Their system permits the choice of a city manager if they wish, but under this the same old system of politics is working."

The real city manager reform was described as a movement of determined citizens, organized and willing to work without personal profit, carried on through the years. In Cincinnati this is known as the charter group. At each election time it comes to work, seeking to fill the council with its supporters.

"The tarif, the gold clause, the world court, have nothing to do with getting the city chores well done," said Mr. Dykstra. "The local job of housekeeping has nothing to do with national politics. The charterists do not pay a single person to man the polls. No one is offered a job or a contract.

"As city manager it fell to me recently to appoint a new chief of police. He was chosen from among three names handed to me by the civil service commission. I give you my word that I did not have a telephone call or a letter concerning that choice. I am entirely free.

No Pressure; No Graft.

"The responsibility is mine. In five years there has been no pressure on me to make appointments, to give contracts or to make purchases in a certain place.

"The mayor under this system is the outside contact man. The city manager is the inside operating head. This system can operate in a large city as well as in a small one. It may prove to be the government of the future for states as well as for cities.

"This means career service instead of political service. Our community agents are separated completely from party advantage or private gains. It is service at cost, no cost plus. Service is given at cost where I live."

Glenn G. Hayes, president of the Ohio society, said that the civil awakening in Cincinnati had resulted among other things in the lowest tax rate for any city in the country and bonds that sell at a greater premium than those of the United States government.

WILL OF DOG OWNER MAKES LIFE SAFER FOR TEXAS RABBITS

Beaumont, Tex., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Rabbit feasts. For the remainder of their can forage now with less fear of a death chase with hounds.

Five dogs belonging to a 76 year old fisherman, Samuel P. McLaughlin, who died this week near Lake Charles, are snubbing ordinary rabbit feats. For the remainder of their lives the dogs will eat choice bones in which the richest and best of marrow is found. McLaughlin set aside $1,000 for their care and appointed a neighbor to see they're always well fed.

POLICE QUESTION TWO AS ROBBERY LOOT IS TRACED

George P. Racine, 52 years old, 561 Winnetka avenue, Winnetka, president of the Franklin Mutual Insurance company, 100 North La Salle street, and James A. Riggs, colored, 50 years old, 5328 South parkway, were arrested yesterday for questioning in connection with the disposal of the loot in a 1932 robbery.

The victim of the robbery was Patrick John Higgins, 3000 Polk street. Three men entered his home and took $2,100 and several thousands of dollars worth of stock certificates. No trace of the certificates was found until a week ago, when the real estate firm of Roscoe & Kolliner, 4311 South Michigan avenue, attempted to sell seven shares of American Telephone and Telegraph stock, identified as part of the loot.

The firm asserted that Riggs had deposited the collateral to cover a debt for rent. Riggs confirmed this, and asserted he had obtained the stock from Racine. The insurance company head, who had used other stock certificates taken from Higgins to obtain bank loans, declared that the stocks had been turned over to him by Riggs. With their statements in direct conflict, the police locked them up. They are to be questioned at the state's attorney's office today.

FAVORS SPENDING 40 MILLION TO REPAIR STREETS

Ald. John J. Grealis [44th] yesterday proposed a plan whereby, he said, 40 million dollars might be made available at once to reconstruct the city's streets. He will introduce a resolution outlining his proposal at the city council meeting Wednesday.

The plan is to fund the vehicle tax receipts through the issuance of a bond issue to be authorized by the legislature. The issue would be retired in fifteen years at 5 per cent interest by vehicle tax collections. The bonds would be sold to the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the money would be allocated among the fifty wards for a street resurfacing program.

"The spotty work done each year with the $4,000,000 vehicle tax fund does not do the job adequately," said Ald. Grealis. "Once the entire street system is put in shape with the 40 million dollars, costs of maintenance and repairs would drop."

TRIES SUICIDE; JAILED.

Rock Island, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Bernard Timm, 24, former amateur boxer, was sentenced 10 days in the county jail for intoxication after attempting to hang himself in cell with strips torn from shirt. He told the judge that he intended to buy groceries when he "hocked" an overcoat for $1.50 but that the sum was so small, he bought liquor instead.

'PRINCESS' HOME; DECLARES TITLE DIDN'T FOOL HER

Will Annul Wedding to Bigamist.

Helen Gloria Albert, former Northwestern university student, who, on Feb. 13, married a Russian who said he was a prince but wasn't, arrived in Chicago yesterday to begin preparation for a suit to annul the union which was solemnized in Yuma, Ariz.

The grounds for the suit will be the discovery, accidentally made, that the Russian, known as Michale Kildischeff, already has a wife in Syracuse, N. Y.

After she had been greeted at the station by her father, Benjamin A. Albert, 3400 Sheridan road, president of the Cleaners, Dyers and Pressers' union, and Attorney Irving Eisenman, Miss Albert declared firmly she had never been under the impression that Kildischeff was a prince.

Romance of Music.

"We were both enthusiastic about music," said the 25 year old bride, who went to Hollywood to follow a song writing career. "There was no belief on my part that Michale was a prince. His charming manners, his culture and love of music attracted me. Our marriage was hasty and I regretted it immediately.

"In fact I told him we could not live together until he had met my father and obtained his consent to the marriage. Then I went to live with a girl friend in Hollywood. A few days later I learned that Michale had a wife in Syracuse.

Ignores Friend's Plea.

"Although a friend of his telephoned and begged that I take no action, I telegraphed my father and followed his advice to come home and have the marriage annulled."

Attorney Eisenman announced that the petition for annulment would be filed on Monday or Tuesday. He added that he had sent to Syracuse for a copy of the marriage record and had requested the first Mrs. Kildischeff, the former Norma Allewelt, to come here and testify.

It was indicated that Miss Albert would not press bigamy charges against the Russian, whose father at one time represented his country as consul at Genoa, Italy.

PARAGUAY READY TO BOLT LEAGUE; ARMY PUSHES ON

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Her victorious armies knocking at Bolivia's very doors, Paraguay tonight apparently made ready to follow Japan and Germany out of the league of nations. With the time limit for Asuncion's acceptance of the league's Chaco peace plan scheduled to expire Sunday, Paraguayan clamor for withdrawal from Geneva was insistent.

The Paraguayan press, public and political circles were especially angered at the league's action in lifting its arms embargo against Bolivia, which has accepted the plan without reservations, while maintaining it against Paraguay, which thus far has returned answers tantamount to rejection.

Because Gen. José Estigarribia's Paraguayan veterans have swept unchecked through the disputed Chaco area to the outer defenses of the Bolivian army base at Villa Montes, observers here were confident the Asuncion government's final word to the Geneva peace plan would be "No."

CHICAGO'S DEATH CORNERS SHOWN BY TRAFIC TOLL

Survey Illustrates Need of Elevated Roads.

BY HAL FOUST.

In the vernacular of prohibition gang warfare, certain street intersections in Chicago were dubbed "death corners." The name would creep into news stories on occasions when some alcohol peddler would be felled by an assassin's bullets close to the scene of a similar slaying.

A study of trafic records shows that, with no effort at dramatization, the "death corners" appellation can more properly be applied to a considerable number of intersections unassociated with crime. The toll of pedestrians and motorists has been heavier than at any of the notorious crime sites, and the victims have been valued members of society, men, women, and children.

Picked by Trafic Engineer.

Leslie Sorenson, city trafic engineer, was asked to pick out the ten most dangerous spots in Chicago's street system, the ten outstanding "death corners" in the motor toll that killed 986 and injured 19,724 persons last year.

With no predetermined intent, his selection advanced an argument for the construction of an elevated highway system that would check this loss of lives and limbs even more effectively than repeal abated the gang warfare.

As has been published before, 98.5 per cent of these trafic accidents were of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway. At nine of the ten intersections engineers and city planners have sought to lessen the hazards by widening and by signal installation.

The coroner's and hospitals' records show the ineffectiveness of these efforts, the ineffectiveness of any attempt to substitute control and regulation of surface trafic for construction of elevated highways.

Most Dangerous of Corners.

Number one "death corner" in Chicago, according to Mr. Sorenson, is Roosevelt road and Western avenue where four persons were killed and 16 persons injured in twelve months. Both of these pavements have been widened in improvements that the planners thought would lessen the hazards of congestion as well as expedite travel. There are stop and go lights on the corners, theoretically but not actually eliminating collisions of cross trafic.

Both Roosevelt and Western are thoroughfares heavily traveled by vehicles on trips of two miles or more. With an elevated highway system, such trips would be made on pavements free from cross trafic and free from pedestrians.

Second on the list was Cicero avenue and 55th street, both wide thoroughfares surrounded by vacant property, a half mile north of the Chicago airport. A flashing red stop sign faces east and west bound trafic. Reflectorized slow signs and junction signs warn north and south motorists. Yet collisions killed three and injured forty-seven at this intersection in twelve months.

Other Death Corners Listed.

The other eight in Mr. Sorenson's death corner list are:

Ashland avenue and 55th street, 3 dead and 13 injured.

Ashland and Chicago avenues, 1 dead and 23 injured.

Lincoln, Western and Lawrence avenues, 1 dead and 21 injured.

Lincoln, Ashland, and Belmont avenues, 24 injured.

Madison street and Western avenue, 19 injured.

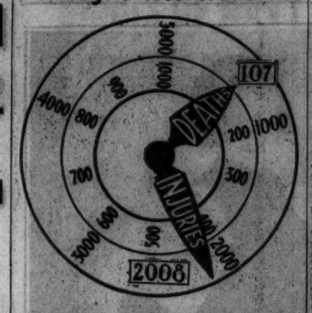
All eight of these have stop and go lights. Cottage Grove avenue and 63d street is the only one of the group that does not have at least one widened pavement.

"There are other street intersections," said Mr. Sorenson, "where there have been more persons killed as the result of isolated accidents, but the numerous crashes and large number of personal injuries at these ten rate them as the city's most dangerous."

Some other intersections rating high in trafic deaths but low in number of accidents, each the scene of three motor fatalities in 1934, are Ashland avenue and 52d street, 43d street and Western boulevard, Humboldt boulevard and Bloomingdale avenue, Columbus drive and Balbo place, Milwaukee avenue and Raven street, and 31st street and Wentworth avenue.

AVOIDABLE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile accidents are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

MOTOR CARS KILL 3; DRIVER OF ONE FLEES ACCIDENT

George Pierce, 47 years old, 1501 North La Salle street, died yesterday in the county hospital of injuries received Thursday night when he was struck by a hit and run driver in front of 1517 North La Salle street. This death and two others brought to 129 the Cook county motor toll for 1935. Up to 4 p. m. yesterday the toll within the Chicago city limits totaled 107 and the number of injured 2,088. The other victims yesterday:

Michael McNamara, 34 years old, 7745 South Wood street. Died in Little Company of Mary hospital of injuries incurred earlier when he was struck by an automobile at 79th street and Western avenue.

Charles Klafter, 39 years old, 458 North Halsted street. Died in the county hospital of injuries suffered last Saturday. He was struck by an automobile driven by John C. Allen, 1512 North La Salle street, at Dearborn and Erie streets. Allen is held in bond of $5,000 on a charge of manslaughter.

TRAM, 3 AUTOS, AND STOREFRONT FIGURE IN CRASH

Three automobiles, an elevated train, and a store front figured yesterday in a series of freak accidents in Oak Park. No one was seriously injured as the cars caromed about South boulevard between Grove and Oak Park avenues.

Dean Perena, 21 years old, 167 North Taylor street, Oak Park, pulled away from the curb in South boulevard. Mrs. C. G. Morgan, 38 years old, 508 Madison street, Oak Park, following in another car, nicked Perena's fender and swerved to the elevated tracks, which are at ground level at that point.

A train, slowing for the Oak Park avenue station, struck the Morgan car and hurled it back into South boulevard. There it struck a third car owned by Mrs. M. Chapman, 4745 Jackson boulevard, which was parked at the curb.

The impact drove Mrs. Chapman's car across the curb and into the front of the Swap shop. The shop window was shattered, the car's fenders were bent, Joseph P. Morgan, 2 years old, lost two teeth, and Mrs. Morgan's mother, Mrs. Clara Potter, 55 years old, was bruised.

DIES IN HOSPITAL OF BURNS.

Stephen Romanski, 37 years old, 1716 Dickson street, died in the County hospital yesterday of burns received Jan. 28 while working on a motor car in a garage behind his home.

Farmers Ask for More Cash to Extend Work of Institute

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Reports from Springfield indicating the legislature is studying eight methods of increasing the state's income by 50 million dollars renewed hopes of farmers in their effort to save the Illinois Farmers' institute, which is holding its fortieth annual meeting here this week.

Directors indicate they will ask the state legislature to increase the institute's biennial appropriation approximately $30,000 to $80,000 for the next two fiscal years ending June 30, 1937. In recent years some taxpayers have hinted strongly that this old institution had "outlived its usefulness" and under the rigid economy drive two years ago the institute's biennial appropriation was cut from $124,000 to $50,000.

Forty years ago the organization was established "to assist and encourage useful education among farmers and for developing agricultural resources of the state."

Need Becoming Less.

Today some declared there is less need for this organization; that other educational and governmental institutions duplicate the institute's efforts; the federal government is running affairs of the farmer through the AAA, and it is contended this adds to the arguments that this organization should not be financed longer out of public funds.

On the other hand, officials, members, and supporters of the institute feel they have good reasons for asking for further state appropriations. As evidence of the need for the institute, H. O. Allison, secretary, points to the intense interest displayed in more than 200 meetings held in 92 counties and attended by approximately 125,000 farmers and their wives during the last year.

For People's Interest.

In answering the critics, the secretary said the institute's sole aim is that of useful service in the interest of all people.

He indicated with a greatly reduced appropriation the institute's activities have been curtailed seriously, salaries have been cut and the printing of thousands of copies of the year book and annual report discontinued during the last two years.

Dean W. C. Coffey, University of St. Paul, Minn., speaking before delegates today declared the middle west and northwest regions would not recover from effects of the drouth for at least five years, even with normal rains.

Discussing "Live Stock Problems in Agricultural Adjustment," Dean Coffey said he favored "a soil conservation element in production control programs even to the point of predicating benefit payments on whether or not coöperators follow approved soil conservation methods."

Sees More Beef Cows.

He predicted that the proposed federal feed grain program, designed to control live stock production, would encourage "development of dual purpose cows, which would mean less milk and more beef, at least no more milk."

Dr. J. J. Lentner, federal veterinarian, reported progress has been made in testing herds for Bangs disease, which causes abortion in cattle. Out of the $760,000 federal allotment to Illinois, farmers must be paid as much as $20 to $50 for condemned cattle.

YOUNG MAN WITH CHIVALRY TRADES IT IN ON NEW CAR

Mrs. Margaret Banker of 4105 Leland avenue, Lyons, thought for a few moments yesterday that chivalry was not dead after all.

Mrs. Banker, daughter of Capt. Michael Foran, head of the police force of Summit, was getting into her sedan at 63d and Peoria streets with her sister, Miss Lillian Foran, 7440 West 56th street, Lyons, when she dropped and lost her keys.

A suave young man approached, lifted his hat politely, and offered to aid in the search. In a few moments he found the keys, handed them to Mrs. Banker, and politely drew a pistol.

"Please get into the car," he said to the two women, lifting his hat again.

They did, and Mrs. Banker was forced to drive around for some time, then stop at 62d street and Western avenue. There the young man took $10 from Mrs. Banker, asked her and her sister to get out, and drove away in the car—not forgetting to wave a courteous farewell.

DUCE PICKS NOTED GENERAL TO LEAD AFRICA CAMPAIGN

Seizes Ocean Liners to Transport Troops.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 22.—Premier Mussolini's African adventure advanced another stage toward the military conquest of Ethiopia as an Italian protectorate today when several thousand more men, embracing the first contingent of the mobilized regular army, embarked at Italian ports for East Africa. More will leave tomorrow from Messina, Sicily.

Contradicting official statements that the dispatch of troops for East Africa is a "precautionary measure" is the fact that among today's departures was Gen. Graziani, Italy's most famous and successful general in colonial warfare. He will be in charge of operations against the Ethiopians. He conducted Italy's long war against Senussi tribesmen in Libya and reduced them to pacification. With Gen. Graziani goes also his general staf.

Duce Commandeers Ships.

With the sending of a regular army division to Africa today, it is said here that Mussolini expects to be able to announce within a year that Ethiopia is an Italian protectorate and to offset with this new conquest the dangerous economic situation at home. Haile Selassie I. would remain emperor of Ethiopia, but under the Italians just as the bey of Tunis is under a French protectorate.

War scenes were witnessed today at Genoa, Naples and Messina as two commandeered ships were converted into troop transports.

At Genoa the liner Nazario Sauro, with 1,300 workmen aboard, left for Eritrea amid imposing scenes at the docks. The workmen were selected from the ranks of the unemployed in northern Italy. The ship will stop at Naples tomorrow to take on 400 more workmen. They will build barracks and erect quarters for Mussolini's army.

Later this evening the trans-Atlantic liner Vulcania, with 2,000 men of the engineers, artillery, and hospital corps, sailed from Naples en route to East Africa. Gen. Graziani and his staf were aboard the Vulcania. The ship will stop at Messina tomorrow to take on more troops of the Peloritana division, which was mobilized there in the last two weeks.

12,000 Troops Sent to Africa.

Embarking also on the Vulcania tomorrow at Messina will be a battalion of the 12th engineers, who arrived at Messina tonight from Palermo. When the Vulcania weighs anchor tomorrow afternoon for an unrevealed destination on the Red sea, probably Massaua in Italian Eritrea, it will be packed with Mussolini's soldiers and with workmen. It is estimated that at least 6,000 men will be aboard.

With the departure of the Vulcania nearly 12,000 soldiers will have been dispatched to East Africa during the last 10 days.

It was announced by the military command that the liner Bianca Mano will probably leave Sunday with more troops.

"We have only 5,000 troops in East Africa," a government spokesman said tonight. "The French have 180,000 in their colonies of Algeria and Tunis. Naturally at a time like this we are reinforcing our troops."

Expect War Next Fall.

It is expected in informed military circles that "precautionary measures" will describe Mussolini's activities against the Ethiopians until some time next fall, since this is not the season for beginning operations on a large scale. Meanwhile the troops will have become acclimated for an advance next year which will be intended to leave the emperor of Ethiopia in the same position as the bey of Tunis.

Negradas Yesus, Ethiopian chargé d'affaires here, was nervous and alarmed tonight. He said:

"Italy says it is for peace, but it sends out all these troops. We are not threatening Italy. They tell me Italy is going to have an African adventure. It looks like it—it looks like war."

Mussolini's main obstacles to his African adventure are its costliness at a time when finances here are bad, and also the lack of any popular enthusiasm for it. Besides, there are many who believe that these expensive mobilizations of troops also cloak a military readiness to take a hand in any Nazi attempts on Austria and that not all the troops called out are intended for East Africa.

NAZIS TO BEGIN SEX EDUCATION IN PUBLIC SCHOOL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—The number of illegitimate children born in Germany is increasing, a fact which results in a tendency that is dangerous for the family and the nation," Dr. G. Ockel warned today in the official German organ, German Doctors.

Dr. W. Gross, leader of the racial-poiltical office of the National Socialist party, commenting on Dr. Ockel's warning, demands that the "sexual education of youth be handled systematically by teachers and physicians, who must abandon their false sense of shame." Dr. Gross said that "an intensive campaign for enlightenment in matters of repopulation draws the attention of youth to these problems in their early years. In sexual education exaggerations and excesses of the previous era must be avoided."

Dr. Ockel demanded school teachers and physicians "call together parents —especially those of children in the lowest grade—for evening discussions." A complete system of sexual education will be organized, starting with the education of children between the ages of 5 and 10. Authorities have ruled that the few co-educational schools in existence in Germany must be abolished.

SIR JOHN SIMON MAY TOUR EUROPE ON PEACE MISSION

Britain Seeks to Sell Security Plan.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—A tour of eastern Europe's capitals was envisaged this evening for Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, after Great Britain opened direct negotiations with Russia, Germany, and Italy in furtherance of the Franco-British security scheme.

These negotiations, it was officially admitted, are to determine whether a visit by the British statesman to Berlin, Moscow, and possibly Warsaw would be useful.

Accompanying Simon in his projected crusade for the inclusive security plan drafted at Anglo-French conversations here early this month will be Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal and disarmament expert, it was indicated.

Hitler Switches Stand.

Reports reaching official quarters tonight said Germany now has definitly decided to discuss all the Anglo-French proposals instead of just the air plan under which the signatories would agree to go to the aid of any one of them attacked from the air.

British quarters are openly sympathetic with the German view that it should not be required to sign any security agreement with Russia. Despite Moscow's demand that the eastern security pact, long urged by France, be completed, as the British and French originally contemplated, the former were described as confident that France will desert Russia's side and accept the reich's contention that it should be bound only to neighboring countries under mutual assistance agreements.

Russia's note demanding completion of the Anglo-French program in its entirety, coupled with Germany's first communication, which carefully avoided mention of the proposed eastern and central European pacts, served sharply to emphasize the struggle between the reich and the soviet for supremacy in eastern Europe.

Odds in Favor of Germany.

(Moscow's official press yesterday pictured the Nazis as hungry for war, and hinted they were dickering with Poland for an arrangement to push Russia out of Europe.)

The future prestige of the two countries, diplomatic quarters here said, may depend on the outcome of the negotiations launched at London, with odds apparently slightly in favor of Germany because of Britain's seeming determination to get Hitler back into the European peace framework.

Should Hitler toss a monkey wrench into the diplomatic machinery now grinding away in an effort to convert the Anglo-French proposals into the finished product, however, Russia might well be brought into an alliance of powerful nations against the reich, diplomats said.

Nazis Welcome Plan.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—(AP)—A high Wilhelmstrasse official said today a visit by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, to Berlin at this time would do more to translate the general terms of the Anglo-French proposals into concrete, practical action than any other possible step.

$200,000 AWARDED FOR DAM DAMAGES TO OZARKS ESTATE

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Natural beauty has intrinsic value—and the price may come as high as $200,000 for marring it.

A federal court jury awarded that amount today to owners of the famed Hahatonka estate, acclaimed by Gutzon Borglum and many other artists as one of the wonders of the Missouri Ozarks, for damages caused by construction of the 30 million dollar Bagnell dam.

In 1932 a jury awarded heirs of the Robert M. Snyder estate $350,000, but a higher court set the award aside and ordered a new trial.

The owners claimed the lake of the Ozarks, created by impounding the Osage river for a hydroelectric power project, had overflowed the estate and caused irreparable damage to its beauty. Borglum was a witness for the heirs at the first trial.

PLAN TO CONTROL ARMS TRAFIC HITS SNAG IN HITLER

Britain Shies at Scheme to Rule 'War Potential.'

GENEVA, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, absent in the flesh, was present in the spirit tonight as representatives of the world's powers strove to devise an agreement to control the arms trafic.

Germany and the pending negotiations with her for an inclusive European security plan are shaping the course of the arms trafic conference, Geneva experts said, and Great Britain is treading cautiously lest action here ruin her chances of getting the reich into the security plan.

Particularly apprehensive are the British, these sources said, at Franco-Russian pressure for strengthening the American draft plan so as to provide supervision even of "war potential," the industrial capacity of the great nations.

Sees Danger to Peace.

That, Britain was described as feeling, might destroy the chance that Germany will participate later as well as react unfavorably on negotiations for the reënforcement of Europe's peace.

Lord Stanhope, the British representative, was believed to have had those possibilities in mind when he protested at the charge, made by William Borberg of Denmark, that the British "let's simplify" slogan "might be taken to mean 'let's nullify.'"

To this Stanhope replied that the British merely seek to work out an agreement to which all nations ultimately can adhere.

Echoing in the ears of the delegates as they adjourned formal sessions for the week-end to endeavor to reconcile outstanding differences were the assertions of Ventzoff, Russian representative, that private arms factories were the only enterprises making profits during the economic depression.

Urges Changes in Plan.

Urging changes in the American draft to impose restrictions on private as well as state manufacture, Ventzoff said, "we must know what is going on behind closed doors."

In defending the American plan, Hugh Wilson of the United States described it as a middle of the road attempt to meet a situation sorely needing remedy.

"The question of trafic in arms furnishes more ground for distrust than any one problem," he said. "Provisions dealing with the trafic must be precise and must especially handle implements known as weapons of aggression."

RUSSIA SEES U. S. NEW DEAL GOING TOWARD 'RIGHT'

MOSCOW, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia indicated today that, as seen through Soviet eyes, the United States' New Deal is leaning more and more toward the conservatives. In commenting upon President Roosevelt's message requesting the prolongation of the NRA, Izvestia said:

"It is clear from the President's message that he and his advisers intend to make only insignificant changes from the old form of administration."

Admitting that there has been an improvement in the economic situation, the newspaper said that this, however, had not brought a real betterment of labor conditions in most of the important branches of industry.

"The latest symptoms of the growing tendency of the New Deal toward the 'right,'" Izvestia said, were to be found in "the removal of most of the radical elements from the farm administration and in the violation of promises given the workers for collective labor contracts."

Izvestia said that President Roosevelt, noting the gradual economic improvement in the last four months, considers it unwise to disturb the basic capitalistic complexion of the United States.

ICKES WASHES HANDS OF NAVY SHIPBUILDING

He Only Allocated Funds, He Tells Senators.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Secretary Ickes, called to the capitol to explain what part the Public Works administration had in supervising expenditure of $277,409,459 allocated to the navy for construction of 32 ships, purchase of aircraft and for other naval purposes, made clear today to the senate munitions committee that his authority in the matter ended with the allocation.

This allocation was provided for in an executive order, and was the first approved by the PWA when it began to function in June, 1933, he explained.

Up to Navy, He Says.

"We made the allocations and after that it was up to the navy," said the PWA administrator.

Mr. Ickes said that of $238,000,000 allocated for construction of cruisers and other ships, $66,547,915 had been expended as of Dec. 31, 1934, while $28,041,000 had been expended as of the same date on aircraft and aircraft equipment, improvement of naval shore stations and for other purposes outside the field of actual ship construction.

"Why was the naval construction allocation fixed at $238,000,000?" Senator Vandenberg asked.

"I do not know," was the reply. "The navy worked out the program and the President approved it."

"It is my understanding that while the PWA reserved supervision of the $400,000,000 allocated for road construction purposes it retained no supervision so far as the navy allocation was concerned," said Senator Clark.

"That is right," said Secretary Ickes. "We believed the sum had been carefully arrived at and that the entire amount asked should be allocated. That is what we did."

Nye Asks About Time.

"Is it fair to assume that five and one-half years will be required to utilize this naval construction allocation?" asked Chairman Nye.

"I would not say that, for it is the getting under way, the preparing of plans and specifications, etc., that is responsible for most contractural delays. With this preliminary work out of the way I think it is fair to say that actual construction will speed up."

"Do you consider this the best way to speed reemployment, and was not the philosophy of the naval program to provide quick, immediate employment?" Senator Nye asked.

"Yes, as far as possible, but I may add that I am an executive, not a philosopher," replied Mr. Ickes.

None for Explosives.

He went on to say that as far as he knew none of the money allocated the army or navy had been expended for purchase of military explosives. Senator Vandenberg recalled that immediately after the PWA allocation was made the navy department had advertised for bids for the thirty-two ships included in the 1933 program. He asked if this did not indicate that the navy got busy before the allocation had been made.

"I should think it was to the credit of the navy that they were ready to go to work when the allocation was made," Mr. Ickes replied.

"Is it not the fact that this navy business was handled by the President from the very start?" asked Senator Vandenberg.

"The executive order speaks for itself."

"That is an unfair question," replied Mr. Ickes.

ANDREW MELLON WILL TAKE STAND AT TAX HEARING

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Andrew W. Mellon will testify in his $3,089,000 income tax case before the tax appeals board, his chief counsel, Frank J. Hogan, announced today.

"Of course Mr. Mellon will go on the stand," said Hogan. "We have nothing to hide."

The announcement was the only development in the case, which was recessed over the week-end because of Washington's birthday. No indication was given as to when Mellon might testify, but it may be more than a week before he does.

Attorney Robert H. Jackson, in charge of the bureau of internal revenue's defense of its extra assessment with a 50 per cent fraud penalty on the financier's 1931 income, worked into the night on data.

He is understood to be closely studying an itemized list of all of Mellon's assets and liabilities as of Dec. 31, 1931. This was furnished him Thursday by Mellon's private secretary, Howard M. Johnson.

U. S. JUDGE RULES TVA CAN'T SELL SURPLUS POWER

14 Cities Enjoined from Getting Loans.

a question of legislative enactment, "did not take into consideration whether he agreed with the enactment, but whether congress stepped out of the bounds of reason in passing judgment in the first instance."

The attorney added: "The plans, purposes, conjectures, and wild hopes of the Tennessee Valley authority are not before the court."

Fly pointed out that for years the government had found little use for the power generated at Muscle Shoals "except to be milked by the company which the plaintifs represent."

During the forenoon Judge Grubb had interrupted the argument of William C. Fitts Jr., associate TVA counsel, who asserted the sale of power by the TVA was to prevent waste, to remark:

"If there was a question of doing an illegal business or having a product go to waste, as I see it, the government would have to let the product go to waste."

Judge Grubb, in reply to a question of Fitts as to whether there was any difference between selling power to the Alabama Power company and transmitting it to municipalities for sale, said:

"There is a difference between the government going into the daily business of selling and of leasing. The daily business might be a benevolent dictatorship on the part of the government, but I have never been able to bring myself to see that the United States had any right to go into a retail business."

Contends Power Exists.

Fitts told the court the sole question to decide was whether congress had the power to authorize TVA to build or purchase transmission lines, and this, he said, congress could do.

Congress in enacting the TVA measure, Fitts said, adopted the best plan for a unified and coördinated development of all the resources of the Tennessee river and utilize all resources for improvement of navigation, flood control, and other values.

Johnston said the moment the TVA carried power beyond that point its transaction became illegal and "a detriment to private industrial development in the Tennessee river area.

Holds It Unconstitutional.

"Whether its activities are under the guise of navigation, flood control, preparation for war, or just playing Santa Claus to the residents of the area, such disposal of power is unconstitutional."

The plaintifs brought the suit after the Alabama Power company entered a contract with TVA to sell 14 distribution systems, transmission lines, and the site for Joe Wheeler dam to the TVA. By the sale the utility virtually would have withdrawn from northwest Alabama.

The TVA already is serving Tupelo, Pontotoc, and Alcorn county, Miss.; Athens, Ala., and Pulaski, Tenn., with current at wholesale rates.

To Take Immediate Appeal.

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 22.—(AP)—David E. Lilienthal, power director of the Tennessee Valley authority, said tonight that an immediate appeal will be taken on the decision of Judge W. I. Grubb of Birmingham "in order that the Supreme court can authoritatively determine the meaning of the language of the act" creating the TVA.

"Judge Grubb in his oral ruling made today expressly disclaimed holding the TVA act unconstitutional, as urged by the Alabama Power company stockholders," Lilienthal said in a statement.

Confined to Definition.

"The trial judge's ruling is virtually confined to the meaning of the words 'surplus power' as used in the act, holding that by those words congress did not confer upon the authority the powers TVA believes congress granted it.

"The effect of the decision upon TVA activities is to defer the transfer to TVA of certain transmission lines in northwest Alabama, purchased from the Alabama Power company.

"The authority's operations, including construction activities on three dams and the sale of power to various communities, is in nowise affected by the trial judge's decision, and will proceed as usual."

"MAYOR SUSPECT" TO LEAVE TODAY FOR SPRINGFIELD

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A 70 year old Los Angeles "newsboy," identified by more than forty persons as John Schnepp, former mayor of Springfield, Ill., wanted on a charge of embezzlement, will leave tomorrow for the Illinois capital in custody of William J. Matterman.

Matterman, chief clerk of the Sangamon county sheriff's office, visited the aged man today, but said the prisoner showed no indication of recognition, although Schnepp and Matterman formerly were friends in Springfield. The prisoner, who said he adopted the name of John Mason here, claims he lost his memory two years ago.

The Illinois official said Schnepp is specifically charged with embezzling $32,000, but said he believed the defalcations charged to the missing mayor will amount to $400,000.

U. S. Files Lien Against Miss Stanwyck, Frank Fay

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Barbara Stanwyck, screen actress, and her husband, Frank Fay, owe the federal government $984 on their 1933 earnings, it was alleged in an income tax lien filed in federal court today. William C. De Mille, playwright and director, was named defendant in liens totaling $5,329 for a five year period from 1924 to 1928 inclusive.

SIXTH OF STATE ON RELIEF; NEW RECORD REACHED

Cost for March Will Be 14 Million.

Relief expenditures for Illinois in March will reach the unprecedented total of $14,318,479, with a record number of 325,215 families on the rolls, according to estimates approved yesterday by the relief commission at its weekly meeting. The previous record expenditures were those approved for February, although the estimated expenditures of $12,683,397 were about $775,000 less than was expected, due to the difficulty in obtaining funds.

The March case load of 325,215 families, almost one-sixth of the state's total population, upsets the record of 322,000 families established two years ago, in March, 1933.

Work Relief to Cost $5,826,000.

In the rising tide of expenditures is $661,735 for "special activities," including $305,438 for salaries of non-relief workers whose aid is deemed necessary in connection with work relief projects. This item is exclusive of regular administration expenses estimated at $1,111,767.

Regular work relief wages, continuing their upward trend in the direction of the President's all-work relief program, are expected to consume $5,286,436. With material costs estimated at $135,091, the total expected outlay for work relief alone in March comes to $5,826,965.

It is intended to boost the number of family heads employed on work projects from 113,000, for this month, to 130,523. This will still leave 239,658 families to be supported on direct relief, at a cost exclusive of administration of $7,021,250.

Cook county's share of the regular unemployment relief funds was estimated at $8,018,200, to care for 155,500 families. Work relief will be given to only 53,000 family heads here, as compared with 77,000 for the rest of the state. Officials said this is because of the greater difficulty in securing work projects in Cook county that meet government requirements.

Higher Rent Proposal Rejected.

Chief Statistician Robert J. Myers explained to the commission that next month's expenditures will be about $1,635,000 higher than this month's figure, partly because five pay days for work relief "clients" fall due in March.

To meet the financial needs the commission expects to have $3,000,000 in state funds, $11,241,697 in federal funds, and a balance from February of about $113,000.

Confronted by these figures yesterday, the commission members shrank from a proposal that they approve a new policy for paying rent for relief families on a "decent and adequate basis." This would add about $760,000 a month to expenditures, it was pointed out by Chairman Robert J. Dunham. The proposal was tabled.

It was conceded that the landlords have held the worst end of the rent problem for several years now, the commission's present policy being to pay rent only after a relief family has been evicted, in order to get it new quarters.

The commission discussed its appearance before the joint session of the state legislature last Tuesday and decided to do something to lessen the complaints heard there about the lack of "home rule" in relief matters in the 101 downstate counties. On paper, the citizens' committees in the counties are the rulers, but not in practice, one member declared.

Lack of Diplomacy Criticized.

"The district representatives of the commission [each having five or more members under his control] are the splinter in our system," said Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, a commission member. "They have autocratic veto powers over the county relief committees, and too often fail to use any diplomacy in exercising their authority."

It was voted that Executive Secretary W. S. Reynolds should determine a means of modifying the power of district representatives.

The commission indicated it would act to remedy the "discourteous attitude" of relief staf employés generally, following up a second charge made by legislators. Chairman Dunham declared there is "too much broad ax and not enough grace" in employés' treatment of the public.

$6,000 Mink Coat Stolen, Store Manager Reports

R. D. Erwin, manager of Blum's Vogue, 624 South Michigan avenue, reported to Central police yesterday that a $6,000 mink coat had been stolen from the store on Feb. 19. Mr. Erwin said he suspected a woman who visited the store on that day, placed a $5 deposit on a $150 cloth coat, and departed. He did not report the theft then, hoping the woman would return.

FARLEY DEFENDS RELIEF POLICIES OF ROOSEVELT

Avers New Deal Within the Constitution.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Postmaster General James A. Farley, chief speaker at the Washington birthday dinner of the Creve Coeur club here tonight said that a better, happier nation was the goal of President Roosevelt.

Farley depicted Roosevelt as a capable leader and said the United States need not fear for the future. He said that the President was on the right track; urged control of relief money be given to him and assured 750 listeners from all parts of the midwest that conditions in general were improving.

"President Roosevelt came to his office at the climax of a situation unparalleled in the life of the republic," said Farley. "I need not tell you men how bad that situation was.

Nation Looked for Aid.

"The country looked to the new President to straighten things out. For a time he was unhindered and unhampered because the nation was in such a state that any course that promised even an effort to make things better was felt to be a blessed relief from the period of drifting and inaction. But in a short time politics came again into the picture and the 1934 congressional campaign was on.

"The President's critics keep insisting that this or that branch of emergency service has broken down. What the people generally think about it was indicated by last November's election, when practically every senatorial candidate who had supported the President's policies was reëlected and practically every man who had taken an opposite tack was defeated. And the same was true in even greater measure as to the house of representatives.

"Slow, Arduous Process."

"There is no easy, swift method of correcting such a situation as that in which the country found itself two years ago. It's a slow, arduous process to rebuild national prosperity. Our President works no miracles. What has been accomplished has been the result of the deepest thought and utmost of which he is capable.

"Undoubtedly some are impatient. Undoubtedly some regard the new processes with apprehension. Every step in our progress has frightened somebody. But after all, what is there to be afraid of? All that is being done is what the constitution permits, and all that is being done is being done under the direction of a stout-hearted, conscientious President, with no wild theories, such as taking the profit out of business, but a simple purpose to make this a better, happier country than it has been during the last few years."

VISITS BRIEFLY IN CHICAGO.

Hot towels and a barber's blade were more important than Huey Long to Postmaster General James A. Farley as he spent an hour in Chicago yesterday en route to Peoria, where he spoke last night.

"Make it snappy, fellows," Farley said to the cameramen on his arrival at the Union station, but for the reporters he had only "no comment on anything."

This included Senator Huey Long's reading of the Farley Peoria speech to the senate some thirty hours before it was released for publication.

ROOSEVELT'S BIG WORKS PROGRAM NOW DEAD ISSUE

Senate Recommits Bill to Committee.

new bill for the appropriation of 1 billion 880 million dollars. He pointed out that this would carry on the present system, now costing about 150 million dollars a month, for a year.

The move to recommit the works bill led to the immediate conclusion in the senate chamber that the idea of a works program was being abandoned and that the direct system, or dole, was to be substituted. Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], raised for the first time in the course of the present debates his charged of wholesale waste and political favoritism in the administration of the present system, and demanded that the new bill take this into consideration.

Demands Strict Accounting.

Senator Borah would have a strict accounting system, whereby the authority in Washington would exercise control over all expenditures, even after they are turned over to state administrations.

The raising of the subject of politics precipitated an acrimonious debate on the new move to provide 10,000 jobs for "deserving Democrats" in the CCC camps, on salaries paid out of federal relief funds.

Senator Daniel O. Hastings [Rep., Del.] drew attention to the fact that 130 million dollars of the 880 million dollar appropriation for direct relief requirements was to go to the CCC camps. He then read newspaper accounts of the Democratic caucus in the house yesterday, at which Speaker Joseph W. Byrns told the members of the plan to provide jobs for 10,000 Democrats as foremen and superintendents of the CCC camps.

"I regarded this article as startling, so much so that I took the trouble to verify the information," Senator Hastings declared. "There have been many complaints here about the senate delay in consideration of this bill, particularly from Speaker Byrns, who complimented the house for its dispatch in putting the bill through.

Reason for House Speed.

"I'm wondering whether this promise of 10,000 jobs, all for members of the house to pass out, the senate being excluded, had anything to do with the speedy passage in the house. I am wondering what the laboring men of the country, who are asked to work for $50 a month, are going to think about these 10,000 jobs for deserving Democrats, paying $110 to $200 a month. I am wondering how much of this four billion dollars is to be spent for similar purposes."

Majority Leader Robinson did exactly what Senator Hastings wanted him to do. Instead of denying that relief funds were being used for political purposes, he entered into a defense of the spoils system and said Hastings was one of the country's leading spoilsmen when the Republicans were in power.

"I am glad," said Senator Hastings, "that I have at last succeeded in tearing off the cloak of deception worn by the Democratic party ever since they began this relief business."

PANAMA WANTS GOLD, NOT U. S. CHECK FOR RENT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Maintaining the recent Supreme court gold decision strengthened its position that gold obligations under the 1904 treaty cannot be paid off in devalued dollars, the Panamanian government next week will decline to accept a treasury check for $250,000 if it is tendered for the 1935 rental on the Panama Canal Zone.

It was learned on good authority the Panama government intends to return the check to the treasury, as it did last year, and ask for gold coin instead as specified under the 31 year old treaty. Panama contends this treaty cannot be altered or modified by one government without consent of the other.

That Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, Panama minister to Washington, has discussed the matter with state department officials this week following the Supreme court decision has been established.

However, new Panamanian representations are expected at the legation when the annual payment falls due Feb. 26.

It was indicated that Panamanians will point to the Supreme court viewpoint that congress cannot abrogate gold obligations of the United States as judicial corroboration of its previous contention.

Holland to Increase Navy in Pacific; Foresees War

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Feb. 22.—"The Dutch East Indies fleet will be reinforced with a view to the possibility of conflict in the Pacific," Prime Minister Colijn announced in parliament today. "In case of war Holland feels certain that the Dutch Indies fleet will also have the support of the big powers." He meant, according to parliamentary experts, the American and British fleets against Japan.

ALABAMA WIDOW REFUSES RELIEF, SUPPORTS THREE

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Unexpected fame came today at Greenville, Ala., to an obscure Butler county widow as state relief authorities and civic clubs formally acclaimed her "Alabama's most courageous woman of 1934."

Mrs. Irene Davis, who poverty stricken with three small children to support refused to accept government relief and battled her way to economic independence on a small farm near Greenville, bore her honors easily as tributes to her industry and courage were paid at a banquet at Greenville. The banquet was tendered here by the Lions club.

Thad Holt, Alabama relief administrator, presented her a silver cup in token of her fortitude. Mrs. Davis received telegrams and letters from all parts of the country.

Last year when her parents died she was left homeless. After many efforts the rural rehabilitation loaned her $100. She obtained an abandoned farm rent free and borrowed a mule. Her 14 year old son did the plowing. For use of the mule she and her 11 year old daughter hoed in her neighbor's field.

Despite insects and drouth she harvested her crop, although she never had farmed before. She repaid her loan and sold the surplus and stored and canned enough foodstuffs to last all winter.

FAIL TO DETERMINE DEATH CAUSE.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict stating that Theodore E. Rust, 35 years old, died from an undetermined cause. Rust was found unconscious in his room Tuesday at the Elks' hotel, 632 South State street, and died Thursday. His skull was fractured.

On Way to Britain

Charles Laughton, British actor, and his wife, Elsa Lanchester, stopped off briefly in Chicago yesterday en route to their home in England from Hollywood. Laughton has just completed his part in the new motion picture, "Ruggles of Red Gap." The couple will sail from New York today.

JOIN THE SWING TO "BOTTOMS-UP"
KENTUCKY STRAIGHT WHISKY

"BOTTOMS UP" has literally swept across America from coast to coast as thousands see the opportunity to enjoy this really quality whisky without having to pay a high price for it.

Low in price! But actually made in a costly way. For "BOTTOMS UP" is made with a very high percentage of the costly small grains. These small grains give it the rich flavor and delightful aroma that sets it apart from other whiskies. It is made by a formula famous for 65 years in Kentucky. It is a genuine Kentucky straight whisky, made the more effective—the sour-mash way. Aged naturally at least a full year before bottling. Aged in warehouses kept at controlled summer temperature and humidity the year round. Then ester tested for mellowness before a drop goes into the bottles. Only a Distillery with the tradition, experience and 65-year-old background of Brown-Forman could produce such a product. Try one bottle of "BOTTOMS UP." You will join the thousands that are switching to this great whisky.

'Good', 'Bad' Trusts in U. S., Declares Richberg in Speech

Miami, Fla., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Donald R. Richberg opened the administration drive for a consolidated public pressure behind the new NRA bill tonight in a speech arguing for a measure flexible enough to allow a distinction between "good" trusts and "bad" trusts.

Speaking at a meeting of the committee of one hundred, the director of the national emergency council said:

"We still need laws to prevent the development of monopolies and those restraints of trade that place barriers across the highways of commerce and enrich the few through the impoverishment of the many.

More Laws Needed, He Says.

"But we also need other laws under which trade and industrial associations can be organized and can carry out, under public supervision, carefully devised programs for the production and distribution of the largest possible amount of goods and services so as to provide the greatest possible material comfort and security for the largest number of the American people."

The Richberg speech was made at a time when in Washington plans were being shaped for an inquiry into NRA practices preliminary to the working out of a new bill to continue the agency for another two years.

Richberg said it must be freely admitted that adequate measures to bring about coöperation within or between trades and industry were made virtually impossible by the sweeping prohibitions of the anti-trust laws.

Would Safeguard Public.

"On the other hand," he said, "those laws were enacted and were necessary to prevent combinations operated solely for the advancement of private interests at the expense of the public interest.

"So long as the dominant purpose of consolidations, trade agreements and trade associations was to control production and prices so that a special group could make excessive profits at the expense of business rivals or consumers, the claim that the public would eventually benefit had little validity or sincerity.

"The distinction between 'good' trusts and 'bad' trusts never gained much popular support.

"There is, however, another distinction which must be made between combinations to restrain healthy trade and coöperative efforts to restrain unhealthy competition.

"We have moved into an industrial civilization in which it has become absolutely necessary to outlaw those business practices that in the end are destructive of commerce."

YALE TO LIMIT BRAIN TRUSTING BY THE FACULTY

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The federal government may have to turn to sources other than Yale in the future for its brain trusters.

President James Rowland Angell told graduates at the alumni day exercises today that Yale "must certainly curtail appreciably in the future the amount of [political] service in which members of its faculty may at any one time engage."

"The situation has at times reached proportions which have not been free of embarrassment," President Angell asserted.

The speaker said controversies resulting in the political fields to which Yale men may be drawn would reflect seriously on the university.

The president turned from politics to athletics, assailing mercenary tactics in college sports.

The speaker said he had no quarrel with those who favored commercialism in college sports, but added that Yale should seek to maintain athletic relations with institutions which entertain substantially the same ideals as itself.

TRIBUTE IS PAID WASHINGTON AS A CONSERVATIVE

Children and Adults Join Birthday Celebrations.

In Chicago ceremonies memorializing the 203d birthday of George Washington yesterday, the note constantly struck was one of alarm at the departure in the trends of national politics from the political philosophy followed by Washington and embodied by the men of his time in the constitution of the United States.

Civic leaders, patriotic groups, military organizations, and children of all ages joined in the celebration held at Washington shrines. In every instance loyalty to the principles to which Washington devoted his life, and to the ideals which motivated his actions, was reaffirmed by those who took part in the tributes.

500 D. A. R. Members Meet.

One of the most representative of these gatherings was that of 500 Daughters of the American Revolution at the Hotel Stevens, where Dr. Gordon Keith Chalmers, president of Rockford college, gave a naddress on "American Conservatism."

"The conservative," said Dr. Chalmers, "is a saver—a saver of essentials. It was this theory in its highest form which George Washington and his associates shaped in the nation's constitution. The political theories of these men were founded on a clear understanding of the duality of the higher and lower sides of human nature.

"And in every crisis in Washington's life he proved that his loyalty was to the ideal of the constitution, not to the day to day whims of the 'peeple.'"

Likens His Ideals to Burke's.

Washington's ideals, Dr. Chalmers said, conformed exactly to those of Edmund Burke, the one friend of the American colonies in the 1770s and '80s in the British parliament. And Washington's principles, the speaker continued, were aptly stated by Burke in a letter sent to Burke's constituents in which they were told that his duty was not to ask for what they wanted "today or tomorrow, but for what the sober second thought of the community will want in five years."

"An example of the trend away from Washingtonian ideals is the recent decision of the United States Supreme court on the gold cases," Dr. Chalmers said. "I'm inclined to think that we will hear more of that gold decision.

"If the New Dealers feel that what happened is a victory there is a great shame upon them. Members of the court, both among those writing the deciding opinion and those who dissented, have made it clear that they did an unconstitutional thing. It was a matter purely of expediency, of bowing to the demands of the moment."

Observes a Change in Interest.

In recent years, Dr. Chalmers continued, the nation has been more concerned with the national income than with the principles of the constitution.

At a series of other meetings oaths of allegiance to the constitution were taken by throngs. American Legion posts, national defense units, National Guard and reserve army organizations, Boy Scout troops and elementary and high school students took part in these exercises.

One of the services was held at St. James' Episcopal church, Wabash avenue and Huron street, where 500 men and boys took part. Washington himself was an Episcopalian and the occasion was a corporate communion of the Episcopalian laity of the city.

Pageant Is Held at Church.

Fifty young men and women gave a Washington pageant and drill at the St. John Presbyterian Institutional church, Harrison street and Hoyne avenue. The group also honored the Rev. Dr. Pasquale R. De Carlo, who celebrated his 72d birthday.

Attorney Floyd E. Thompson will speak on the life of Washington at a luncheon today to be given at the Great Northern hotel by the Illinois society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

CHIEF OF AUSTRIA PLAYS "GAME" TO DODGE PARIS REDS

PARIS, Feb. 22. — (AP) — Kurt Schuschnigg, closely guarded chancellor of Fascist Austria, spent his first day in Paris today in a round of receptions and official courtesies with only short talks on political problems.

For a brief while Schuschnigg conferred separately with Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin and with Foreign Minister Laval. To prevent communist demonstrations his engagements were announced erroneously. He went to Flandin's office, flanked by police, when it was said he was expected at the foreign ministry.

Between lunch at the presidential police with Albert Lebrun, dinner at the Austrian legation, and a visit to the opera in the evening, the Austrian leader discussed with French ministers the proposed Danubian pact sponsored by France and Italy to assure his country's independence.

Schuschnigg was smuggled into Paris last night. Police took him from his train 25 miles outside the city while 1,000 communists awaited him in the station here to stage a demonstration.

Aurora Embezzler Will Be Paroled from Penitentiary

Frank H. Riddle, 44 years old, formerly a real estate dealer in Aurora, is to be released on parole from the Joliet penitentiary in a few days, according to an announcement made yesterday. Riddle pleaded guilty to embezzlement and was sent to prison in February, 1932. His sentence was one to 10 years. It was estimated that his clients lost $200,000 through his dealings.

George Koop Enters Aldermanic Battle

George Koop, printer, has announced his candidacy for alderman of the 38th ward on the Socialist ticket. Koop, who lives at 4023 North Leamington avenue, was unanimously indorsed by the Chicago Typographical union, No. 16, and the Chicago Federation of Labor. He has been campaigning for various offices for forty years.

PRESIDENT QUITS CAPITAL TODAY FOR BRIEF REST

Lays Wreath on Tomb of Washington.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Having led the nation in commemorating the birth of George Washington, President Roosevelt was preparing tonight to leave the White House early tomorrow morning for a brief vacation.

The President will entrain at 9 a. m. tomorrow for Boston, Mass., arriving in time to participate in the initiation of his son, Franklin Jr., into the Fly club, Harvard undergraduate society of which the President himself was a member.

Leaves Boston Tonight.

Leaving Boston tomorrow evening, his special train will arrive at Hyde Park, N. Y., site of the President's country estate, the next morning. Mr. Roosevelt will remain at Hyde Park probably until Wednesday night.

While on his trip he will complete his message to congress on shipping problems, sending it back to his secretary, Stephen Early, for transmission to congress Monday or Tuesday. Mr. Roosevelt worked on the message today, but did not come to the executive offices from the White House proper because of the tional holiday.

Lays Wreath on Tomb.

Late this afternoon the President motored the seventeen miles down the Potomac river to Mount Vernon, home of George Washington, to lay a wreath on the tomb of the first President.

Accompanied by his military and naval aides, Mr. Roosevelt entered the modest red-brick tomb and placed his wreath on the sarcophagus.

Congress Hears Address.

The house of representatives and senate both heard the reading of Washington's famous farewell address adjuring his "friends and fellow citizens" to abstain from entangling alliances abroad and to preserve the constitutional government of the United States. Washington's message which he made public Sept. 17, 1796, was read to the senate by Senator Warren Austin [Rep., Vermont], and to the house by Representative D. J. Driscoll [Dem., Pa.].

Services in honor of the first President were held throughout the day by various patriotic and veterans' societies.

ANNE REYNOLDS' BANK PROTESTS FORSAKING PLAN

Winston-Salem, N. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Cabarraus Bank and Trust company of Concord, co-guardian of little Anne Cannon Reynolds, filed a supplementary petition with Forsyth Superior court today protesting against suggested abandonment of the proposed settlement of the late Smith Reynolds' $30,000,0000 trust estate.

The tobacco heir's brother, R. J. Reynolds Jr., and his sisters, Mrs. Nancy Reynolds Babcock and Mrs. Mary Reynolds Bagley, who proposed the settlement, this week suggested that the proposal be dismissed unless it could be considered without reference to the disputes among the litigants.

They made particular reference to the contention of Mrs. Anne Cannon Reynolds-Smith, their brother's first wife, that her divorce was illegal and consequently that Libby Holman, his second wife, and her infant son, Christopher, should not share in the estate.

In a reply to Mrs. Annie L. Cannon, grandmother of little Anne and her co-guardian, the bank denied the existence of a Cannon family feud "in so far as it concerns C. A. Cannon."

First Prize to Girl

Marie Feehan, pupil in the Rhodes school in River Grove, won first prize in the Americanism essay contest for the seventh and eighth grades of the Cook county schools, which was judged by ten members of the Daughters of the American Revolution, it was announced yesterday.

Second prize was won by Tracy Walker of the Lemont public school. Mrs. Julian Goodhue, state regent of the D. A. R., awarded the prizes.

The winners were conducted on a tour of the Art institute, which donated a reproduction of its Stuart portrait of George Washington to each of the 400 pupils who submitted essays.

WOMEN TO HEAR MANY NOTABLES AT CONFERENCE

Sessions Open Tuesday in Palmer House.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

From every point of the compass, on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, members of women's organizations of the central west will be converging on Chicago for the most extensive and intensive consideration of present trends yet staged in this part of the country. Belated requests for tickets and letters of inquiry about the program of the Conference on Current Problems, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, kept the headquarters of the event, in room 1107 of Tribune Tower, in a hubbub yesterday.

Final arrangements for the gathering, which will take place at the Palmer house, insure a schedule packed with interest and far from exclusively discussional. Stars of the musical world who will lend their presence and their talents at each of the five sessions during the two days make up a bevy of headliners, each with his or her own quota of admirers throughout this area, to supplement and enhance the list of speakers.

Mayor to Welcome Visitors.

There'll be the lovely soprano of prima donna, Berenice Taylor of radio station W-G-N, whose solos will provide an overture to the welcoming address of Mayor Kelly. There will be Lawrence Salerno, the Neapolitan baritone of W-G-N, to inaugurate the Tuesday afternoon session in his inimitable manner. That evening petite Sara Ann McCabe, coloratura soprano of the Edgewater Beach hotel, will carol "One Fine Day" and other favorites.

Mario Fiorella, the American born, European trained young baritone heard here during recent opera seasons, will head the program of Wednesday morning. And at the closing formal session of Wednesday afternoon the widely popular Mark Love of the staf of W-G-N will provide a trio of songs.

Love will replace Dorothy Page, who leaves Monday for Hollywood to take a series of screen tests.

To close the conference two features have been planned for Wednesday evening. The first will be a tour of inspection through the plant of THE TRIBUNE at 7 o'clock. The second will be a preview of Paramount's newest spectacle, "Ruggles of Red Gap," in the theater of the Chicago Women's club, 72 East 11th street. Both will require reservations in advance, and will be by ticket only.

Leading Players in Cast.

Charles Laughton, Charles Ruggles, Mary Boland, and numerous other outstanding players are in the cast of the film version of "Ruggles."

The speaking program, in its final form, adds one more attraction to the Tuesday evening session. Dr. Charles H. Phifer, president of the Chicago Medical society, will summarize the fields in which medical science is concentrating to protect and promote the health of women.

Two speakers announced on the tentative programs, Louis Brownlow and Miss Agnes Nestor, will not appear because of absence from the city. Mrs. Raymond S. Simons of Highland Park, an attorney and chairman of the Illinois League of Women Voters committee on the legal status of women, will oppose Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews of Washington, D. C., in the debate on the equal rights amendment, in place of Miss Nestor, who must attend a labor gathering in Washington.

ON CLUB PROGRAM

Mark Love, singer, who will appear on the program of the woman's club conference.

BRITISH MINISTER IS SHOUTED DOWN BY UNEMPLOYED

"Down with Starvation Rule!" Is Cry.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Shouts of "Down with the starvation government" and "Down with the unemployment slave bill" were hurled at Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, tonight when he addressed a meeting at Bradford.

About 2,000 persons were jammed into the hall, including a large percentage of the unemployed, who are incensed at the government's effort to reduce the dole. Hecklers started their offensive immediately upon Chamberlain's appearance and he was unable to obtain a hearing until the chairman threatened to call in the police. He warned the interruptors that they were liable to a $25 fine for disturbing a public meeting.

The opposition calmed down a little and for a time Chamberlain was allowed to speak, but the uproar again broke out later. Two hecklers were ejected.

Lloyd George Assails Cabinet.

Chamberlain also was a target tonight for the verbal shafts of Britain's wartime prime minister, David Lloyd George. Speaking at Manchester, the veteran Liberal statesman bitterly attacked the government, and the chancellor in particular, for what he described as a broken promise to examine his "new deal" plan.

The national government, through Chamberlain, he said, had announced it would carefully study his proposals and then had turned them down without ever asking him to furnish the details of his scheme. Lloyd George insisted he is indifferent as to what party carries through a reconstruction policy. He said he had made no stipulation as to the inclusion or exclusion of any individuals in or from office.

"And I have certainly never given a hint that I am anxious to join the government myself," he added, replying to criticisms that he is trying to establish a dictatorship.

Assails Cabinet for Timidity.

He poured scorn upon the cabinet for its timidity in handling the unemployment problem, and he attacked the treasury for its "policy of hoarding instead of spending to aid recovery."

He advocated a big program of national development and the use of Britain's tarifs as a bargaining weapon to decrease international trade restrictions and restore world business. He proposed to set up a "body of able and responsible business men and economic thinkers" to survey unemployment and appoint experts to prepare plans to carry out necessary remedial measures.

"There should be no difficulty in finding useful, profitable, and reproductive work," he said. "As far as capital is concerned, the dole itself can make a substantial contribution toward expenditure. In five years you would save between $2,500,000,000 and $3,000,000,000 in the dole alone and the trade revival would increase the revenue in every direction."

About 7,000 persons were present and accorded Lloyd George an enthusiastic reception.

EYE FOR PULCHRITUDE IS NOT DEMANDED OF MILWAUKEE POSTMEN

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Postmaster Peter Piasecki today assured his postmen that judging the beauty of damsels on their routes is not one of their duties.

He gave the assurance after receiving the following letter from a northern Wisconsin man:

"I have been corresponding with a lady on the east side of Milwaukee, whom I have never met. I am enclosing her address and perhaps the mail carrier on the route will take a good look at her and will inform me if she is pretty."

SEE NEW FIGHT AGAINST MAKING 'UTILITY' OF COAL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Unexpected opposition to legislation to make the vast soft coal industry a public utility was foreseen today as a result of a move to bring anthracite within its scope.

An amendment to make this change in the coal bill by Senator Guffey [Dem., Pa.], was proposed to a senate interstate commerce subcommittee by Charles F. Hosford Jr., of Pittsburgh, representing the Coal Control association of western Pennsylvania.

Coal men promptly predicted the bill would draw the fire of Pennsylvania's anthracite operators. A representative of the hard coal men at once began to prepare their case for the committee.

Hosford told the committee the two branches of the coal industry were natural competitors in some markets and should be under the same regulations. He said about 55 million tons of anthracite are produced annually in Pennsylvania in comparison with about 90 million tons of bituminous coal.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America and one of the chief advocates of the bill, voiced his opposition to any consideration of anthracite in connection with the Guffey bill. "Anthracite presents a problem of its own," he asserted, "and was omitted from this bill by design."

The anthracite industry, unlike soft coal, has no NRA code. Miners in the anthracite industry are strongly organized.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 22.—The unemployment total has passed the half million mark, according to figures issued today. On Feb. 16 there were 501,117 registered fully unemployed. This is an increase of 4,217 over the previous week, and 153,386, or 44 per cent, over the corresponding week of 1934. Slight comfort is being taken in the fact the weekly increase was smaller than it has been for a long time. During the week in question 754 foreign workers were deported, but only 52 were allowed to enter France.

Vincent Sheean Reveals Growth of a Philosophy

'Personal History' Record of Development.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Personal History," by Vincent Sheean. [Doubleday-Doran.]

THERE have been enough newspaper men in the fact and fiction of literature to have created in the minds of the world a "type." In truth they are all as much in the same mold as all of the occupants of a street car are alike. There is no more a typical newspaper man than there is the typical man in the street car. There are only individuals exhibiting typical reactions to general stimuli.

Vincent Sheean, writing his autobiography at the ripe age of thirty-five, has had many of the most exciting of the stimuli possible in the life of a newspaper man. He started his real work on a New York tabloid, he went to Paris and worked on the European edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, he interviewed premiers, he went through the occupied Ruhr and Rheinland, he came up against dictatorship in Spain, he achieved a spectacular personal success and was called the modern Richard Harding Davis in his encounters with the Rifi. That success sent him about the world on "personal adventure."

He went to China when the revolution was blooming, he pursued communism into Russia, he spent a year being drawn through the knothole of an American lecture season and a good Irishman, escaped to Palestine to do propaganda for Zionism, and finally left journalism forever.

In the material which Vincent Sheean has to hand there is as much potential excitement to the square inch as in the lives of the most "typical" newspaper man. In the beginning of his book he says that he began his journalistic career with a "professional indifference to the material of journalism" . . . and he was able "to treat M. Poincare exactly as I might have treated any other element in the news of the day, the beggar who had been enriched by an eccentric millionaire, a film star in a motor accident, or a prize fighter who was going to America. The professional indifference to the material of journalism did not endure. As months and years passed, as I acquired a steadier, more intimate acquaintance with the struggles going on under the surface of smooth black print on white paper, the craft itself [i. e., the art of putting those struggles into the smooth-running print] lost its fascination, political interest deepened to political passion, and I came in time to 'take sides' and have opinions, feel them as deeply and express them as violently as any amateur. In so doing I only reversed the familiar procedure by which a good many of my colleagues having begun with beliefs and enthusiasms, ended in callous indifference toward all human effort."

I quote that long paragraph because it points so clearly not only the course of "Personal History" but it explains the peculiarly impressive quality of the book. From a "type" an individual develops in its pages . . . and that, in literature, is always fascinating.

Like the hero of a well planned novel, Vincent Sheean develops psychologically from callowness to an adulthood which knows what the German philosophers called "weltschmertz" and has a conscience toward humankind. Mr. Sheean's is out of Puritan America by soviet Russia. There is something very important about the growth of a social conscience, no matter what form that growth takes. Whether the reader goes the same path that Mr. Sheean takes or not does not matter. Whether we feel as he came to feel about sovietism, about the relations of the Jews and Arabs in Palestine, about the future of Europe does not affect the reader's keen interest in the author's reaction to them.

Many of his readers will feel that the author was converted to a new philosophy of human relationships not through his mind, but through his emotions, through his love for Rayna Prohme, who worked so passionately for the Chinese revolution that she was "literally burning to ashes, just as the shell she had discarded was to be burned to ashes in the crematorium."

The love which Rayna Prohme inspired in Vincent Sheean was (one feels as the book is ended) the great motivating force of his personal emotional and intellectual revolution. The pages (very few, when one realizes that perhaps, in fact probably, every page is the result of that relationship) which are devoted to Rayna Prohme are the subtlest, the most intense in the book. They state a situation as modern as the split second on this moment's stop watch, as old as the long shadows on the setting sun on the Nile.

Vincent Sheean was a "smart" young reporter sent out to China to do whatever stunts might add to his following among American newspaper readers who so readily attach themselves to "personalities" in the press. Rayna Prohme was working, with her husband for the revolutionary party in China, closely associated with Mme. Sun Yat-sen and the Chinese soviets.

Rayna Prohme and Vincent Sheean were both from Illinois. They were contemporaries. They understood each other with that strange intuitiveness of mutual time and place of heritage. But there was no thought of love—in the accepted sense—between them. She was dedicated to an idea with a glowing passion. Soon Mr. Sheean began to see life, social relationships, the future through her eyes. His description of the subtlety of his love for Rayna Prohme is the material of great romance.

As a record of the post-war generation that was too young to go to war and old enough to be sorry that the war was over because it cheated them of participation, "Personal History" is more than the story of one young man. That young man has enough of all young men of his day to be "typical" in the same sense that Vincent Sheean, foreign correspondent, had enough of all good newspaper men in him to be "typical."

So, in one sense, "Personal History" is typical of a period and of a profession. But in the larger one, it is the frank record of the growth of a human being.

There is one definite lack, to me, in the pages of "Personal History." Vincent Sheean, who writes with authority and dignity and, at times, a definite charm, unfortunately writes without humor. Himself, he is an "amusing" young man. He has the gay patter as well as the solid reality of his generation. But his book is without lightness. And just so far is it not typical of either his period or his profession.

"Personal History" was chosen as their February book by the Literary Guild.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK

R. A. J. Walling has written a good many stories with Mr. Tolefree as their center, but never one nearly so good as "The Corpse in Green Pyjamas" [Morrow]. In fact, Mr. Tolefree used to be one of those supercilious amateurs turned private inquiry agent whose airs and graces annoyed and confused a good many American readers. He has now shaken off these idiosyncrasies and in this rather absorbing book does a very nice bit of work.

The setting is picturesque—a feudal castle above a South England fishing village whose inhabitants have lost about everything but the castle and their feudal attitude. A number of small mysteries interlock to make one greater one, but the pyjama-clad corpse is the sole casualty, and how it got to be a corpse is the main issue. In life it stirred up a good deal of trouble for better men than itself, and in death it proves itself a first class rotter. Certainly that corpse is the story's villain and its only one, but to the end you are kept guessing what it's all about and just how shady all and sundry may turn out to be.

Then Mr. Tolefree in the face of opposition, justifiable but baffling, comes through with not a loose thread hanging. It isn't often that a murder story ends triumphantly for everyone, including the guilty parties, but this one leaves a very pleasant impression in its wake. I have made it sound, perhaps, a little innocuous to those who like their criminals good and bad and their crimes numerous and gory, but even to these I recommend it as something different and very interesting.

Writes History of Decoration Used in Homes

Sarah M. Lockwood Volume Factual, Charming.

"Decoration, Past, Present, and Future," by Sarah M. Lockwood. [Doubleday-Doran.]

It is not often that such an interesting, charmingly written book on interior decoration comes from the publishers' presses as this new one by Sarah M. Lockwood, already known for her "Antiques," and "New York, Not So Little and Not So Old."

Not only does the author give a broad survey of the subject, starting with Egyptian times and ending with our own modern architecture, furniture, and furnishings; she also includes a timely little essay on "The Meaning of Decoration," the why and wherefore of it, and at the end of the volume prints a chronological chart so that you can follow the decorative periods in France, England, and this country at a glance.

Here is a splendid book for the beginner, for the person with artistic tastes who wants to learn more in the fine art of making one's home beautiful, but who is apt to be bored by a mere historical account of period furniture, textiles, and the rest. Miss Lockwood takes the facts and embroiders them so charmingly with her own personality and flair for expression that her book cannot fail to strike a responsive chord with almost every reader.

On the subject of Empire furniture, Miss Lockwood is most expressive: "It became thoroughly bad tempered, overbearing, gouged out with carvings of lions claws' grasping the world globe, with acanthus leaves as strong as cabbages, with bigger and better sphinxes. . . . All of Napoleon's character is in these ostentatious and vulgar things; no dignity, not even a real sense of pomp; only an overweening and somehow pitiful ambition to impress."

'In the Shadow of Liberty' Is Story of Ellis Island

"In the Shadow of Liberty," by Edward Corsi [Macmillan], is not only the record of one American immigrant's success in a new world but the story of Ellis Island during the years between 1931 and 1934, when the author was United States commissioner of immigration and naturalization for the New York district. Mr. Corsi's life story is stimulating and enlivened with humor.

Richard Church Pens Novel of Post-War Era

London Publishers Active in Spring Trade.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—The London publishers are getting into their stride and all the new books for the spring season are being actively prepared and commended. Among very interesting new novels is one by Richard Church, whose "High Summer" was a success of three or four years ago, and whose "Apple of Concord" [Dent] will represent something of a new departure for this author.

Mr. Church used to be a government servant, but he has now abandoned the task of keeping the population in work for the hardly less arduous task of directing the publishing policy of Messrs. Dent. In his leisure hours he writes novels and criticism.

And "The Apple of Concord" is quite definitly a post-war story of men and women with a post-war attitude to life and morals. It centers about a man whose affairs have taken a bad turn and who secures the post of secretary to a wealthy American resident in Paris. For many pages we live among some exceedingly odd and original people, and the hero survives arrest by the Paris police on a charge of murder. But the murder is only one of many remarkable incidents in a story which is likely to provoke much comment on account of the queer folk who move so convincingly under the author's cool eye and pursue their own amatory and political ends with such determination.

In the same list as Mr. Church's book is a new novel by F. C. Boden, who wrote that beautiful and striking little first-hand story of real life, "Miner" [Dent]. "Miner" was followed by another brief tale which made rather less impression upon the reading public; but Mr. Boden's third novel, "A Derbyshire Tragedy," which will be published in March, should at least equal "Miner" in interest. It is both vivid and poignant, for Mr. Boden has actually worked in the mine, and he has his own poetic vision which lifts commonplace to the heights.

D. H. Lawrence, it will be remembered, was the son of a Derbyshire miner, and while Mr. Boden's work bears small resemblance to Lawrence's it has an intensity of its own which comes straight from experience as formative and as deeply felt as that which produced Lawrence's genius.

A first novel is just published here which will arouse much interest on account of the author's family as well as upon its own account. This book, "Double Turn" [Collins] is the work of Miss Audrey Lucas, the daughter of E. V. Lucas, famous as editor of Lamb and as novelist, essayist, and publishers' editor.

Miss Lucas has had much experience in her short life of all that happens upon the stage and off it, for she has been an actress and dramatist; but this is her first novel, and it will prove that she inherits at least some of her father's great talent for the tender and benign presentation of life in fiction.

"Double Turn" is a story of theatrical life, full of the author's love of vagabonds and the good-hearted, and much will be heard of it in the near future.

Author Hopes Paraguay Will Win War in Chaco

If you are interested in South American war news and the present unpleasantness in the Chaco in particular, you should read "Paraguay, a Gallant Little Nation," by Col. Philip de Ronde [Putnam]. It tells briefly but with much enthusiasm the author's reasons for believing that small nation to be in the right in its bitter struggle with Bolivia. He blames Bolivia's need for a commercial outlet to the sea for its attempt to get control of the Gran Chaco region. The book is well mapped.

ChicagoTeacher Depicts Life of Ancient Greece

Deals with Simple Affairs; Little of Intellect.

"Artemis, Fare Thee Well," by Helen Carus. [Little-Brown.]

IN "Artemis, Fare Thee Well" Helena Carus, a Chicago teacher and writer, reconstructs the Grecian scene. Beginning with the girlhood of Diotima, her chief character, she traces her daily life through maturity to old age. Through her eyes the reader becomes acquainted with a remarkably vivid picture of the ancients, sees their customs religious and social, is present at festivals and famines, at flute playing contest and priestess dedication, is conscious of the war cloud forever casting its gray shadow on the lives of the people and of that lesser cloud, superstition, also eternally there.

Mrs. Carus' prose is clear, liquid, translucent as an opal, shot with fire and beauty. Many passages are almost blank verse.

Hers is an art completely absorbed with sensation. She depicts every feeling and function of the body. Diotima glorifies a life lived so close to the earth that one is almost a part of it, almost a beast.

Of that side of the Greeks concerned with the intellect—of their vast treasures of drama, philosophy, sculpture and political science the reader is given only a fleeting glimpse. At the very end of the narrative Diotima meets Socrates and imparts to him her wisdom, her theory of love, gained through her physical experiences and her meditations on them throughout her life. Their brief conversations are the only ones in the book that imply the existence of the great minds of the times, and Socrates the only example given.

The author has brought to vivid life again one view of the ancient Greeks. As such "Artemis, Fare Thee Well" is well worth reading. E. D. W.

Vienna, by Stephen Spender [Random], is about the Viennese Socialists in January, 1934.

NONFICTION.

A Witness Through the Centuries, by Reginald Hegy [Dutton], is a record of experiences which have convinced the author that there is a life after death.

Partners in Plunder, by J. B. Matthews and R. E. Shallcross [Covici-Friede], is another Consumers' Research book and is a study of present trends in American life.

Central Banking Under the Federal Reserve System, by Lawrence E. Clark [Macmillan], gives an historical and analytical account of the establishment, development, and operation of the federal reserve system.

Surgeon Bares Grave Evils in Security Plans

Dr. Ochsner Tells of Trials in Germany.

"Social Insurance and Economic Security," by Dr. Edward H. Ochsner. [Bruce-Humphries.]

THE interest of Dr. Ochsner, a distinguished Chicago surgeon, in social insurance long antedates the advent of the California Utopians, the appearance of the sympathetic sex in the cabinet and the writing of the pending bill for economic security. He, as a young doctor, acted as an assistant in the clinics at Berlin, Hamburg, and Leipzig, operated in connection with the social insurance scheme Bismarck gave Germany.

Since discontinuing the official connection many years ago he has kept himself informed about the methods, progress and results of social insurance by reading everything he could lay eyes upon on the subject and by frequent visits to Germany and other countries. He has, moreover, maintained an active interest in governmental affairs and has served his state on welfare boards and commissions.

With this background and experience, what Dr. Ochsner has to say about social insurance merits careful consideration. His conclusions and the facts upon which they were based were first published as articles in a number of medical journals. From these articles the material for this volume was taken.

Proponents of social insurance, and of health insurance in particular, will find nothing to support their position in this work. In the experience of the countries which have experimented he finds the results have been uniformly bad. And with the governmental extravagance and inefficiency which prevails in this country he has no confidence in better results here.

But he is not alone opposed to social insurance, such as it has been, but also as such: Even if the schemes did all it was claimed for them, he would still be against them. For, he points out, they would have the inevitable effect of destroying initiative of a great number of people in whose independent activity progress lies. If we have social insurance, Dr. Ochsner says, it will be at the price of the defeat of progress and recovery.

With Prof. Wallace, Dr. Ickes, Prexy [almost of Wellesley, wasn't it?] Perkins, and other cabinet economists except Dean Dern [he'll be Dern if he does—or doesn't] turning out so many volumes, one hesitates to say an approving word about a new book on the New Deal. Nevertheless an exception should be made here.

In this country, in which social experimentation has become such a fetish that we are about to adopt European schemes without more than brief consideration, it is worth while asking how the schemes have worked in Europe and what would be the consequences of their adoption here. Dr. Ochsner has rendered a public service by asking the questions and answering them from his experience and study. R. C.

FELLOW MORTALS by Marion Strobel

● This is the story of Isobel Ambler of Chicago, whose sensitive beauty caught three men: a cartoonist, a dancer and a doctor,—and of Thurber Lamb, the morose cartoonist, who once tried to seduce her. What happens to her strange love affairs, and how she finally adjusts herself to the shifting world about her, makes a fascinating chronicle as interesting as it is intensely human. 300 pages. $2.00.

FARRAR AND RINEHART

By the author of "THROUGH THE WHEAT"

IN TIME OF PEACE

By Thomas Boyd

A story of immense power and scope—of Hicks, a young American who comes to grips with life in the mad decade of the 1920's. Hicks, ambitious, impulsive, an idealist tinged with cynicism, is a vital provocative character. His story as told in "Time of Peace" will arouse discussion everywhere it is read. S O S CALLS SENT OUT BY 4 SHIPS IN BAY OF BISCAY

Crew of One Disabled Vessel Is Rescued.

New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Battered by a terrific storm, four freighters in the Bay of Biscay today sent out SOS calls, sending rescue ships hurrying to their aid.

The crew of one freighter, Talde, an Italian vessel, was rescued by the S. S. Galea, wireless messages picked up by Radio Marine corporation said. There was no loss of life.

Three other vessels were disabled and one—the Ottinge, an English ship—was sending up distress rockets after wirelessing SOS messages that her steering gear was down.

Salvage Tug to Rescue.

The French salvage tug Abeille No. 22, messages picked up by Radio Marine said, was en route to aid her. The tug reported seeing the rockets at 6:10 p. m. [C. S. T.]. The Ottinge is an English vessel, formerly named the Lord Rhondda, and sails out of London. Her gross tonnage is 1,744.

The Caterina Madre, 4,019 ton freighter of the Corrado Line, radioed she had lost a propeller 50 miles north Cap Ortegal, Spain. The tug Seefalke was endeavoring to reach the Caterina Madre to tow her to port.

Largest of the three ships in distress, the Juventus, a 4,920 ton freighter owned by Sociazone Commerciale de Navagazione, wirelessed that a member of the crew had been swept overboard. Her message did not say what was wrong.

A dispatch from London said the British steamer Branksome Cline, reported disabled with a broken steering gear in the North Atlantic yesterday, had made temporary repairs. The vessel is proceeding to Clyde. All of the 27 members of the crew were reported safe.

Japanese Aid Grounded Ship.

TOKIO, Feb. 23 [Saturday].—(AP)—A destroyer and a seaplane were dispatched from the Yokohuka navy base today to the aid of the British steamship Catherine Radcliffe, grounded on the southeast coast of the Boso peninsula outside of Tokio bay.

Although the ship and crew were in no immediate danger, experts said refloating it would be difficult.

GENERAL STRIKE IN N. Y. BUILDINGS OFF UNTIL MAR. 4

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Action in the threatened general strike of 14,000 building service employés in the Bronx was postponed until March 4 as a result of a temporary agreement reached early today by union officials and representatives of the property owners in the office of Borough President James J. Lyons, who acted as arbitrator.

At the same time, James J. Bambrick, president of the Manhattan local of the Building Service Employés' union, invited building owners in the fur and garment area to negotiate individually with the union following the collapse of blanket negotiations last night.

Mr. Bambrick gave assurance, however, that no new strikes would be called in that area before Monday. Pickets were on post today at the Salmon buildings, 42d street and 5th avenue, and at 322 8th avenue, where owners have defied the union with strike breakers and armed guards.

The tentative agreement provides for classification of the borough's 8,000 apartment houses in two groups according to the number of tenants and the total rentals, with employés in the larger buildings to receive minimum wages of $80 a month and in the smaller buildings $70 a month.

Argentina Again Disputes British Claim to Falklands

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 22.—The Argentine government today again denied Great Britain's sovereignty in the Falkland Islands. The minister of interior ordered the cancellation of police identification certificates issued fifteen and sixteen years ago to two persons born in the Falklands. The certificates state that the holders are British subjects. The cancellation order says the holders are to be given certificates of Argentine citizenship whenever they present themselves to any Argentine authority.

POST IS FORCED DOWN; HE'S "MAN FROM THE MOON"

Oil Leak Halts Flight in Substratosphere.

Post related the incident upon his return here after his plane was forced down by an oil line leak only 125 miles from his start from here. It was his first attempt to break the trans-continental speed record by flying at an altitude of seven or eight miles.

Lands on Mojave Desert.

With his motor silent, the flyer dropped out of the clouds and landed at Muroc Dry lake, an extinct salt lake in the central part of the Mojave desert. The only sign of life in the vicinity was a man working on the motor of his automobile.

"I saw him as I was coming down," said Post, "but he didn't see me. With his head under the hood he didn't even hear me as I walked up to him after landing. I stood right at his side and tapped him on the shoulder."

Helmet Terrifies Man.

Dressed in his rubber pressure suit, an oxygen helmet over his head and face, and other paraphernalia strapped to his hobbled body, Post was not far from resembling an apparition from Mars or a nightmare.

"I guess the sight of me dressed as I was almost was too much for his heart," Post related. "He turned ashen, his knees buckled, and he nearly toppled over."

Horror stricken, the man ran to the other side of his automobile and stood there quivering while he peered through the car at this specter that haunted him.

"Finally he got up enough courage to step from behind the machine when I assured him that everything was all right and that I was human," the flyer said.

"Right Out of the Moon."

"'Gosh all fishhooks!' the local man said, 'I was scared stiff. I thought sure you must have dropped right out of the moon.'

"After our laugh I told him I wanted help and he assisted me in finding a place to send a telegram to the airplane factory in Los Angeles."

Undaunted by his failure in his first attempt to break the cross-country speed record by flying through the substratosphere, the one-eyed 'round the world flyer declared he would try the flight again in a few days. He said he feared, however, that he had lost his good weather and would have to wait a while for another favorable time.

BOLIVIA CLAIMS GOLD SHIPMENT FOUND IN BROKEN MAIL BAG

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Gold worth $155,234, found kicking around the Buenos Aires postoffice Wednesday, was shipped out of Bolivia without that government's permission, it was revealed tonight.

Immediately Bolivia started diplomatics efforts to recover the 273 pounds of the precious metal on the grounds that its shipment was contraband. A note the Bolivian minister, Casto Rojas, presented to the Argentine government asked this country to seize the gold on behalf of Bolivia. Both postal authorities and the Bolivian legation declined to reveal who shipped the metal.

An exchange monopoly exists in Bolivia, and therefore it is illegal to ship gold without permit from the government. A postal employé discovered the huge shipment of gold, with which was $500,000 in paper money, when one of the sacks containing it burst open. The original official explanation of its lack of ownership was that papers in the shipment differed slightly from the customary procedure.

BURNING PLANE DIVES INTO SEA; SEEK IDENTITY

New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—An unidentified airplane was reported today to have burst into flames and crashed into the sea near Saba in the Dutch Islands, West Indies. A message received by the United States coast guard cutter Unalga at San Juan, Porto Rico, described the airplane's fate but darkness fell without its identity being established.

First reports caused fears that the plane might be one of the Pan-American Airways bearing James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, from Miami to St. Lucia, West Indies. But late today the air line was informed the Roosevelt plane landed at St. Johns at 4:52 p. m. central standard time. The Pan-American plane had passed over Saba Island at 3:30 p. m., about one hour and a half after the other airship was reported to have met disaster.

A dispatch from St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, said no information had been received there about the airplane falling off Saba, which is 150 miles south of St. Thomas. It was suggested that a large British fleet of 25 warships, including the battleships Nelson and Rodney, were in St. Kitt's roadstead today and that possible the plane was from one of them.

Paroled Film Director Gets Job at Hollywood Studio

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Emmet Flynn, former director in the days of silent films, today was back in the movies with promise of a job at Warner's studio, which was responsible for his parole from San Quentin on a charge of breaking jail. Flynn was sentenced last year after walking out of a Riverside county road camp where he had been placed to serve a five month term on a charge of drunkenness.

FRENCH CHAMBER APPROVES FOUR ACCORDS ON SAAR

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 22.—The French chamber of deputies today ratified four accords affecting transfer of the Saar territory to Germany. The accords were reached by the league of nations' committee of three at Naples on Monday.

In asking for the approval, required before the end of the month, Foreign Minister Pierre Laval paid tribute both to Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy, who presided over the negotiations, and to the German delegates, who, he said, "Gave loyal collaboration."

The accords relate to the Saar mines, railroads, insurance and the property of persons leaving the territory with the end of league control on March 1.

Laval said French purchases of coal from the Saar were 4,500,000 tons a year before the plebiscite and would now be reduced by 2,000,000 tons. This is equivalent to adding one day's work per month to employment of all French miners, he said.

KEY TO AIR DEATH OF U. S. SISTERS HELD IN LETTERS

Coroner's Inquest Is Set for Monday.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Coert du Bois, American consul general at Naples, and Mrs. du Bois will arrive here tomorrow to claim the bodies of their two daughters, Elizabeth, 23, and Jane, 20, who leaped to death from an airplane near London yesterday. The bodies are lying in the police mortuary at Romford, Essex, near London.

Two letters which were found in the empty cabin of the plane when the horrified pilot landed without his two passengers will be handed to the parents after the coroner's inquest Monday.

Letters Seen Key to Mystery.

Not until the letters are opened will the reason for the suicide of the sisters be known. There is much speculation, but no one knows whether the letters will reveal a tragedy of love, despondency over illness—it is said Jane suffered from asthma—or youthful disillusionment.

It is possible that the letters will reveal Jane was married. The landlady of a small hotel in London where the sisters stayed last May and June said she saw a wedding ring on Jane's finger and that Elizabeth sometimes introduced Jane as a married friend.

No one whom the sisters might have seen on their last secretive trip to London came forward to throw light on the tragedy. If they saw any one and there was a lovers' quarrel, the secret was well kept. Their spells of crying in Paris and London a few days before their death are still unexplained.

Discount Love Motive.

Belief that the tragedy was caused by despondency over the deaths of two British flyers, Flying Officer J. A. Charles Forbes and Flight Lieutenant Henry Longfield Beatty, who were killed in a crash at Messina last week, was discounted by friends of the sisters. It was pointed out that one of the officers was engaged to an English girl. Friends of both the men said a mere acquaintanceship was struck up with the Du Bois sisters at Naples.

Mr. and Mrs. du Bois left Naples by train this morning and are due in Paris around noon tomorrow. They will be met here by officers of the American consulate general, including Consul Franklin C. Gowen, who knows them and who identified the bodies yesterday.

Actress Gets Unique Engagement Gift

JAPAN ABSOLVES AMERICAN CREW OF ESPIONAGE

TOKIO, Feb. 23 [Saturday].—(AP)—Army officers after an investigation today cleared the American tanker Elizabeth Kellogg of suspicion of espionage, the newspaper Asahi said in a dispatch from its Yokosuka correspondent. Officers from headquarters of the fortress commanding Tokio bay gave the Americans a clean bill after the inquiry.

The vessel, under charter to a Japanese firm, will be free to proceed to Osaka as soon as it is refloated, probably this afternoon.

Suspicions of army and naval officials were aroused when the ship became grounded yesterday in the military zone at the entrance to Tokio bay on a spot which commanded a splendid view of the defenses.

SLAIN AS WOMAN LOOKS ON; HER HUSBAND HELD

Biloxi, Miss., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A man identified by police as Larry Clare, 48, connected with a Detroit service company, was shot to death in an apartment here today in the presence of Mrs. H. R. Long, 42, auburn haired estranged wife of a Detroit restaurant man. Long, the husband, 64 years old, was arrested by police and accused of the slaying.

Police Officer Sidney Brielmeyer said Long admitted the shooting and that it was "lucky his wife got away."

Mrs. Long ran out of the apartment to the home of a neighbor. She told police that she had been in Biloxi for two weeks, that Clare had been ill and that she had been nursing him.

Clare was shot down as he opened the rear door of his apartment to admit a man he thought was the ice man, Mrs. Long told police. He was clothed in pajamas.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict that Clare met death by being shot by Long.

FRENCH POLICE LINK MURDERED MAN WITH REDS

CANNES, France, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Police expressed belief tonight that a political crime might be back of the mystery of the death of a man whose body was washed up on the beach today near the gambling casino.

He was identified as Arthur Gallaume, 54, a Belgian, and an autopsy showed he had been shot to death. His body was then thrown into the sea, apparently with a weight attached, where it remained for three weeks. Papers found in Gallaume's hotel rooms showed he had relations with communists, police said.

They said they also found old visiting cards of Nicolas Tikhmenieff, former first secretary of the soviet embassy in Paris. Tikhmenieff left Paris in 1927 and afterward served in Tokio. He is understood now to be minister to one of the Scandinavian countries.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

Senator Glass' memorable speech on the 5 billion dollar relief bill boils down to this:

In spite of everything that has been done thus far to diminish the nation's productivity, discourage progress and invention, and destroy accumulated wealth, a rescue can still be effected. Soon it will be too late.

Soon it will be too late. Today, said the senator, the banks hold more than 15 billion dollars of the government's outstanding debt of 28 billions. The banks have been maneuvered into a position where they must take the new treasury issues in order to maintain the market price of those they already hold, for if the market price of government securities falls materially the banks become insolvent.

"I am reliably informed," said Mr. Glass, "that a depreciation of 10 per cent in government bonds would render insolvent 90 per cent of the banks in this country."

Those with the intelligence to understand its implications will recognize the gravity of this warning. No voice in the senate dared challenge Mr. Glass' figures or his conclusions. Every senator knew that a 10 point drop in government securities has taken place many times in our history. It can happen again, and if it does this country faces the choice between wholesale insolvency of its financial institutions and an inordinate expansion of the currency.

More disquieting even than the words of the senator was the subsequent action of the senate. Far from heeding this warning the majority of the members voted for spending on a scale even above the President's extravagant request.

An uninformed observer might have concluded that there was little or nothing at stake. He could hardly have suspected that the government had deliberately embarked upon a program calculated to destroy precisely those things which in only a few generations brought the country from a savage wilderness to world leadership in wealth and average welfare.

America leads for a variety of reasons and notable among them has been the fact that it has welcomed invention and honored inventors. Other peoples have been slower than we are to improve their methods of manufacture and slower to demand new products. They paid in poverty.

The traditional American belief in progress is as strong today as it ever was. In transportation it is producing the new streamline trains and greatly improved automobiles. In communications the telegraphing of photographs has recently been perfected. Astounding results are being achieved in the applications of science in medicine and all the branches of engineering. The printing art is being steadily advanced. Given half a chance, the scientists, the inventors, and the business organizers will make as astonishing a transformation of our country in the next thirty years as we achieved in the last thirty.

Given half a chance, they will continue to raise the average level of comfort and security. But will they get even half a chance? To put their ideas to work for the benefit of all they must borrow from the accumulations of the past to build new plants and buy new equipment. The government, as Senator Glass has shown, is threatening to destroy all accumulations of wealth. What it is not taxing away is imperiled by an unsound banking policy and the menace of currency inflation. As if to prove that these policies are part of a larger whole, the government has ordered farmers to destroy food and has denied to some manufacturers the right to improve their machinery and processes.

What we are witnessing is a race between recovery and ruin. There are evidences on every hand that recovery cannot be long delayed if inventiveness and organizing ability are given the free hand to which they are accustomed. They cannot win through, however, if Washington persists in pursuing governmental policies which became discredited even in the old world about the time this nation was born.

We are passengers on a ship. The keel has already scraped bottom as if to warn the men in the pilot house, but they act as if spellbound. They are as indifferent to the rocks looming ahead as they have been to the warning shock. If our ship is not to founder the wheel must be spun over at once. Destruction can still be averted. Soon it will be too late.

"BUILD ELEVATED ROADS. SAVE LIVES."

Under the caption "Avoidable" THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, as its regular readers well know, has been publishing a clock to record Chicago's 1935 trafic toll. The list of deaths has now passed one hundred since Jan. 1 and calls for some comment and action. Eventually something must be done to halt this ghastly condition, so why not start now?

AS THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has continually asserted, 98 per cent of these accidents would be impossible on the one hundred sixty mile system of elevated highways that have been proposed by the council streets committee—in 70 per cent of the cases the victim is a pedestrian. Statistics further show that 85 per cent of the automobile trips made within the city are in excess of four miles in length and would be served by the projected system.

Other cities do not hesitate to undertake ambitious plans for the safety and convenience of their citizens—the Newark-Jersey City Pulaski skyway, New York's west side elevated drive, even our own frightfully expensive street widening program that has proved ineffectual. Chicago's financial obligation would be no more than is being spent for the bridge that is to connect San Francisco and Oakland, Cal. Surely the lives of two citizens per day are worth the effort.

Where is the spirit of "I Will"?

REPEAL THE TYRANNY LAW.

A justice of the New York Supreme court held the other day that the state recovery act is an abdication by the legislature of its powers or such delegation of them as is contrary to the state constitution. The fate of this ruling in the Court of Appeals will be awaited with interest in other states that have enacted similar laws. Illinois is one of them. This legislation was adopted in many states at the suggestion and under the pressure of the federal NRA administration. It represents, we believe, one of the most important derogations of state sovereignty devised by the New Dealers. If it stands it will go a long way toward reducing the states to mere federal districts ruled from Washington.

This is a consequence which has no terrors for the professorial planners who, at least so long as they themselves are in the places of authority, wish to draw into their hands all the powers of government over the American people. With them, a "planned society," planned at the center and administered by an army of federal burocrats, is the system of government we must substitute for the constitutional system under which the people of the United States have lived, prospered, and progressed for nearly a century and a half. The latter, they tell us, has failed, and we must surrender individual liberty and the local government which best protects it to place our lives in the keeping of an omnipotent central state.

This is the objective of the New Deal. Amidst all its confused economic and social experiments, it remains about its only consistent effort. Measures are devised and dropped. The effort to absorb the powers and responsibilities of the states, to purchase their liberty from their own money, to bully them into submission, goes forward persistently.

This process must be resisted and defeated by the people and will be, unless they have lost their traditional and wise distrust of centralized power and are willing to give up forever the right to run their home affairs. The courts, some of them, will help in this defense, but defense must chiefly depend upon the people. They must deal with their representatives in their state legislatures and in congress. They must require of them refusal to pass the legislation which is destroying the sovereignty of the states, of which the state recovery acts are an example not to be misunderstood. The act in Illinois, and no doubt in the other states that adopted its like, was put over without adequate public discussion. Resort to the courts is not sufficient. If our legislators at Springfield do not yet realize the implications and certain consequences of their action they ought to be waked up. THE TRIBUNE upon the passage of the Illinois bill placed at the head of this page Repeal the Tyranny Law. The present legislature should repeal it forthwith.

Editorial of the Day

ANY RULES FOR A SKIPPER?

[Cedar Rapids Gazette.]

Over at Ames Dr. Alvin R. Lauer, associate professor of psychology, has been stressing some suggestions for improving efficiency in reading. Among them are:

1. Force your speed in reading, but never read faster than you are able to understand.
2. Keep your mind on the subject matter. If you find other thoughts interfering with your attention, stop immediately and take time out, or redouble your effort.
3. Never allow yourself to articulate audibly or inaudibly. All reading must be silent.
4. Make an effort to see phrases instead of words, and reduce the number of eye movements by cutting down the number of times the eyes are fixed in covering the material.

Now, we have a lot of reading to do, and we grasp eagerly at any and all suggestions as to how we can increase the efficiency of our reading. We intend to practice the above precepts and are sure they will help.

But there is one aspect of our reading habits for which the above program seems to contain no remedy. What, we should like to know, would Dr. Lauer do about a person who occasionally reads by the hop, skip, and jump method?

We do that sometimes. We'll be skimming along through a newspaper, scanning headlines and delving into some of the lead paragraphs, when—bang!—a word or phrase in the middle of some long winded story strikes us smack between the eyes. We stop and read that paragraph. Then we read the paragraph above, to get some of the background for the paragraph we read first. Then we jump down a couple of paragraphs to see whether the article continues to sustain interest. Then we glance up again for a little more background.

Gradually, by this humming bird system of perusal, we manage to read the whole story, frequently ending with the first paragraph. Obviously there is no sense to this procedure, and often it leaves us with a vague, disorganized conception of what we have read.

But what can be done about it? Manifestly all stories can't be construed to suit our tastes, and until we read the parts that appeal particularly to us we don't know whether it's worth while spending time on the other parts. We should welcome Dr. Lauer's advice. So far as we know there is no insanity in our family, and we observe no other symptoms.

MIGHT BE FATAL.

"I say, Jane, isn't it time baby said 'daddy'?"

"No, John; I've decided not to tell him who you are until he gets stronger."—Cornell Widow.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

CARTER GLASS roars right out in the senate that all our money is fiat. I don't know much about money except that it's a rather nice thing to have around, but I do know that "fiat" means "let it be done" and that fiat money is money because somebody said for it to be money. In the old days the paper money used to read something about that bill being good because before it was issued so many gold or silver dollars had been deposited in the United States treasury to redeem it any time anybody wanted it redeemed. I looked at a new five dollar bill I had in my pocket and it didn't say a word anywhere on it about there being five gold dollars or five silver dollars being kept in the treasury ready to redeem it. It just said "The United States of America will pay to the bearer on demand five dollars." But it didn't say what kind of dollars, gold, silver, paper, confederate dollars, stage money or what. It makes me uneasy. I'm going to work that five dollar bill off on some sucker as soon as I can and let him hold the bag. I don't like that "Let it be done" money. I'm afraid I'm the one that's going to be done.

RETURN.

I came to England, rapt with hopes and dreams,
And I have found what there I thought to find—
Contentment, in the midst of haunting fears;
Assurance, not to subtle perils blind.
I found the marks of sacrificial years,
But, as her storied streams
Still onward flow, so England goes her way
Toward high tomorrows, confident and strong—
The English soul is triumphing today.

And now old England vanishes from sight.
Across the deep I seek another shore:
A land where once the souls of pioneers
Grew strong by strife, and loved their lands the more
For all their burdens and their thronging fears.
Still burns fair freedom's light,
But is our country safe? Do we still hold
Aloft the dreams our fathers brought with them
Across the sea? Will future years condemn
The land that bartered God and good for gold?

So ran my thought. But see, sky-vaulting spires
Are now revealed. The mists give way at last.
The Land of Hope reflects the morning gleams.
Our hearts beat high. Let us forget the past—
America is still a land of dreams!
Still freedom lights her fires
Where Washington fought tyranny, alone;
Where Lincoln gave his life that ours might be
A realm from lords and slaves forever free . . .
Our fears were vain, America, our own!

THOMAS CURTIS CLARK.

G. WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY is over and seemed to have passed off very quietly with few casualties. It's a good thing it has passed because there's a lot of people who, with George's shining example before them, hate to lie on his birthday. And in this day and age what else to do when we have to fill out the income tax papers, the personal property blanks, government questionnaires and tell the motor cop we were only going thirty miles an hour when we were whizzing along over seventy? And when our hostess, Mrs. Pouremout makes up a cocktail that tastes like tanning fluid, glue and asafetida and then with a beaming smile asks, "Isn't that a lovely cocktail," can you tell her the truth? Certainly not, but on Mr. Washington's birthday of course the only thing to do in proper observance of the day would be to say "No, it tastes like hell!" It may have been easier to tell the truth in George Washington's day, but now it's almost impossible and still keep up a good front.

CULTURAL THOUGHT FOR THE DAY. Feb. 23: Samuel Pepys born 1632; Sir Joshua Reynolds died 1792. Mr. Pepys (only for heaven's sake pronounce him "Peeps") was the grandest old gossip who ever lived. But not like our gossips today. He never ran all around town spilling the dirt, as we so quaintly say in the American language. Not Sam. He went quietly home and wrote it in his diary. And he wrote it in cipher so that no nosey housemaid could read it and go tattling it back stairs. And it was hidden away in an attic and not found until all the people he gossiped about were long dead. Mr. Pepys had the right idea. Our gossips today ought to follow his example and instead of babbling everything they've heard let them go home and write it down in cipher and hide the book. As for Sir Joshua Reynolds, if he's mentioned to you today just gasp, look ecstatic and murmur, "Oh, 'Mrs. Siddons as the Tragic Muse!' Enchanting! Marvelous! Ecstatic." That'll be enough. It'll show you know everything about Sir Josh. Don't be drawn into any discussion about Mrs. Siddons. I can't tell you about her until we get around to her birthday. You might just make an icy remark to the effect that Mrs. Siddons was really no better than she ought to have been and then say that you think the days are getting longer and that the weather hints of the quick return of dear old Spring.

GUSHING GUSHERS keep rushing up to me and saying, "Isn't it wonderful that Henry Ford could lose sixty-eight million dollars and keep on smiling?" No, I don't see anything in that to marvel at. Henry kept on smiling because he wasn't thinking of the many millions he lost but of the many more millions he still had. R. H. L.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

TOO MUCH FAT.

FOOD is needed by the body to maintain activity. Ordinarily, if an excess amount of food is taken there is a corresponding increase in the burning of food and the production of heat. Carefully collected figures indicate, however, that many persons who are overweight fail to use up excess food and hence store it in the tissues. Thus does the fat person become fatter.

There are several types of obesity, one of which is clearly the result of a hearty appetite that may have been continued from childhood. The individual may have a particular fondness for cream, butter, and fats. Unconsciously, rich foods are selected and coarse, nonnutritious vegetables avoided. Contrary to our general assumption, it has been shown that a very slight increase in food per day may mean much to the body weight in the course of a year. For example, an extra slice of bread taken with each meal, if unburned and hence stored in the body, will amount in one year's time to approximately twenty pounds.

In addition to the rich food eaters there are those who eat large quantities of food. Hunger is quite acute in these people, and food is taken far beyond the point of body needs. The appearance of food is a factor; "it looks so good" being a common expression.

Another type of obesity is that which is definitly the result of some deficiency in the internal secretions, for example, too little activity of the thyroid gland, maldevelopment or absence of the sex glands [with which breeders of animals are familiar], and possibly some defect or abnormal secretion of the pituitary. This latter condition is exemplified in the fat boy or girl with delayed sexual development.

As has been pointed out frequently in this column, the load placed upon the heart and circulation by too much weight is a real handicap. One could carry around two twenty-five pound bags of shot with far less wear and tear on the circulatory system than fifty pounds of fat. The shot would not require nourishment from the blood. Frequently, because of the extra fat load, we may discover high blood pressure in obese individuals that will fall to comfortable levels, if not to normal, under a proper reducing regimen.

Because protein satisfies hunger and helps to avoid fatigue, an adequate protein ration [lean meat] must be our chief reliance. Second in importance to a reduced food intake is exercise—swimming, walking, gymnasium work, including bending and twisting of the body. Exercise should be begun gradually and not continued to the point of fatigue.

Should the metabolic rate be below normal, thyroid extract and anterior pituitary extracts may be used with caution under the watchful eye of the physician.

Any diet restricting system should be started slowly and cautiously. A rapid loss of weight must not be attempted, in fact it may be dangerous. Few obese patients will be benefited by a reducing regimen unless it is maintained for at least a year. For example, if 2,000 calories will hold the weight steady, 1,800 to 1,600 per day will bring about a reduction. A loss of two pounds per week is a satisfactory rate. An individual who is 60 pounds overweight can lose 20 to 30 pounds with a tremendous relief of general body symptoms. The feeling of well-being will be greatly enhanced, strength will be improved, and endurance more pronounced.

A reducing diet will be sent on request if stamped and addressed envelope is inclosed.

CROSSED EYES.

M. C. H. writes: What would cause a person's eyes to become crossed for a few minutes and then return to normal? Some time ago there was a muscle imbalance which the oculist says has been corrected by a prism in one lens.

REPLY.

The position of the eye is controled by muscles which are in turn controled by the third nerve. We can thus move our eyes to the right or left and up and down. Nerve impulses pass to these muscles and enable us to change the position of the eye. The temporary movements to which you refer are probably due to nothing but a spasm—like a cramp in the leg. Of course, there are many diseases that affect the nervous system that could cause such a spasm, for example, arteriosclerosis, syphilis, lead poisoning, certain toxins, etc. Fatigue is also a factor. If the condition does not improve a good ophthalmologist should be consulted.

SORE ON LEG.

Mrs. P. writes: My husband has a sore on the leg which refuses to heal. This sore was brought about by a fall. We have no physician within reach.

REPLY.

If the bone is not involved the following procedure may help: Clean the area thoroughly with soap and water that has been boiled. Use a safety razor to remove all hair from along the inflamed surface. Apply hot cloths for an hour daily, one after another. Then dry the part with a clean sterile cloth. Dust on generously a mixture of powdered hydrastis and boric acid half and half. Cover the powdered spot with a piece of sterile gauze and then bandage. The leg should be kept elevated as much as possible.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

W. C. D. Maile and K. J. L. Scott report in the London Lancet that there is no sound basis for the use of afternoon tea. They note that the ordinary meal remains in the stomach from 3¼ to 4¼ hours, and that tea taken on a stomach that is not entirely empty must be regarded as only "a pleasing interlude." It is their contention that the stomach should have a certain amount of rest before the next meal is taken.

The emptying time of the stomach varies in different individuals, and the size of the meal and the type of food are factors. Will the British nation give up its tea habit? We have our doubts.

IS A CITIZEN.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—[Friend of the People.]—I was born on Nov. 12, 1901, and came to America when I was three years old. The date of my father's certificate of citizenship is Sept. 11, 1922. Am I an American citizen? A. B. C.

Under the facts stated above, the writer is a citizen through the naturalization of his father on Sept. 11, 1922, as he was under 21 years of age at that time.

OUTDOOR SKATING.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—[Friend of the People.]—Why is it that one can't go skating in Lincoln park after a slight snow or thaw? It seems no facilities are provided for clearing the ice or providing a new coating when the ice is roughened due to a slight thaw. A. N.

We regret that our effort to provide exceptional skating facilities throughout the Chicago park district this season has been disappointing to your correspondent. Since park consolidation took effect last fall we have improved and maintained 75 different outdoor skating fields. During the past few weeks the continued thawing and freezing temperatures with frequent light snowfall have made it almost impossible to avoid occasional rough ice. A large amount of labor, much of it including relief workers, has been used in clearing and conditioning the ice, but flooding cannot be resorted to unless the temperature is low enough to solidify the surface in a reasonable time.

R. J. DUNHAM,
President, Chicago Park District.

TITLE TO PROPERTY.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. After paying property in full, we received [1] release deed and abstract. 2. Does our name have to appear on the abstract now, or [3] is it listed with others who have owned this property when we sell it to another? M. P.

1. This implies that your last payments were made on a mortgage and that you had previously received a warranty deed.

2. We do not understand what you mean by "have to." If a deed conveying the property to you has been recorded you could have the abstract brought down to date so as to show this fact. The question whether the vender can be held to stand this expense depends on the wording of the bill of sale.

3. We do not understand the question.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LIABILITY ON NOTE.

Crystal Falls, Mich., Feb. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Five years ago I borrowed money from a party in this country and gave him two promissory notes. As time elapsed and the notes became due I tried paying him in legal tender of the United States, but he would not accept this. He sent these notes to Syria with instructions to file suit for judgment there. 1. Is it possible to file a suit and get judgment there with these notes? 2. If suit is filed in Syria when the notes are five years old, is it then possible to collect them in this country when they are six years old? 3. The payee wishes to gain access to property in Syria, that being the reason he would not accept legal tender. M. U.

1. In general, a personal judgment cannot be secured in a jurisdiction to which the defendant has not submitted himself. If you do not go to Syria and if the notes do not contain a clause authorizing a judgment by confession, then we see no basis for a judgment there.

2. The Illinois limitation period is ten years from the maturity date. Your legal tender would cut off subsequent interest.

3. If you mean that you own property there, he might proceed by attachment there. We cannot advise to advantage without having your facts more adequately before us. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

Contrary to popular opinion, there is no difference between blondes and brunettes in general character traits. Dependability has nothing to do with the shade of skin. Dependability is largely a matter of acquired traits, while the color of the skin is hereditary. Experiments have shown that there is no relation whatever between character traits and the color of the skin, eyes, or hair.

CHILDREN IN GRAVE PERIL.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—In the course of duty as investigator for the Illinois state housing board, I witness, daily, scenes of vandalism on buildings pending demolition. Lacking apparent simian agility, these vandals attack the bottom structure of the buildings, with resultant danger to their own lives and those of innocent passersby.

Today, at 2463 Winona street, I came across a group of little children, ranging from 5 to 10 years of age, clustered under the second floor of this frame cottage. The first floor had been entirely torn away. These small youngsters were tearing away the lumber with bare hands; two possessed small hatchets. There stood this skeleton structure, in imminent danger of collapse, supported only on slender poles that listed to a marked degree.

Calling the Summerdale police station, I requested a guard posted. Every available policeman was being detailed on the coal strike. As an alternative I suggested squads be routed along the street and warn the children away in passing.

It is a matter of amazement that parents will deliberately jeopardize the lives of their little ones, for surely, if the mothers and fathers had given grave and serious warning, I would not have found these youngsters there today.

THE TRAVELER'S RETURN.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—Having just returned from my first visit to Miami Fla., I would like to give my impression of the place. The natives have one object, that of taking all they can away from their visitors. In December ice formed on water and from then until very recently it has been disagreeably cold. The place is overflowing with thieves, racketeers, and a very crude class of people who are undesirable and vulgar. Low flat, sandy tracts with wild overgrowth of scrub palms comprise the scenery. The ocean and sun [when it shines] are all the real attractions. Drinking in profusion everywhere one goes. MRS. CHARLES HALL.

HOW DID HE GET IN!

Chicago, Feb. 12.—I wish to raise my voice in criticism of the immigration officials for their negligence in allowing rats like Hauptmann and half wits to sneak into this country at will.

JUDICIAL COMMENT ON EVIDENCE.

Blue Island, Ill., Feb. 15.—I wish to comment on an article in your paper which said that many judges in our state favor a change in our laws giving more power to a trial judge in criminal cases.

As a layman I disagree with them on the grounds that when juries are selected and spends hours or days, and in some cases weeks, listening to evidence, then to be told what verdict to render is a waste of time and money.

Judges, with all due respect to their position, are not immune from being influenced by fluent lawyers who perchance may have a close social affiliation or financial interest in common with them which would make them unfit to dictate the verdict in a trial by jury.

THE RECESSED TEACHERS.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—How much longer must we recessed physical education teachers wait to be reassigned? Why can't we be assigned to grades as the other recessed teachers have been? Why were we sent back to Normal for twelve long weeks to obtain a general certificate, only to be denied an assignment in the grades? RECESSED TEACHER.

REQUEST FOR WEATHER MAP.

Brookfield, Ill., Feb. 14.—It is a good thing to read the weather forecast, but it is interesting and worth while to see on a map how the different highs and lows which cause the change in the weather are moving across the continent. A weather map gives much more information than a simple forecast.

CRY OF DISTRESS.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—I find myself and 200 other fellows in a predicament. We are the students of the Chicago law school. We are placed in a position where, after studying law for about two years, not mentioning the pre-law requirements, we are unable to complete our studies in any school, even though our former credits are good. Our petition has been in the Supreme court for about three months without getting us any relief as yet. Can't we get some sort of relief through the board of law examiners or the Supreme court?

THE HIGHER CRITICISM.

Forest Park, Ill., Feb. 15.—I noted with interest and amusement Mr. McCutcheon's St. Valentine's day cartoon.

Does he not know that a tax notice from Uncle Sam would bear no stamp and therefore the girl friend would have no reason to get excited over such a letter delivered by the mail carrier?

MINNESOTA GIRL BAKES NATION'S BEST CHERRY PIE

Inez Todnem, 17, Wins $100 Annual Prize.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Inez Todnem, a fair haired miss from a Marshall, Minn., farm, whose family tree is strictly German-Swedish, made a cherry pie so handsome and so tasty in honor of George Washington's birthday yesterday that she became the new champion cherry pie baker of the nation.

The contest, for high school girls, a feature of National Cherry week, was held in the Morrison hotel, with state champions from eleven states competing with their best cherry recipes. While the pies were in the oven, the contestants, still in kitchen uniform, were given a luncheon by officials of Cherry week. The contest, fourth annual event of its kind, is sponsored by the cherry industry of the country.

She's a High School Senior.

Inez, who is 17 years old and a high school senior, has had a lot of practice making cherry pies for five brothers and sisters on her father's 260 acre farm.

Promptly at 10 a. m. Inez rolled up the sleeves of her trim green smock and set to work mixing dough in a green and cream mixing bowl. At companion tables were her competitors, most of them in white uniform. Each had brought her own recipe.

By watching the contestants sift and mix, any one could tell that pie making is a serious business. After the mixing a battery of rolling pins swung into action, pretty ones with green handles.

Judges "Test" for an Hour.

With a sort of sleight of hand deftness the contestants got the pie crust ready. Then came the filling, red, ripe cherries, a paper thin upper crust, and a pinching around the edges as mother used to do.

After the luncheon the judges spent an hour testing the pies and grading them. They selected Inez's pie because it was golden brown, flaky, and the tastiest.

Inez will receive a $100 prize which will form the nest egg for her college course in home economics next year at the University of Minnesota. Second prize of $75 went to Claire Marion Acker, Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and third place to Janet Lausten, Port Clinton, O.

"MY LIFE," AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY

Protection versus free trade becomes the issue which every figure in British public life debates. Winston Churchill describes his quest for knowledge on the subjects and his subsequent stand, a significant chapter of British history.

BY WINSTON CHURCHILL.

Winston Churchill (center) with colleagues in British political life. His break with the Tories and subsequent alignment with the Liberal party and Lloyd George is explained in today's instalment of his autobiography.

I had been brought up so far in a period when this question did not exist. The Conservative governments had accepted free trade as a matter of course and their finances had always conformed to its tenets. All the elder statesmen of all parties were free traders. I had never heard the subject seriously discussed. I had hardly read a book on economics. Suddenly this question became vital. It swallowed up all other issues. It dominated the political scene. It repudiated all other loyalties and severed all other political associations. It split the cabinet from end to end and in every constituency the fiercest divisions occurred between leading men. But the mass of the party, especially the working class element, liked protection. Evidently it was in their blood. From the beginning they manifested the most vigorous and lively enthusiasm, and there is no doubt that if they could have had their way they would have swept all their leaders out of power by a great majority and followed "Joe" into the electoral battle.

Up to this point, although I had been a critic of the government in various ways, I had never had any thought whatever of quarreling permanently with the Tory party. I hoped when they got into possession, as seemed certain, I should be able to make myself very useful and agreeable to them. But this new departure raised fundamental issues. I laid aside everything to study the matter. I had no other desire but to discern the truth. Indeed I was well aware of the unpleasant consequences that would attend a quarrel with these Tory masses who had cheered me so loudly in the khaki election. On the other hand it seemed very important to be right on the merits. I read Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations" more thoroughly and John Stuart Mill, and a French writer called Bastiat. These were the great authorities on free trade.

Finds Material Lacking.

I then inquired where the protectionist case was set out. No one could tell me. Apart from the masses of polemic literature now being flung out by the Tarif Reform league, there was no book of the slightest authority which expounded the doctrines of protection. Many countries practiced protection, but no one had apparently attempted to justify it on a priori grounds. The best my protectionist friends could do for me was to furnish me with a series of articles contributed to a current magazine by a well known industrialist. This was disconcerting, because before making up one's mind on a matter that will influence one's whole political life one would like to see the whole argument set out on both sides.

Then came very powerful free trade pamphlets and booklets in shoals which seemed to traverse most of Mr. Chamberlain's arguments and contradict his figures. But the great shock was administered to me when I read Mr. Chamberlain's former speeches against protection when he was a Liberal president of the board of trade in Mr. Gladstone's government in 1880.

Here one saw every single argument that he was now using answered in advance by himself in his own cogent, terse, pithy, clear-cut style. It seemed incredible that any man's reasoning processes could undergo such a complete inversion and still more that the man himself should not seem to worry about it at all.

My mind hardened very much against him at this time. I saw him as a disturber of peace and prosperity, as an ambitious, reckless politician seeking to dominate the Conservative party, as a man ready to exploit ignorance and passion in the hopes of prolonging his reign of power. In all this I did him, no doubt, much injustice. But that is how I felt and that was how I acted.

The Combat Begins.

Henceforth I set myself to combat him and his movement with whatever strength I had, utterly regardless of what might happen to the Conservative party or my relations with it. Though I still hoped I should be able to remain a free trade Conservative, I resolved to pursue the quarrel wherever it might lead me.

A political fight upon a great question which stirs men's passions cannot long be conducted without bitterness. Arguments draw rejoinders; attacks are met with stinging replies; taunts are flung; injuries are given and repaid. With a group of young Conservative free traders of which Lord Hugh Cecil was the most prominent, I denounced Mr. Chamberlain and protection on every platform, and at every opportunity in the house of commons. We carried the war into his own constituency and stronghold at Birmingham and held a crowded meeting in the town hall, while the streets were thronged with riotous crowds.

Speakers Howled Down.

We organized ourselves into a league to prevent especially protective taxes on food. We mustered fifty or sixty members of parliament, including five or six free trade cabinet ministers and former chancellors of the exchequer, the whole under the presidency of the duke of Devonshire, who had himself withdrawn from the government. We endeavored to state our case at the meeting of the party organization at Sheffield. All our speakers were howled down. I alone secured a few minutes' hearing. That was all that was left of my popularity with the Tory masses of four years before.

In Oldham the working men's political clubs where I had the strongest support shut their doors upon me. On the other hand Liberals and Free Traders welcomed me with the utmost good will. They filled my meeting to the doors and heard every argument with delighted attention. When I spoke at Newcastle in 1904 seats were sold in large numbers at 12s 6d for the benefit of the free trade fighting fund. All my friends among the Liberal leaders, Rosebery, Morley, and now Mr. Asquith and Sir Edward Grey, manifested the utmost encouragement and cordiality. I soon became able to expound the free trade doctrin in all its bearings without fear of being led into any unorthodox positions. Distinguished civil servants at the treasury, contrary perhaps to service etiquet, fed me with arguments in defense of their beloved free trade and Gladstonian finance. There is no doubt that a complete community of thought upon a great issue is the natural, honorable and effective bond between men.

Tories Walk Out.

Under these stresses I was soon led to broaden my differences with the Tory party and tended more and more to adopt the Liberal position on every question except home rule for Ireland. But this the Liberals declared would not be an issue at the now approaching election. At length matters reached a pitch when Mr. Balfour directed that the whip or party summons should no longer be sent me. This was of course tantamount to dismissal from the party. Finally one afternoon in the house of commons when I was criticizing Mr. Balfour for his ambiguous and tortuous attempts at compromise between free trade and protection he got up and left the chamber. He was followed by the whole of the Conservative party and I was left alone speaking from deserted benches on one side of the house, while the other side was crowded with cheering Liberals and Irish members. This demonstration was a little spoilt by the fact that many of the Tories who had left the chamber came back to peer through the glass doors in curiosity. But its effect upon me was decisive. I resolved to cross the floor and throw in my lot with the Liberal opponents of protection. I took my name off the Carlton club. I wrote to my constituency tendering my resignation. When I next entered the chamber I took my seat on the Liberal benches next to a young and rising member of parliament with whom I had contracted a friendship, Mr. Lloyd George. We worked together in very close political and personal association, with few serious differences and a great fund of comradeship for the next twenty years.

Personal Friendship Remains.

It must not, however, be supposed that those public conflicts severed my personal relations with either Mr. Balfour or the great Joe. We still met, though less frequently, in society. They always treated me with personal courtesy, always called me "Winston," as indeed did everybody, and preserved not only polite but agreeable relations. Joe indeed at dinner in the house of commons spoke to me in a fatherly way about my political future. "Since you feel as you do," he said, "you would be wise to join the Liberals. There can be no career in the Tory party henceforward for any one who is not at heart an ardent protectionist. I know it is a grievous thing to quit the party in which one has been born and bred. I have done it and can speak from experience. You will have to face the sort of taunts and insults which I have undergone. You will be called a turncoat and a renegade, as I have been. But if a man is convinced upon a great public issue, and this is a very great issue, he should not let such things disturb his judgment or his resolution."

Some years later he said to a Conservative friend of mine, "We ought not to have let him go. It was a mistake. He should have been given an office and bound up in the party." But here he did me less than justice. I have always acted in large matters in accordance with my sincere convictions. When I have made up my mind and worked myself up upon a big question I have never found myself hampered by any consideration for my personal interest. I have always felt more satisfaction in giving free rein to my own thought and feeling than any seeking after political office.

His View Changes.

Nothing would have made me either then or at any other time be a member of a government which carried protection. As a private member I have been bound to recognize the changes which have occurred and are occurring in the economic life of the world and of our country. Now after thirty years I can accept with loyalty the decisions to which the nation has come by such an overwhelming majority. We have adopted the protectionist scheme and I hope we shall apply it with courage and with logic, trying to make it as successful as was free trade in the Victorian age.

Looking back, it seems to me that both sides exaggerated the importance of the fiscal issue. The control of credit, the management of currency, mass production and labor conditions seem to me to bulk just as large as this old struggle about tarifs. We are certainly in a much more dangerous world than that of "free trade, peace and good will to all nations," and we must brace ourselves to meet new perils and problems.

GANGSTER TYPES IN KINDERGARTEN, EXPERT REVEALS

But Crime Does Not Pay There, Either.

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Types of "gangsters" and "destroyers" are found even in the kindergarten attended by children of well to do and refined parents, Dr. Eugenia Hanfmann of the Worcester, Mass., State hospital told a general session of the American Orthopsychiatric association here today.

But "crime does not pay" in the kindergarten any more than in the adult world said Dr. Hanfmann, the pattern of destruction among the babies proving to be the least stable as it disappears as soon as interest is aroused in the mind of the juvenile ruffian in the game or pastime which first provoked the outburst.

She classified kindergarten children on the basis of observations taken while having each child of a small group play with building blocks at different times, each time with a different partner. In describing the kindergarten gangster type Dr. Hanfmann said:

Methods Are Primitive.

"The methods he uses are as primitive as they are effective, grabbing blocks violently, disregarding protestations, denying the other's requests by saying merely, 'no, you can't, they are mine, I will do it myself'; suppressing the other's attempts at activity by force, for instance, by holding his hands, boasting of his own possessions and actions and belittling his partner. In short, the methods used are those of a little gangster. They are characterized by great forcefulness and by complete disregard for the rights and wishes of the other child."

Such Behavior Fails.

A child of this type meets more than his match, however, when he confronts the "destroyers," the juvenile counterpart of the violently criminal adult, according to Dr. Hanfmann.

"He himself does not build," Dr. Hanfmann said, "and when the other child starts building he purposely destroys his work, throwing the blocks to the floor and meeting protests merely with outbursts of laughter. This procedure is repeated until the other child gives up all attempts at continuing his play. As a destroyer this child is invincible.

Such anti-social behavior does not succeed any more in the kindergarten, Dr. Hanfmann observed, than in the adult world.

"We find that the pattern of dominance by destruction is the most effective," she said, "but also the least stable one, because it disappears as soon as interest in the play is aroused. That is why the 'destroyer' may dominate the 'gangster,' yet himself be dominated by children whose primary interest is play and whose methods are far from violent. The pattern of dominance based on expansion of personal power is a much stabler one."

Indian Pygmy Fossil Story Is Revealed to Be a Hoax

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 22.—The recent story of the discovery of pygmy fossils at Vadnagar was revealed today to have been a hoax perpetrated by superstitious villagers and believed by a credulous newspaper correspondent. The origin of the story lies in the superstition that bad luck can be averted by spreading a rumor likely to be believed. The tale first appeared in a local weekly of high standing, whose editors said it came from an "occasional correspondent."

POLICE GET NEW CLEW TO STRAUB MURDER PISTOL

Capt. Martin O'Malley of the Summerdale police yesterday was investigating the story told by Walter Schlagel, 23 years old, 5200 Kenmore avenue, for a possible clew to the solution of the murder of Louis K. Straub, night bartender, in the Saddle and Cycle club on Feb. 3.

Schlagel said that on Thursday afternoon he saw a man remove an object that had been buried in the sand on the lake shore behind the Saddle and Cycle club at Foster avenue and Sheridan road. It was believed the object may have been the .380 caliber automatic pistol with which Straub was slain.

Schlagel said he followed the man for a short distance, but soon lost sight of him. He led police to the spot where he said the object had been dug up. A deep hole in the sand was found there.

Capt. O'Malley said a search of the lake shore had been made previously in the hunt for the murder pistol. The lake, however, is several hundred yards from the scene of the slaying, within the club, and it was not regarded as likely that the slayer would run to the lake to dispose of the weapon, and even if he [or she] did it probably would have been thrown into the water and not buried in the sand, Capt. O'Malley said.

A JANITOR OPENS VAULT DOOR AND FINDS POLICEMAN

Macomb, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—John Mursin, 32, janitor at the Macomb Building and Loan company, is not supposed to know the combination of the vault. But Mursin opened the vault today and walked into the money room. There sat Richard Bailey, a policeman. Sums of money have been missing for several weeks and loan company employés set the trap during the night.

11 STORY PLUNGE KILLS WOMAN; HELD ACCIDENT

Mrs. Mary R. Kelly, wife of Michael Kelly, president of the E. L. Hedstrom Coal company, was killed yesterday when she fell from a window of her home on the eleventh floor of the Barry apartments at 3100 Sheridan road. Members of the family told police they were certain the fall was accidental. Mrs. Kelly, the mother of four children, was 69 years old.

Mrs. Kelly retired to a bedroom to sleep during the afternoon and told a maid not to disturb her. A few minutes later a bellboy told the assistant manager, John R. Loud, that a woman had fallen to the walk in the rear of the building. Loud identified the woman as Mrs. Kelly and called a physician, Dr. A. A. Clark, 4826 Henderson street, who pronounced her dead.

Walter Kelly, a son, told police his mother had been a semi-invalid for some time. The son expressed the belief that she lost her balance when she opened the window, which is adjacent to her bedroom. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

SOLVED AT LAST—THE MYSTERY OF VANISHED SHEEP

The mystery of the missing sheep was solved yesterday by Sergt. John Danforth and his squad from the Stockyards police station. Several farmers have reported recently that sheep which they were trucking to the stockyards had disappeared between the time they entered the city and arrived at the yards.

Sergt. Danforth and his squad, cruising at 47th street and Western avenue, saw three youths lifting sheep from the back of a truck which had been halted for a trafic light. The youths, not noticing the policemen, herded their flock to a barn at the rear of 2312 West 47th street.

The alleged sheep thieves were arrested and identified themselves as Anthony Skusewicz, 18 years old, and Kazimir Kasper, 21 years old, both of 2312 West 47th street, and John Lash, 18 years old, 4639 South Rockwell street. Continued reports of such thefts have convinced police that a number of other sheep stealing gangs are operating in Chicago.

Inn Burns on North Shore, Out of Firemen's Reach

While the fire department of Lake Forest and Lake Bluff stood by helpless yesterday, the Derby Inn at Telegraph and Rockland roads, west of Lake Bluff, rendezvous for the young set of north shore society, burned to the ground. The fire, which caused an estimated $25,000 loss, followed the explosion of an oil heater, according to Thomas Williams, proprietor. The inn stood out of reach of hose lines from fire hydrants. True Jensen and Charles Hedstrom, porters, fled from bed after discovering the fire.

FEAR FOR LIFE OF LAWYER'S SON, SHOT BY POLICE

Shot by police while he and two companions were fleeing in a stolen automobile early yesterday, James Luthmers, 19 years old, 4753 Sheridan road, whose father, Albert, is an attorney, was reported in a critical condition in the Bridewell hospital last night.

Policemen Patrick Groark and John Westbrook of the accident prevention bureau saw the three youths drive away in the automobile of Charles Pelko, 5004 North Lincoln street, which they had stolen from in front of Pelko's home. The chase that ensued ended at Argyle street near Damen avenue where the fugitive car crashed into another. Luthmers was wounded as he attempted to flee on foot.

His two companions escaped but were captured later. They are Robert Morgan, 21 years old, 911 Windsor avenue, and John Wysong, 20, of 4732 Winthrop avenue.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the bowels with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound, known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with constipation and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two at bedtime for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

ICE BREAKS; BOY OBEYS ORDERS AND IS SAVED

Eugene Cooperman, 8 years old, 3853 Ainslie street, owes his life to his ability to obey orders in an emergency. With several other boys he was playing yesterday on the ice over the north branch of the Chicago river at 5100 North Ridgeway avenue, when the ice broke and he was thrown into eight feet of water. He grasped at the ice, which repeatedly broke under his weight, as his playmates ran to the shore and shouted for help.

Policeman Walter Kaden crawled out over the ice, pushing a plank before him and shouting instruction to Eugene to keep his head above water and wave his arms up and down to stay afloat. The boy followed orders.

Kaden stretched out on the ice, his feet held by two other rescuers, Gerald Anders, 2829 Belmont avenue, and Carl Hedweg, 3307 Cuyler avenue, both members of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee, and grasped the boy by the arms. Anders and Hedweg then drew both of them to safety.

BRAZIL SEEKS TO SWAP COFFEE FOR WARSHIPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Swapping coffee for battleships is the proposal which the Brazilian financial mission put today to the British government. Brazil has coffee to burn but lacks battleships. Great Britain's shipyards turn out good warships, but the British must import coffee.

"Let's get together and make an exchange," said the Brazilians, who were led by Arturo da Costa Souza, finance minister.

Britain would like to get an order for warships worth $45,000,000, but the government hesitates to establish a precedent by exchanging warships for coffee, and nuts, manganese, oil and fruit, which also were offered by Brazil.

If the trade is agreed upon Brazil will order three cruisers, four destroyers, and three submarines. Brazilian representatives visited the cruiser and battleship which the British built for Portugal. The vessels are lying in the Thames. The Brazilians tried to buy the vessels from Portugal, but failed.

HUB EMPLOYES HOLD ANNUAL PARTY TONIGHT

With a banquet, dancing, and varied forms of entertainment the employés of the Hub, Henry C. Lytton & Sons, and their families will celebrate at the grand ballroom of the Palmer house tonight in the annual party of the Employés' Welfare association. They will be celebrating a completely successful year in business, officials of the store said.

The party is due to get under way about 10 p. m. with dinner and a floor show being served up simultaneously. Johnny Hamp's orchestra will provide the music for dancing, and each guest will be given a souvenir booklet with cartoons of various well known employés of the store.

This Melodrama Holds Interest; Well Presented

Gene Raymond Heads Cast of 'Transient Lady.'

"TRANSIENT LADY."
Produced by Universal.
Directed by Edward Buzzell.
Presented at the Palace theater.
Story by Octavus Roy Cohen.

THE CAST.

Carey Marshall	Gene Raymond
Hamp Baxter	Henry Hull
Dale Cameron	Frances Drake
Pat Warren	June Clayworth
Chris Blake	Clark Williams
Matt	Douglas Fowley
Maj. Marshall	Frederick Burton
Nick Kiley	Edward Ellis
Fred Baxter	Clifford Jones

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

That title makes you think of the old, familiar sign, "Room and Board by the Day or Week"—doesn't it? But—the picture ISN'T about boarding houses.

The "transient lady" is a professional skater [roller], who with her partner, a slim, dark chap who's in love with her, and their manager, a shrewd, amiable old character, goes from town to town opening skating rinks. After each grand premier, the three stay on for awhile, to eke out more income by teaching the villagers the art of getting around on roller skates without loss of life or limb.

A bunch of hoodlums, headed by the brother of an unscrupulous politician who's a power in those parts, make trouble at the rink. This fracas leads to a murder. The manager flees in panic. Chris is locked up. Dale—to Chris' rescue.

She importunes a handsome young local attorney—he's fallen for her at first sight—to defend her partner. . . .

Does Carey Marshall come to the aid of his rival? And how does the whole thing turn out? Well—these questions are being answered right now over on the Palace screen.

This little melodrama is no world beater, but it has considerable suspense and some good acting.

Gene Raymond, able and likable chap that he is—he's ALSO appearing in person at the Palace this week—does a quietly effective job as the attorney. Henry Hull gives a strange and sinister interpretation of the politician who summons his clan and goes viciously after vengeance. This is the man, you know, who played Magwitch in "Great Expectations"—and is certainly the bird who can make you want to run and hide your head under the covers.

Frances Drake and June Clayworth, two dark and talented beauties, are present in the interest of romance and decoration, and other rôles are ably handled.

The picture is commendably brief.

ENGAGEMENT

Tiny Humans Live in Bottles in Thrill Film

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—One sequence for the mystery thriller "Bride of Frankenstein" at Universal studio shows a number of synthetic humans, brought to life by a crazed scientist, who are so tiny they live in bottles. Trick camera work is responsible for the effect, which is weird and startling.

Living in the bottles in the scientist's laboratory—just regular sized bottles—are a king, played by A. S. Byron; a queen, Joan Woodbury; a bishop, Norman Ainslee; a dancing girl, Kansas De Forrest; a mermaid, Josephine McKim, and a baby, the latter being the midget actor Billy Barty.

Adrienne Ames plays her first American screen rôle since her Paramount contract terminated and she went to England with her new husband, Bruce Cabot, in Fox's "Secret Lives," with Mona Barrie, Gilbert Roland, Herbert Mundin, Paul Kelly and Hardie Albright.

All three leading women in Universal's "Mr. Dynamite" are blondes which is unusual. They are Esther Ralston, Verna Hillie and Jean Dixon from the New York stage. Eddie Lowe plays the detective hero. He is hunting a brunette.

Jim Tinling, director, had a narrow escape when he tried to prevent his too spirted terrier from jumping over the stairway rail of the second floor of his beach home. In grabbing the dog, Tinling's own weight was thrown against the rail, and he fell to the ground, carrying the rail with him. He suffered a long cut over the left eye and shoulder injuries, but the dog was unhurt. Tinling is directing "Gaucho Lover" with Warner Baxter and Ketti Gallian at Fox studio.

Mary Boland lost ten pounds in the illness from food poisoning which kept her out of scenes in Paramount's "People Will Talk" from last Saturday until today. Director Al Santell went ahead shooting with Charles Ruggles and others in the cast. A nurse is kept on the set with Miss Boland. . . . Tammany Young, New York gate crasher, who attached himself to W. C. Fields here, is now playing what amounts to a featured part in the cast of George Raft's "The Glass Key" along with Gunn Williams and Emma Dunn.

Dr. Roy C. Andrews Is Married Ahead of Date Set for Wedding

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Wilhelmina Anderson Christmas of this city and Dr. Roy Champman Andrews explorer, and director of the American Museum of National History, whose marriage was arranged for today, suddenly changed their plans and were married late yesterday afternoon in the Park Avenue Presbyterian church. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Dr. Edmund M. Wylie, the pastor.

Friends said that the desire of the couple for a quiet wedding was the cause of the surprise ceremony which was attended only by a few close friends who were summoned by telephone. There were no attendants.

It was originally planned to have the marriage on Washington's birthday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sheedy, 1088 Park avenue. Dr. and Mrs. Andrews will sail tomorrow on the Pennsylvania via the Panama canal for California, where they expect to remain a month.

Miss Cremin to Be Bride in Colorado

Ceremony Today at Chapel in Broadmoor.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IN the beautiful setting of Broadmoor, fashionable suburb of Colorado Springs, at the foot of Cheyenne mountain, in the very spot where their romance began, Miss Genevieve Noel Cremin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Cremin of Chicago, will become the bride of Robert Henry Perlitz of Houston, Tex.

The wedding, one of the most elaborate ever held in Colorado Springs, so our correspondent there writes, will be celebrated with nuptial high mass in the Pauline chapel at 11 o'clock this morning. The chapel will be a bower of Easter lilies and palms, and lighted with dozens of candles. The Very Rev. Msgr. Joseph P. Morrison, rector of Holy Name Cathedral, Chicago, will be the celebrant, and a mixed quartet will sing the high mass. The Rev. A. M. McDermott of the bridegroom's parish in Houston, will assist, and so will the Rev. Louis Hagus, pastor of the Pauline chapel, and the Rev. John McOscar of Colorado Springs.

Miss Florence Cremin will be her sister's maid of honor, and Miss Anne Perlitz will be the only bridesmaid. Charles Perlitz will be his brother's best man and ushering will be William Cremin of Princeton, Thomas Green of Houston and Ralph P. Giddings Jr., of Colorado Springs. The wedding reception will be held at the Cheyenne Mountain Country club. Mr. and Mrs. Perlitz will live in Houston.

Among the out of town guests who are at Broadmoor for the wedding are the parents of the bride, and her aunt, Miss Mary Agnes Amberg, Miss Kathleen Bagly, Miss Marie Plamondon and Dr. Richard Tivnen, all of Chicago. Charles A. Perlitz, the bridegroom's father, and the younger Charles Perlitz' wife.

Bride Will Wear Grandmother's Veil.

The bride will wear a needlepoint lace and tulle veil, three yards in length, that was worn by her mother and grandmother, and a gown of ivory satin made very simply with high neckline, long sleeves, and a long train. Her veil will be held in place with sprays of orange blossoms and she will carry a shower bouquet of freesias and valley lilies.

The honor maid will wear aquamarine blue trimmed in brown fur and an off-the-face hat of brown horsehair braid. The bridesmaid will wear dusty pink crêpe with a hat and flowers—blue iris and mimosa—the same as the maid of honor's.

The Cremins have had a residence in Broadmoor for many years and it was there that today's bride and bridegroom became acquainted and that their romance developed so they chose to be married there instead of in Chicago.

Admiral Cluverius to Pacific Fleet.

The luncheon that Admiral and Mrs. Wat T. Cluverius will give tomorrow at their residence at the Great Lakes as the navy's welcome to the new commander of the sixth corps area of the army, Gen. Frank R. McCoy, and Mrs. McCoy, also will be the first of many farewell parties for the popular host and hostess, for they are leaving next month for the admiral to take command of the base force of the fleet in the Pacific.

He must be there by April 1 so he will leave Chicago soon after the middle of March. Mrs. Cluverius probably will go east to spend the spring and summer with their children and will not join her husband on the west coast until fall after the fleet maneuvers are over. The Cluveriuses have become very popular during the two and a half years they have been here and every one is sorry to see them leave.

The admiral and his wife, too, are sorry to leave Chicago, for they say they have enjoyed very much their stay here, the longest shore duty he ever has had. The officer who will succeed Admiral Cluverius has not been nominated yet.

Winter Travel Seems a Record

Everyone talks of vacations these days, either of those they just have enjoyed, or of those they are planning for later in the season. Never before have we known of so many winter travelers, which certainly means that times are more prosperous for in spite of low traveling rates, it still takes money to go anywhere and to stay there.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers are leaving Monday to spend a month in Tucson, Ariz. . . . The Hamilton Voses left recently to visit the Spaulding Pecks in Thomasville, Ga. The Sidney Heaps planned to go with the Voses but the illness of their little son—he has measles—prevented their leaving home. Mrs. Heap will go south next week, however, if the baby's convalescence continues to be satisfactory.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and Kellogg Jr., have left for a trip to New York. They will return about March 1 and then Mrs. Fairbank will make plans to go to Mexico City. From there she will go to the Champie ranch at Castle Hot Springs, Ariz., where she will be joined by her niece, Mrs. Frances Bell. Miss Bell's parents and sister, the Laird Bells and Miss Helen, are in Mexico now.

In about a month Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams and Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins will be leaving for New York to pick up their daughters, Mary Adams and Kay Goodman and take them to Nassau for their spring vacation from Dobbs Ferry. Mary

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Hers is a lipstick that puts an end to the chapping woes of winter. It comes with a refill, is perfumed, and stays on well without changing color.

Three lovely lipsticks fell into our eager hands lately; and there is so much to say about them we don't know where to start.

But since the texture of the lip-rouge you use is of special importance in winter, when chapping is a positive menace, we'll start with that; these are greasy enough to give your lips plenty of oil—and a nice sheen besides. There isn't a trace of coarseness in them. And while they're not so greasy as to be sloppy, the rouge almost flows on.

Their color is equally good. There are three shades, good sensible ones that will be adaptable to the widest range of skin coloring. And the tones are true, with no deviation into weird blue, orange or purple tints beneath the outer layer. With these you'll never have the bewildering and irritating experience of reddening your lips to perfection and finding twenty minutes later that they've gone rainbow effect on you. These lipprouges stay on well, too . . . although the makers don't brag, as most do, about their indelibility. And we will say they have, in these, a better right to brag than a lot who do.

These things being as right as they are, it seems almost incredible that there should be still other virtues. But there are. First of all, each lipstick is sold with a refill hermetically sealed in a glass tube encased in gold foil. We leave it to you to decide whether or not that's sensible, although we will say we think it's one of the best brain waves the lipstick people have had in a long time. Popping the refill in when the original supply is exhausted is an easy trick. And the two—original and refill—are sold at the price of the original. The refill is just a gift, as far as we can decide from the price of both as it now stands.

And then, too, the lipsticks have a lovely scent; they're made by a perfumer—and a good one—and given the fragrance of one of their most popular perfumes. You'll love it—and it lasts.

"The Cat and the Canary," was revived last night in a snappy performance by the Flossmoor post of the American Legion. The enthusiasms of the players were applauded vociferously by an audience, composed of the elite of Flossmoor, that crowded the auditorium of the Flossmoor community house.

PEGGY WALL.

PAT MALONEY.

The Legionnaires let it be known that this performance was given in the spirit of a greater Flossmoor and not the mild atmosphere of pale Provincetown.

The play was strictly a mystery, as all oldtimers well know, and the players were so anxious not to reveal the solution that every member of the audience was personally pledged not to make a revelation to the neighbors before the second performance tonight. The play brought out an unknown young actor from west of the tracks, J. Loy Maloney, locally known to his intimates as Old Ironsides.

Mr. Maloney displayed a gift for tragedy that is reminiscent of Maggie Clyne singing "Trow Him Down, McClusky."

The work of the stage hands, Charles J. Huston and Franklin Barber, also was most favorably received.

New Suit Slips Really Marvels for Sleekness

T-Strap Arrangement Keeps Garment in Place.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Wide awake designers have come through with a helpful bit in the way of a new suit-slip. This sounds a trifle previous, but the first brave souls contemplating a tryout for their spring suits as soon as the breezes get warmer will need these knockout inventions.

They are slips made especially for suits. They have been cut by knowing designers without a single wrinkle or bulge to disturb the sleekness or smart tightness of the skimpest spring suit skirt.

They are shorter than the usual costume slip, so any worries are banished about the thing sagging below the hemline. Two models are available. One with a fitted lace brassiere top, the other with the usual lace top. Also in two colors, white and tearose pink.

Such a slip does treble duty for the usual three necessary pieces of lingerie, French panties, brassiere, and slip. A t-strap arrangement holds the slip in place, so the twisting, slide around troubles are also a matter of history.

Other new bits of lingerie extras that hardly any one can resist are some new double chiffon nightgowns. Lovely, very feminine affairs in such effective color combinations as pale blue over pink, mauve over coral, flame over flesh, and black over white. Corded ribbon sashes wind around the high waistline and end in long trailing sashes at the back. Perky bows are tied to each shoulder and they are positively the loveliest new moderately priced lingerie in town.

A new lingerie color to watch is a pale silvery gray. A ravishing shade and perfect with all the lovely laces that trim the newest spring numbers. Deep bertha collars of cobweb fine lace drip over the shoulders and form the yoke.

And do look at the pink satin lingerie trimmed with delicate pointed esprit lace edgings in pale biscuit shade. Or the filet lace in white that frosts the yoke and shoulders of other pink things. Now is the time to find some very exciting new lingerie in unusual colors, with lovely feminine lace trimmings and very modest price marks.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

I'D like to be able to tell you what Charles Laughton is like offstage, but one can't really be sure, in the space of time to eat a lamb chop between trains. I was interested to know, myself, certainly, after having seen him first in that drama of horror, "Payment Deferred," in which he made his first American reputation, and in Henry VIII., and last—a few days ago—in a preview of "Ruggles of Red Gap"—his first comedy rôle, which you mustn't miss, by the way. Anyway, those who had midday breakfast with him and his tiny red headed wife at the Hotel Sherman yesterday found him agreeable, with definite personal charm, wearing gray tweeds and a dark checked shirt. Mrs. Laughton wore a tailored suit, a gray sweater, a blue handkerchief knotted around her throat, and an old fashioned wide gold wedding ring that definitly was anomalous for her type. They sail today for England, where Laughton will stay two weeks, to look at some stories Alexander Korda wants him to look over, then return to Hollywood to do "Mutiny on the Bounty."

Charles Laughton—Candor—Title—Wisecrack.

IT was Thornton Wilder who brought to light that Miss Lancaster had once played the rôle of Little Lord Fauntleroy in London, and played it with such skill that, while the older ones in the audience wept over the dear little lamb, the young theatergoers got her subtle malice and hated, with her, the little snob she was portraying. And Howard Vincent O'Brien confessed over his chop his own reason for hating Little Lord Fauntleroy. He had been dressed like him when small. It was further brought out that Mary Pickford had once played the story in the movies, doubling as Dearest and the little lord. In fact, at one point she had sat on her own knee, some one with a memory for details recalled.

THEIR talk of children and children's rôles induced Laughton to express his jealous envy of two other stars of the cinema. They are Shirley Temple and Jackie Cooper.

"I've seen Jackie Cooper before the camera weeping as if his heart would break, until he made you weep for sympathy, dash off still weeping, and a second later come back beaming to ask joyously, 'Was it okay, director?' I don't see how he does it," Mr. Laughton said.

FLIPPANT signs hung on restaurant walls are no novelty, but one that seems particularly amusing is the one Mrs. Byron S. Harvey encountered when she and Mrs. Helene Pew motored from Palm Springs to Phoenix recently. They stopped for luncheon at the little desert city of Blythe, the last town on the California border. It was a deserted little place, and as they waited for their luncheon they observed the sign on the wall. It read:

"Don't ask for information. If we knew anything we wouldn't be here."

IN the morning mail: "Once upon a time, as a retail merchant, your correspondent employed a young colored man as porter and delivery boy. Frequently he had occasion to make deliveries in a nearby street to an apartment building in which resided one baroness. . . . [Grundlegrip will do for a nom de plume.] Returning once from such a delivery, he had a frown of deep perplexity lining his brow.

"Mistah Charlie, you knows where ah just delivahed a ordeh in that buildin' wheah theahes a lady named Baroness Grundlegrip," he said. "Well, mistah, does that mean that lady cain't have no chillun?"

"CHARLES C. MILKES."

WILL ROGERS, speaking at the fiftieth anniversary of the Inland Press association at the Palmer house the other evening, said he was happy to be talking before the editors of papers in smaller cities. They were the men who really know how to write, he told them.

"In fact, I take the stories you write, change the name Smith to Brown, and sell them back to you," he added.

Home Economics Chief.

Miss Effie Raitt, president of the American Home Economics association, will be a guest of the Chicago unit of the association at a dinner at 6:15 next Thursday at the Cordon club, 410 South Michigan avenue. Miss Raitt will discuss plans for the national convention which meets in Chicago.

CONGRATULATIONS

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

By Eleanor Nangle

which first gladdened the eyes of women readers of this newspaper on Jan. 23, 1934

ELEANOR NANGLE

Its pre-eminence in the field of cosmetic news is indicated by the volume of mail and telephone response from women readers.

In the last seven weeks mail response totaled 1,949 and phone inquiries 11,370—an average of 1,902 per week, and a total for 50 weeks of 49,765 letters and phone calls.

Typical of the response of women to this fascinating feature is that which followed Miss Nangle's article of Sunday, January 27, 1935, describing a new tissue cream. In one day 1,490 inquiries were received on this subject alone!

Keep Away from Water

By Alice Campbell.

SYNOPSIS.

Sarah MacNeil, young American living in London, accepts the hazardous though thrilling post as traveling companion to Miss Christine Venables, prim, kindly, and wealthy, who has been receiving letters that cannot be traced, threatening her life. Miss Venables spends most of the year at Ste. Brigitte, a small resort in southern France. Her nephew, Harry, is to join her there soon. With Miss Venables in London is her widowed sister-in-law, Mrs. Mark Venables, Harry's stepmother. She is in poor health and Miss Venables has Dr. Gilcrest, her Ste. Brigitte physician who is visiting in London, prescribe for her. Dr. Gilcrest treats Sarah with cool aloofness, though she and Harry immediately become friends. That night Mrs. Venables dies. Her death is attributed to natural causes. On the way to Ste. Brigitte Miss Venables tells Sarah that the death threats began after her friend, Maj. Frampton, was killed in a fall down an elevator shaft. She believes he was murdered. She and the major were both threatened by two oriental drug sellers they had prosecuted. Miss Venables' particular friends in Ste. Brigitte, besides Dr. Gilcrest, are the Baron and Baronne Henri de Bellesnaves, Beryl Tomlins, town librarian and harmless gossip, and a few old residents of the resort hotel.

INSTALMENT XII.

FEMININE VANITY.

A tinge of jealousy underlay the offhand tone. Sarah detected it, and felt a secret amusement. It vanished, though, as, with a quick glance at Miss Venables' back, the librarian came closer and mumbled between rigid lips, "Heard about the big rumpus we had here last year? O! Shocking time it was. Maj. Frampton and she—devoted friends, you know. Suppose she's told you . . ."

She checked herself, her roving eye catching sight of Miss Venables at her side. Singling Sarah out very pointedly, the plump Beryl declared that they must get together one of these days for a real good pow-wow.

Blithely she sailed away, leaving Miss Venables to remark somewhat dubiously that while Sarah must certainly accept Beryl's invitation, it would be wise to be very, very cautious what she revealed.

"Trust me," whispered the girl reassuringly. "I can see what she's up to, but she shan't get it, never fear."

"Yet she can't suspect anything," mused the older woman. "It's not possible? How could she know?"

That, thought Sarah, was what she, without betraying anything, would make it her business to find out.

Eight o'clock, and still their guest had not appeared. Sarah was disappointed. Without quite knowing why, she wanted to study the man. More, she wanted to compel him to notice her, and with that object in view had put on her most becoming frock and taken especial pains over her hair. She was not used to being ignored, and it irked her more than she cared to admit that in both encounters with the young physician her employer so highly esteemed she had been treated as a thing of no account. Gilcrest might not attract her as Harry Venables did. She even resented him a little; but that made her all the more eager to win his approval. Could it be done?

Miss Venables was reading in the lounge. Wandering into the lobby, Sarah paused before a showcase of enticing trifles to examine herself in the glass at the back. She touched her lips with her lipstick, coaxed behind her small ears the lustrous tendrils of nut brown hair, and then, becoming aware of some one close at hand looking at her, flushed scarlet and wheeled to see who was there.

Dr. Gilcrest had arrived. He had seen her complaisance with herself. But why should those impervious, slate colored eyes of his seek to evade her own embarrassed glance? She was the one to be confused.

"O—good evening!"

Her greeting sounded a trifle flat.

He looked down at the hand she had extended, lifting the fingers separately. His air of diffidence puzzled her, for she was sure in the ordinary way he was not lacking in self-confidence.

"Muscles getting any stronger?" he asked awkwardly.

"No," she returned, meeting his eyes with a smile. "But I'm still making that effort. I can just manage to feed myself," she added flippantly, hoping to stir some answering lightness.

"You're better in yourself, though," he stated impersonally. "More flesh, more color."

Must he always be professional? She was chagrined to find her companion already moving toward the distant goal of his hostess, who had risen to welcome him.

"I'm sorry to be so late," Gilcrest apologized. "You shouldn't have waited."

"As though I minded!" deprecated his patient hospitably. "You must be hungry, all the same. Come, drink up your Martini, and let us go in."

Sarah could not help noticing that the doctor's presence created a pleasant stir. Not the least doubt that he was well liked in the hotel, but she felt that with the possible exception of Miss Venables there was no one here whom he regarded in anything but a professional light.

With his second glass he became much more human, and bit by bit, as what seemed a heavy load of preoccupation slipped from his shoulders, he even showed gleams of enthusiasm, notably in response to an inquiry about his private research work.

"O, I'm accomplishing a few stray bits," he answered. "Though I've only the evenings free—some of them, that is—and sometimes I'm too dead beat to do much. I'm testing out a serum. If it turns out as I hope, I'll tell you about it." He paused, crumbled his bread, and continued slowly. "Henri's invaluable to me. It's one of the rotten tricks of fate that his career was ruined by ill health."

"The baron was badly wounded and gassed in the war," Miss Venables explained to Sarah. "Now, unfortunately, it's too late for him to accomplish much."

"Henri's only forty-nine, although he looks so much older—and he is, these last few months, in better shape. I still cherish hopes of building him a sounder constitution. If I succeed, it will be all the recompense I ask for—this." Gilcrest glanced with slight bitterness at the surrounding company.

"Never grow disheartened," counseled Miss Venables gently. "Even if you fail to restore the baron's health, at least you've given him a new interest in life."

These remarks were comprehensible to Sarah, who now knew that Gilcrest had obtained the rundown practice in Ste. Brigitte through M. de Bellesnaves' influence. The baron had known Gilcrest's father, and when, owing to financial reverses, the young man had been forced to abandon his projected career of biochemical research for that of a grubbing practitioner, he had come to the rescue with the offer of this locus on very easy terms. From a tinge of reticence on Miss Venables' part Sarah had felt the existence of something withheld. She knew that whatever it was could not be considered discreditable either by her informant or by the young English dispenser she had met that afternoon when they called in at the doctor's dispensary. The girl, whom she had liked, showed every evidence of adoring regard for the man she served. . . .

"And does the baroness still show that rather amusing interest in your experiments?" pursued Miss Venables with an indulgent smile.

Sarah could have sworn the faint red risen to the brown cheeks did not come from the wine.

"Mme. de Bellesnaves' enthusiasms are short lived—just something to fill up her time."

There was one thing glaringly apparent: The doctor had no intention of discussing his friend's wife. A little later, when Sarah had tactfully left her two companions together over their coffee, a possible reason for this was given her by Miss Tomlins, who, on her way to the cardroom, stopped to ask for a match.

"Dull for him, now a certain person's away," confided the librarian with meaning nods in Gilcrest's direction. "That's why he turned up. Of course, he must have seen her in Paris. Notice how both of 'em managed to get off at the same time? O, yes! And once she's back, he'll have plenty to occupy him. You'll see."

She disappeared into the dining room, leaving Sarah to reflect, with some distaste, on the sugar coated morsel of gossip just retailed to her. Why she should resent the young doctor's attachment to a woman she had not yet set eyes on presented a puzzle, yet she did resent it.

Embarrassing Moments

Flattered Too Soon.

O, for an ax!

It was a beautiful Sunday morning and I, looking my smartest, was on my way to church. In a bit of a hurry, I passed three gentlemen and their remarks drifted to my ears—

"There's a beauty." "Yes, so straight and graceful." "I like them with such a pretty, rosy hue." "Such a shape!"

At this point I felt the rosy hue deepen and quickened my steps. But the final comment didn't escape me.

"Yes, the trees certainly are worth looking at in the fall."—R. R.

BY MARY MEADE.

Hide-and-go-seek is a great game, but not one to play with a shelf full of recipe files and cook books. There's an elusive brandy wafer recipe, for instance, on which we had our fingers several weeks ago, but it seems to have vanished completely since the arrival of Mrs. F. S.'s request for it. However, we did find one that seems to meet all of the requirements except the name. It's a thin, rich wafer; it contains the specified molasses, and it goes into the self-same curlycues over the handle of a wooden spoon after baking. Here's the recipe, masquerading under the name of:

English Rolled Wafers.

½ cup molasses
½ cup butter
1 cup flour, measured after sifting
2-3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon ginger

Heat the molasses to the boiling point, add the butter, then slowly, stirring constantly, add the flour which has been sifted with the ginger and sugar. Drop small portions from the tip of a spoon onto an oiled baking sheet and bake fifteen minutes in a slow oven. While still warm remove from pan and roll over the handle of a wooden spoon, jelly roll fashion.

"What makes doughnuts crack open?" queries Mrs. J. R. L. in Wisconsin. If your recipe is of the true blue, tested variety, containing not a whit too much sugar or shortening, Mrs. J. R. L., chances favor your frying your doughnuts in too hot fat. The nice crusty brown outside of the doughnut is formed before the inside begins to heat and expand and consequently there has to be a breaking out somewhere. If a deep fat thermometer is used, let the mercury register 370 degrees F. and no more when the doughnuts take their first dunking.

With our customary foresight into the dishwashing situation we've welcomed the new glass honey jars. They're designed to go right to the table, with no intermediate steps of transferring honey in and out of sticky serving dishes. One of these is even so constructed that the desired amount of honey may be poured out of the jar, eliminating any messy dipping with spoons. Then a quick twist of the wrist puts the jar back in upright position without any embarrassing dripping strands of honey across the plate or tablecloth.

Mrs. F. B. plans a Chinese luncheon soon and, while she's picked her main chop suey dish, to be served with hot rice, and the dessert and beverage situation seems to be taken care of, the salad problem is still hanging fire. Well, although oriental salads permit a great deal of leeway, we're necessarily limited by space to but two—a vegetable salad and a fruit one.

For the vegetable salad, begin with a small head of celery cabbage or Chinese cabbage. Cut this into inch thick slices, garnish each slice with thin slices of cucumber and green pepper rings, and serve with a French dressing, to which a little Chinese sauce and a bit of minced onion have been added.

The same dressing, the French type flavored with a little Chinese sauce, goes into the making of the oriental fruit salad. For six servings make it with:

3 slices pineapple
2 grapefruits
1 banana
1 cup bean sprouts

Dice the pineapple and banana and mix with the drained bean sprouts and carefully peeled grapefruit sections. Mix with the dressing and serve on lettuce leaves, with a gala topping of unsweetened whipped cream and garnished with Chinese kumquats.

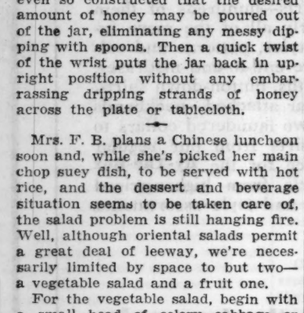
Simplicity Forms Keynote of This Masculine Quilt



BOY'S PLAYMATE.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Boy's Playmate" is an old quilt pattern, the beauty of which is best appreciated after its incorporation in a completed coverlet. The pattern is of utmost simplicity and, in keeping with the masculine title, it is ideal for a man's or a boy's room. There are 42 pieced blocks, and 30 plain blocks in the coverlet, and the completed pieced square measures 9 inches.

Chic Frock for Small Girls

CHILD'S DRESS.

If you want this dress for play or school wear choose a percale print with plain bias bands in contrast to the main tone of the print and you'll have a pretty little dress. Or it may be a little frock for afternoons, for which challis, dimity, or batiste are suitable. For something dressier choose a dotted swiss or organdy, with lace edging instead of the bands.

The pattern, No. 2871, comes in sizes 2, 4, and 6 years.

Lubricants Do Much to Stave Off Wrinkles

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Every once in a while one hears some cosmetic "Red" blasting away on the futility of using beauty creams and lotions. My personal observation is that the words invariably come in the form of an alibi, from women who won't be bothered. Not always, of course, because there are honest and perfectly sincere women who believe that soap and water, exercise, sane sensible eating, and a generally well rounded out life are sufficient for the beauty cause.

But these people usually take their opinions in their stride and don't bother about arguing much. It's the women who have a large suspicion they should be waving a cold cream jar around their dressing tables who like to believe that daily skin care is all the bunkum.

Yes, I've seen and known many women, usually of an older generation, who have succeeded beautifully on the prescribed sane eating, sane living, soap-and-water program. I see more of this older generation, however, who would have come off better had they had access to the modern beauty culture ways. The skin is dried and withery looking. Hair hasn't the beauty that distinguishes the modern woman's head, as a rule.

Most often, I see women who look the daily skin ritual, regardless of what the Reds may say. Lay it to our strenuous mode of life today, to house heating methods, to figure dieting, and so on, woman's skin needs nurturing along with some kind of local aid. Perhaps creams do not penetrate the pores. Perhaps they do not do all their advertising experts claim for them.

Still I insist that women who go in for the use of daily skin lubricants, such as creams, invariably have the better groomed look, not only of the skin itself, but of the entire person. There is great psychological value in devoting a few minutes a day to cleansing and massaging the face. The woman who does it takes more interest in her hair, in her figure, even in her dress. And her skin is softer for the daily lubricating, also a necessary factor in keeping wrinkles at bay. If there were no other factor, the psychological effect of daily attention to the skin is enough to win the argument for it.

WEDDINGS

In a quiet ceremony at 9:30 o'clock this morning Miss Mabel Adele Lamy, daughter of the Joseph F. Lamys, will become the bride of De Witt James Purcell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Purcell of St. Cloud, Minn. The service will be read by Father Dennison at St. Mary of the Lake church and a wedding breakfast will follow at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Georgina Marie Lamy will attend her sister, and Thomas Purcell will serve his brother as best man. Mr. Purcell and his bride will make their home in St. Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric DeLamarter announce the marriage of his daughter Marjorie to Carl Adelbert Racine. The wedding took place on Feb. 20 at the home of the bride's father in the presence of the families and a few friends. Mrs. Charles Robert Best [Jeanne DeLamarter] was her sister's only attendant, and Herman C. Troch was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius W. Murphy of 205 North Kolmar avenue announce the marriage of their daughter Bernice to George Joseph Dramis, which will take place at 9:30 o'clock this morning at St. Mel church.

and Kay may be thinking about debuts but they won't be making theirs for three, or perhaps four years.

Others Planning Trip to Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne are planning to leave March 6 for New Orleans to sail on the 8th for Yucatan from where they will go by rail to Mexico City. They expect to be away three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hughes left Tuesday to spend a month on their farm in Virginia. Their four sons, John Jr., Mansfield, Marshall and Milton, all will return from Groton to spend their spring vacation in Lake Forest.

The Stuart J. Templetons will return to their home in Lake Forest next week from a visit with their relatives, the Casselberrys, in Winter Park, Fla. Mrs. Templeton's mother, Mrs. William E. Casselberry, and her son, Bill, are spending the winter together in an attractive little house not far from where the Hibbard Casselberrys have been living ever since they deserted Lake Forest and decided to call Winter Park home. Mrs. Templeton is the former Catherine Casselberry.

McCormick Clan on Winter Trips.

Members of the McCormick clan are scattering far and wide for their winter vacations; the Cyrus Hall McCormicks will be going soon to Jekyll Island, Ga., where they have taken Mrs. Richard T. Crane's house for the season; Harold F. McCormick has been in Arizona for some days and does not plan to return home until April; Miss Elizabeth McCormick will be leaving shortly for Paris, and Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick is leaving today for the east where she will see her son, Robert III., at Yale, and her daughters, Mrs. Sargent Collier and Mrs. Warren Buckler Jr., the former at her home in Walpole, Mass., and the latter at her home in Baltimore, Md.

The Chauncey McCormicks are wintering in Miami and will not be at home until April, and Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, who has a house in Palm Beach this season, will return to Chicago in the same month. The Fowler McCormicks sailed yesterday for two months abroad and when they return they won't be here long for they will be going to South America for the whole summer. Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick still is hoping to go to Florida this winter.

Robert Hall McCormick is the only member of this large family who has no plans for a trip, it seems, for he expects to remain at home until late spring.

Miss Peggy Hixon Going to California.

Miss Peggy Hixon is leaving tomorrow for three weeks in California. She will spend a fortnight as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Rodman Lent Hooker [Nancy Morse] and then will go to Pasadena for a week. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hixon, are on a Caribbean cruise and will not return for a month.

The Adlai E. Stevensons, the Edison Dicks, the Keith Carpenters, Stuart H. Otis, the John P. Kelloggs, the Stephen Y. Hords, and Henry A. Knott Jr., are among a group of young married people who are spending the long Washington birthday week-end in Harbor Springs, Mich., winter sporting. They will return Monday.

The Leonard D. Karchers and the McKay Stoddards have motored to Florida. They will be away for ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Otis have just returned from a pleasant motor jaunt to New York, Washington, Georgia, and South Carolina.

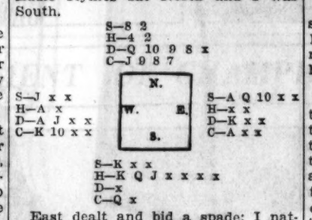
CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

HOW A DOUBLE MAY GUIDE THE DEFENSE FOR YOUR SIDE.

Hands come up where the negative doubler is not able to make any subsequent bid because the bidding has got away from him. There will still be in many cases a negative inference which the doubler's partner should employ in the defense of the hand, and it may be quite definite, although the doubler has never named a suit or been allowed to indicate by any bid the nature of his double.

Here is an instance of what I mean. Eddie Hymes sat North and I was South.



East dealt and bid a spade; I naturally doubled; West bid two no trumps, having sampled my groceries before and determining not to be jiggered out of a game. He felt pretty sure that I had an "out" in hearts, but reasoned that I would now no longer be able to get that information over to my partner and that Eddie, being on lead against no trumps, would have a natural or textbook normal opening lead in one of the minor suits or even in spades if East did not rebid, but that he would not open hearts because that would be his weakest suit if he [West] had read the hand—and my double—correctly. East raised to three no trumps and I doubled. West redoubled. He felt sure I would have to stand the redouble because my side was vulnerable. If I did bid four hearts West's double would have been no whisper. He would lead the ace and another trump and then whipsaw me in the off suits, making me lead away from any honors I might hold. He was right—I could not afford to take out the redouble. I trusted my partner to read the message of my two doubles, and passed.

A 3,000 Point Four Spot.

Eddie Hymes realized from his holdings and from my bidding that my double was of the strategic type, with my refuge in hearts, and that my business double had some real purpose in instructing him what to lead. Although he had what the experts call a "natural" opening lead in either diamonds or clubs against the no trumper, he led the four of hearts. With any other lead I would never get the chance to set up my hearts, for the opponents' bidding had shown that I was not likely to have more than one outside card of entry to bring in my suit. We collected a penalty of 1,800 points. Declarer had to take the spade finesse, as it was his only chance of making nine tricks without letting us in.

The Timing Factor.

With any other opening lead we would have lost the timing of the defense, and the contract would have been made with either one or two overtricks. Really, this new contract negative double is far reaching in its effects. It is a weapon of so many uses.

It Can Penalize a Good Memory.

Many times you will keep your opponents from bidding an easy game by means of a strategic double just because one of them—the one who should make the key bid—remembers occasions when you exacted a murderous penalty from him after doubling. That was an occasion when your double was not strategic, but distributional. It pays to employ the double, not as a hammer but as a tool kit.

Learn How to Enjoy Silence with Your Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"And then silence fell . . . they were such good friends that they could be together for long periods without the need of conversing."

Haven't you often read some such sentence as that—and don't you know it to be true?

That same kind of friendship is possible between you and your child. Perhaps you've experienced it without realizing just what it was that was happening.

It's interesting and companionable to talk with your children. It's fun, too. If you really listen you'll find that what they say is well worth listening to—and that the questions they ask are most revealing of their thoughts and feelings. Though, of course, there are other times when they chatter rather than talk—as if they were actualy wound up and didn't care much whether you answered or not.

But there are other times when you're in the same room and not a word will be said for long, long periods of time. You may be sewing or writing or reading, and your small one may be laying out a farm or understanding a big block building project or perhaps painting—and silence will reign. He knows you're there. You are, for the time being, the happy, familiar background for the play business of his life. But he does not feel the urge to talk. When that mood is on, let him be undisturbed.

Sometimes, just to see how long it would last, I've consciously refrained from breaking the spell of friendly quiet. Have you ever tried it—leaving it to your small son or daughter to speak? It's interesting. Perhaps a smile may drift your way. Or a question. Or she may at intervals say in a quiet little voice, "Mommie?" and to your "what?" may answer, "O, nothing"—not realizing herself that you floated to the surface of her mind for an instant and she wanted to reach across the silence to you.

Quiet—actual silence—lack of talk or communicativeness fosters concentration and poise, and cements the bond of friendship and understanding.

"Reading References on Play Material and Play Equipment"—a leaflet—will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Best of British Water Colors on Exhibition

Old and Modern Included in Display.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

In view of the fact that the international water color exhibit is due at the Art institute in a few weeks it is as well if one made acquaintance with the best in British old and modern water colors in the exhibit which is current in the Ackermann galleries, Fine Arts building. This is an attractive show. It runs the gamut from the rowdy charm of Rowlandson, who concealed the humor of Rabelais under the palette of Watteau, to the vigorous craft of Arthur Briscoe.

This is an entertaining and an interesting exhibit. The bells of London are supposed to have struck upon the ear of Dick Whittington, turning him back from his projected travels at the spot which Alfred Vickers has delightfully portrayed in the landscape "On the Road to Bedgellert, North Wales."

T. S. Boys, famed for his Paris series of architectural drawings, is responsible for "Lambs Lane, Chester."

"A Devotee of the Sport" by H. K. Browne [Phiz] is hunting at its funniest, and a Gilbert and Sullivan atmosphere pervades "Stilton Cheesey Blows His Own Trumpet" by John Leech, while Thackery is sensed in the amusing "18th Century Dance" by H. W. Bunbury.

William Walcot offers several exquisite paintings; W. Lee Hankey gives us "On the Stile," a fascinating little girl centering the scene, and James McBey and W. Russell Flint bring the art to date with Arthur Briscoe [his "The Life Boat" is magnificent] with "At the Window" and "In Possession."

Jessie Field, in the Devoe gallery, has a one man show of water colors that is unusually good. Mrs. Field commands several techniques and each is as persuasive as the last. Her work is fresh, colorful, direct, and decorative. The "Wisconsin Wild Flowers" is exquisite.

The "Tulips in Copper Kettle" is rich in reds, loosely painted. The "Reflections" is stunning. Her "Spring Cleaning," boats pulled up on the shore, is dramatic in its simple drawing. The "Fishing Boats in the Bay" is pure Gloucester, vividly portrayed.

"Study Hour," "Young Chemist," and "Young Artists" are interesting studies of children well done. There is a direct note about this painter's work that is most effective.

The exhibitions will continue through February.

Secret Marriage Usually Brings Regret in Wake

BY DORIS BLAKE.

There may be reasons for the secret marriage these days that would not have served an earlier generation. The economic struggle of the moment, we know, impels young couples sometimes to plan the secret marriage. Objection from family members because of financial strains are thought best hurdled by young pairs with the secret marriage.

We have a case in mind in which this was the determining factor. There was no other reason for keeping the marriage secret. Also the girl sometimes thinks it is best for her job to pose as unmarried.

Then, there is the theory that, in living apart for a year or so, the young couple will have a chance to get ahead a bit financially. These situations are all understandable, but they don't work out according to plan, as a rule.

Rarely does it happen that the two save anything by living apart. The secret usually pops out at the most inopportune moment for the girl on the job, or off it, for that matter, there's still the business of explaining away the "mystery" and there are hurt feelings of parents and relatives with which to wrestle. And there are countless minor incidents that crop up in the lives of the pair themselves that cause discomfort and, sometimes, unhappiness between them.

Joan's letter is before me with her story of wanting to marry secretly the young man to whom she's been engaged for two years. Joan's young man's idea is to get married first and start saving afterward for a home, each to keep on living under the respective parental roofs for a year or so.

President Peirce of Kenyon College Will Speak Today

There is great activity in the ranks of the Chicago Kenyon College association this week-end, for Dr. William Foster Peirce, president of the college at Gambier, O., is in town for the association's annual winter luncheon today at the University club. Robert E. Kenyon Jr., secretary of the club, is in charge of the luncheon arrangements.

The president will be the guest of Converse Goddard over the week-end. Dr. Peirce will preach at the Church of the Holy Comforter in Kenilworth tomorrow morning, and in the afternoon Leland Danforth, a director of the church and president of the Chicago Kenyon club, will have a reception for him at the Danforth home in Kenilworth. Mr. Kenyon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Kenyon, will entertain at supper for Dr. Peirce in their Lake Forest home tomorrow evening. William Wiseman is vice president of the association.

SATURDAY REVIEW

$12.75 FOR

New Nubby Rough Knits

We predict a warm welcome for these new members of the knit family—first cousins of boucles. They have a nubby weave with a sheen that brings out the beauty of the colors—dawn blue, sun orange, Maris blue, crystal, rose, gold, white. The misses' style has smart bows down the front, 12 to 20. The women's, 34 to 40, has a lacy weave top with a jabot. $12.75 each.

Knit Apparel, Fourth Floor.

Coats of All-Camel's-Hair

A scoop, indeed, when real camel's-hair coats are to be had at this extraordinarily low price—especially when they are up-to-the-minute 1935 styles. Very smartly cut—one in the regulation style, double-breasted and belted, and the other a Balmacaan—that popular British style. Both have swanky leather buttons. The same coats are to be had in tweed. 14 to 20. $16.75 each.

Moderate Price Coats, Fourth Floor.

Daisies caught in fashion's net. Daisies never tell, but they'll tell you this much—this frilly collar set of net will give you that new wistful look. It's the easiest way to solve your between season problem of chic. White, yellow, peach, pink, blue. Set, $1.95.

Neckwear, First Floor.

"Junia's Jackie"—a brand new 1935 version—is as gallant a little sailor as we landlubbers have seen in many a day, with its turned-up Breton brim and its two gaily colored little beaded balls on top. It is of straw, in navy, black, brown, and bright colors. Small and medium headsizes.

Millinery, Fifth Floor.

COMPLETE FIELD FOR TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS

SOUTH SECTION PICKS BOYS FOR SHOW MONDAY

Chicago Winners to Face Hard Bouts.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The stage is set for the opening of THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium on Monday night.

The last of the sectional representatives—Chicago's south side team—was picked last night after four hours of exciting boxing at the White City arena. The more than 35 invading teams were completed earlier in the week.

The south sectional qualifiers for the Tournament of Champions are:

OPEN DIVISION.

118—Sam Zaczek, P. Y. O., and Stanley Stockings, Heniff's gym.
126—George Johnson, Savoy A. C., and Jerry Mulcahy, Heniff's gym.
135—George Nelson, Southeast News, and Edward Garvey, C. Y. O.
147—Ralph Collier, Savoy A. C., and Henry Reformat, C. Y. O.
160—Julius Szabo, C. Y. O., and Joe Delya, C. Y. O.
175—Joe Keller, Savoy A. C., and Silas McAllister, Harvey, Ill.

118—Pedro Baleva, Ehrlick's Restaurant, and Harry Shelton, Powers' Bathhouse.
126—William Goldsmith, Savoy A. C., and James Diamico, C. Y. O.
135—Roscoe Penn, Morgan Park Monitors, and James Martin, C. Y. O.
160—Jack Brower, Allerton Gym, and Ralf Pihl, 111th street Y. M. C. A.
Heavyweight—Walter Dulcis, P. Y. O., and James Clanton, Savoy A. C.

Nelson Slugs to Victory.

George Nelson, distant cousin of old Battling Nelson, pulled another fight out of the fire when he rallied gamely in the last round to beat John Kowalski of the C. Y. O. Nelson tossed punch after punch into Kowalski's chin in the final session and became a member of the south side team when the referee lifted his hand as a signal of victory. Nelson, like the old Battler, is a lightweight.

Ed Garvey of St. Philip High school, Catholic prep lightweight champion of Illinois, was the other 135 pounder to qualify for the south section team.

Collier Gets on Team.

Ralph Collier of the Savoy A. C. slashed his way on to a place on the team when he whipped his stablemate, Elzie Mott, in a welterweight scrap. The fight went three rounds, although it seemed that Collier could have won on a knockout had he desired to toss out such a punch.

Most of the other boys who won places on the south side team are newcomers to Golden Gloves competition.

Alexander, Napoleon, Stockings, Delyia and Musto were some of the names strange to boxing fans. Yet all of the lads can fight. They had to fight to win such honors.

Chicago ring veterans who have watched the fighting in sectional centers here agreed last night that the Chicago teams look stronger than ever.

NOVICE DIVISION.

112 POUNDS.

William J. Edwards, Engine House No. 19, stopped William A. Harris, unattached [1].
Robert Wiley, unattached, stopped Wilbur Wood, Southeast News [1].

118 POUNDS.

Pedro Baleva, Ehrlick's Restaurant, knocked out Larry Williams, Savoy A. C. [1].
Stephen Orlak, P. Y. O., beat Green Farmer, South Side Boys' club [3].
Harry Shelton, Powers Bath House, beat John Rosdil, P. Y. O. [3].
John Keller, Savoy A. C., beat Sam Senjanin, Powers Bath House [3].

126 POUNDS.

HOUSE URGED TO ACT FOR SERVICE GAMES IN WEST

Cochran Wants Army and Navy to Play in St. Louis

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The Army and Navy football teams should play in all sections of the country rather than confine their competition to the northeast, Representative John J. Cochran [Dem., Mo.], said in the house of representatives this afternoon.

"The taxpayers foot the bills of these teams," he said. "The players come from all sections of the country. The schools belong to the country as a whole. There is no reason why they should be kept in the northeast. The whole country should be allowed to see these teams in action."

Schedules Made Up.

Cochran said he had tried to arrange with officials of West Point and Annapolis to have the service teams play in his home town, St. Louis. He said he was anxious to have the teams meet there, but would have been glad to see one or the other play a St. Louis squad. At both institutions he was told the schools had arranged football schedules through 1937.

"I ask that congressmen express their views to the authorities of the academies," Cochran concluded. "I am sure there are many people throughout the country who will support a movement which would allow them to see the teams in action."

Cochran Gets Support.

Cochran was supported by other representatives, who rose to say that they would like to have one of the service teams play universities in their districts.

Many senators and representatives from all sections of the country previously had expressed their desire to see the Army-Navy games played occasionally in the west, pledging their support to the movement inaugurated by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to have next season's service classic played in Chicago.

BUD TINNING SIGNS CONTRACT WITH CARDINALS

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The St. Louis Cardinals today received the signed contract of Lyle [Bud] Tinning, whom the world champions obtained from the Chicago Cubs. Tinning appeared in person at the Cards' office.

Branch Rickey, business manager of the Cardinals, today also conferred with Pat Malone, former Cub pitcher, who has been a holdout. The only other Cards still unsigned are Joe Medwick, Paul Dean, and Ernie Orsatti.

Mrs. Philip Hill Wins Florida Golf Championship

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Philip Hill of London today became the Florida women's golf champion by defeating Marian Miley of Lexington, Ky., in the final match 1 up in nineteen holes.

THE HARE'S A FAST FELLOW

But just let him dally long enough and the tortoise will beat him. Maybe you were a good track man, but your best pace will be too slow if you linger long before sprinting to the Golden Gloves ticket office. Some slow moving fellow who started early will be pocketing the last ticket to the Tournament of Champions.

This great fight show starts at the Chicago Stadium Monday evening, when the best amateur boxers of 11 states begin battling for Golden Gloves. It will continue Tuesday and Wednesday. The final bouts will be held at the Stadium March 8.

Tickets for next week's bouts may be bought for 40 cents, 66 cents, and $1.10. Prices for the finals are 55 cents, $1.10, $1.65, and $2.20.

All are on sale at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, and at Tribune Tower. Or mail a check or money order (for finals only) to the Golden Gloves Ticket manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

NOW FOR THE TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS

Green Bay Packers Sign Hutson, Alabama End

Green Bay, Wis., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Don Hutson, end on the University of Alabama football team last year, today was added to the Green Bay Packers' roster, it was announced by Coach E. L. [Curly] Lambeau. Hutson weighs 192 pounds and is 6 feet tall. In the Rose Bowl game against Stanford Hutson caught six passes, two for touchdowns.

Yale to Part with Schools Hiring Players

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 22.—[Special].—President James Rowland Angell of Yale university said today in his annual alumni day address that the old grad of Yale has had little to disturb his equanimity the last year.

"College athletics, and football in particular, present a most engaging paradox to administrative officers," Dr. Angell went on.

"However unsatisfactory we may regard the conditions inside our own little Yale Eden, no one committed to the maintenance of reputable standards for collegiate sports can fail to feel deep concern at trends widely prevalent elsewhere. Not that we would wish for a moment to adopt any 'holier than thou' attitude. But we have in the last few months been treated to an unblushing defense of proselyting and of hiring athletes for college sports which surpasses anything we have previously known.

Frank Admission of Practice.

"Hitherto it has been good form to pretend to virtue, even if one had it not. Now there is a frank admission of practices a little since denied and a defense of the procedure on various grounds. The commonest and most blatant justification runs somewhat as follows:

"'Winning teams fill the stadia and produce gate receipts, which we need and mean to get. We can only secure winning teams by hiring good players, of whom there are plenty in the market. So why be squeamish? We propose to do openly what our opponents do secretly and by indirection.'

"Such a position is at least honest in its frankness; but, if it comes to prevail generally, our colleges will have sold their birthright for a peculiarly offensive mess of pottage.

Leads to Subterfuges.

"Another specious and familiar plea is based on sympathy for the impecunious athlete, who needs money for his education and should be allowed to employ the peculiar skill he chances to possess in order to meet his need. Any one familiar with the history of college sports knows to what humiliating pretenses and subterfuges this line of argument leads, despite the appeal which certain meritorious lads made to one's good will.

"No, we are at the parting of the ways. Those who wish to see college sports conducted by hired men, and put on exactly the same level with professional baseball, football, hocky, and prize fighting, will turn in one direction. Those who still believe that college sport can be saved to its far finer and higher purposes, and that the incomparable values which are inherent in its should be preserved at whatever cost, will turn in the opposite direction.

Can Be No Compromise.

"Between the two policies there is, and can be, no compromise. Our ideals may be occasionally betrayed by traitors in the camp, or by the honestly misdirected; but, for my own part, I hope I shall not live to see the day when Yale teams are made up of men hired to come here and hired to play against other hirelings."

PURDUE DEFENDS LEAD IN BIG TEN AT OHIO TONIGHT

N. U. at Indiana; Iowa to Invade Chicago.

Games Tonight

Purdue at Ohio State.
Wisconsin at Michigan.
Iowa at Chicago.
Northwestern at Indiana.
Illinois at Minnesota.

Big Ten basketball teams continue their drive down the stretch tonight with all members of the conference in action. The two most important games will be Purdue at Ohio State and Wisconsin at Michigan. The Boilermakers, 1934 champions, lead the conference with seven victories and one defeat, and the Badgers, tied last year for the runner-up position, are a step behind with seven and two.

The other three contests are Northwestern at Indiana, Iowa at Chicago, and Illinois at Minnesota.

Purdue's invasion of Ohio State should result in a thrilling battle, for the Boilermakers just managed to catch the Buckeyes in a 42 to 41 game at Lafayette recently, after Ohio had piled up a 31 to 16 advantage at the half. Bob Kessler and Norm Cottom, Purdue forwards, have alternated in having big scoring nights, and Ohio State must do some effective guarding to hold them down to reasonable figures.

Kessler on Haarlow's Trail.

Ohio State can counter the Kessler-Cottom menace with Whitlinger, a sharp shooting forward, and Thomas, a center who does things in a big way now and then. Kessler, incidentally, is not far behind Bill Haarlow of Chicago in the individual scoring race, holding second place with one more game to play than has the Chicago star. Haarlow has 112 points, and Kessler, 97.

Wisconsin should get past Michigan without too much difficulty, although the Wolverines can be tough on their home floor. The Badgers must win tonight to retain their chance to stay with or pass Purdue.

Northwestern will travel to Bloomington with slim hopes of upsetting the Hoosiers, but Indiana, beaten by Wisconsin and Purdue last week-end, may be without the services of Kenney Gunning, star little floor guard, who has been ill.

Iowa May Snap Out of It.

Iowa's Hawkeyes, disappointing after a slam bang start in Big Ten competition, should get out of their rut against the Maroons, who have lost 15 straight contests. Chicago has Haarlow, a remarkable basket shooter, but apparently little else.

Illinois at Minnesota might go either way, but the Illini have a high scoring aggregation, headed by Froschauer, a forward. Henry and Combes, Illinois guards, had a wild time against Ohio State early this week, scoring 25 points between them. The Gopher stars are Gordie Norman, veteran center, and Baker, accurate shooting forward. The Illini, like Indiana, each of which has lost three games, still have a chance of sharing in a tie for the championship.

EQUIPOISE IS FAVORITE IN STAKE TODAY

Twenty Grand Held Second Choice.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 22.—Twenty-one thoroughbreds, scions of the most aristocratic turf families, have been named to go to the post tomorrow in the first running of the Santa Anita Handicap, which has a value to the winner of approximately $100,000. Months of preparation and weeks of anxiety by owners and trainers will culminate in slightly more than two minutes of actual racing over the one and one-quarter mile route at 6:30 p. m. [C. S. T.] tomorrow.

Such is the event which has Los Angeles, at first rubbing its eyes at the return of racing after 25 years, pop-eyed at the interest shown, not only here but in all sections of the country. Special cars, airplanes, and motors have brought socialites, writers and just plain turf enthusiasts from parts afar to view what is perhaps the most notable race in American thoroughbred history.

Three Old Timers Named.

When veteran campaigners, popular champions of the past, like Equipoise, Twenty Grand, Mate, Ladysman, Gusto, Head Play, and others of that ilk, come out of retirement or continue in training for this particular event, it is something to talk about. It will be something to talk about in future years.

Without stressing one's enthusiasm too far, it is doubtful if ever again such a field will be gathered together in these days of early retirement to the stud for noted performers. [Man o' War and Gallant Fox retired after their 3 year old form.] Three 7 year olds are among the probable starters.

One of the old gentlemen who by turf tenets should be smoking his pipe by the fireside in dressing gown and bedroom slippers is Equipoise. The two others are Twenty Grand and Mate, rival claimants for the 3 year old championship of 1931. And these old gentlemen are carrying the top weights.

Twenty Grand Second Choice.

Yet so great is the prestige of these veterans that Equipoise is a strong overnight favorite for the big purse and Twenty Grand is the second choice.

To Equipoise it may be the climax of six years of campaigning. Victory to the Whitney thoroughbred means he will mount to the top as the greatest money winning horse of all time. His present earnings are $338,610. Sun Beau's record is $376,444. First money with twelve starters is more than $100,000. Thus triumph for the aged son of Pennant-Swinging would place him so far in front that his earnings undoubtedly would stand as a record for many years to come.

Mate, too, could rise to the top. His present winnings stand at $301,610. Mate, however, has not raced nor worked as well as the Whitney representative and he is the only one of the three old codgers likely to be at a long price in the wagering.

Equipoise will be ridden on this eventful journey by Sonny Workman, who has piloted him in the past and who is called the ace of American jockies, an honor disputed by partisans of Silvio Coucci, who will be atsride Twenty Grand.

Seven Are Doubtful.

In the draw for post positions, Equipoise received No. 20, which probably will be on the extreme outside as Mad Frump is a probable starter only in the event of rain. To a horse relying on early speed this would be a marked handicap in the struggle for forward position down the stretch. To Equipoise, which closes with giant strides, it will not be a drawback. It may possibly prove to his advantage.

The overnight field of twenty-one starters probably will be whittled down to fourteen or fifteen. Owners have until forty-five minutes before post time to scratch their entries. If not scratched at that time they become liable for the $1,000 starting fee.

Horses placed in the doubtful class are Riskulus, owing to recent injury; Precursor, Sarada, Gillie, Faireno, Mad Frump and Sweeping Light.

If eighteen horses should start, first

BOBBY PACHO AND FRANK SAGILIO BOUT CANCELED

Los Angeles Boxer Will Battle in New York.

Pacho's handlers then accepted a ten round encounter with Steve Haleiko at New York next Friday on the card headed by a 15 round lightweight elimination contest between Sammy Fuller, Boston, Mass., and Lou Ambers, Herkimere, N. Y. Pacho left for New York at once.

Davey Day, Chicago boxer, who was given the ten round decision over Pacho Thursday, was treated for two head cuts yesterday at a west side hospital. . . . Frank Cvitak, bantamweight, and Sammy Verse, lightweight, both members of the Omaha, Neb., Golden Gloves team which will compete in the Tournament of Champions, trained yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium. . . . The balance of the team will arrive tomorrow. . . . Bill Treest, Batavia, Ill., light heavyweight, who has recovered from a throat ailment, will resume drills here Monday after being idle almost three weeks. . . . Everett [Young] Rightmire, Sioux City featherweight, went to St. Paul yesterday to begin preparations for a bout there Friday. . . . Paul Lee, Indianapolis, may substitute for Dave Barry against Rightmire.

Joe Louis, Detroit heavyweight, who knocked out Lee Ramage in the second round at Los Angeles Thursday, expects to make a second appearance in California, at San Francisco, and then head for home. . . . Dayton, O., promoters are attempting to arrange a ten round fight between Hayden [Young] Stuhley, Kenwanee, Ill., middleweight and Alabama Kid for Thursday. . . Marshall Leach, Gary, Ind., who retired about two years ago, recently underwent an operation on his left elbow for the removal of 24 chipped bones, a reminder of his ring experiences.

Chuck Heffner, Denver, Colo., 160 pound fighter, took a workout yesterday for a ten round bout with George Black at Milwaukee Monday. . . . Al Diamond, née Albert Diamondi, eastern middleweight, is booked to clash with Toots Bernstein on the same card. . . . A show is scheduled at Detroit Olympia March 29.

Ramblers and Artillery Will Meet Tonight

Two of the roughest riding teams in the Metropolitan Polo league, the 124th Field Artillery and the Chicago Ramblers, will meet tonight in the Artillery arena at 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue.

Although the Ramblers have the edge in the matter of stars, with Herb Lorber and Maj. Richard G. Hunter rated at four goals, both of these players will be nursing injuries.

In addition to having the advantage in physical condition the Artillery will start hostilities with a 3 point head start. A further incentive for Lieut. Don Rice, Capt. Bill Everett and Lieut. Christ Schuh, who make up the 124th team, is that by winning they will move into second place in the league race, only a half game behind the leading Cleveland Riding club trio.

Capt. Leo B. Callahan will lead the Chicago Shamrocks in the opener against the Lincolnshire Country club in a junior division game.

RIDING CLUB VS. TROOP

The Riding Club Seniors and the Black Horse Troop will meet for the third time this season in a polo game at the Chicago Riding club, 333 East Erie street, tonight. Each team has won one of the previous games.

The Black Horse Troop combination of Capt. Roy D. Keehn Jr., Lieut. William F. Kirby, and Jack Armstrong has won fifteen games in seventeen starts.

The University of Illinois and the University of Chicago polo teams will meet in the curtain raiser.

CIRCUIT COURT UPHOLDS DECISION IN DOPING CASE

Jack Howard, sportsman, and William Mitchell, colored foreman of Howard's racing stable, who were convicted recently for violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic act on charges of doping race horses, were denied a rehearing yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Howard was given a ten day suspended sentence in jail and fined $200 in the District court. Mitchell got a $100 fine and a five day suspended jail sentence. Both sentences were stayed pending an appeal to the United States Supreme court by Attorney William Waugh, counsel for Howard.

PURDUE SWIM TEAM DEFEATED BY OHIO STATE

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Winning six out of the seven individual events, Ohio State's swimming team defeated Purdue here tonight, 47 to 37. The Boilermakers won both relays and the fancy diving.

In the water polo match following the swimming meet Purdue defeated the Buckeyes, 5 to 3, after trailing at the end of the first half, 2 to 1.

money will be the highest purse paid for any one race in American turf history.

Billie Bane, a 2 year old gelding bred in Illinois, won the juvenile championship, stake event of today's card, from a field of eight other starters. It was a three furlong dash worth $3,050 net to the winner.

Forced Landing from the C. V. Whitney stable, broke in front but Billie Bane, Totness and Rattle Brain, the latter owned by Miss Constance Bennett of the screen, were in close attendance. Billie Bane continued his vantage and was a handy victor.

Quick proofs from the camera were called by the placing judges before posting numbers for the other positions. Blaze Home was awarded second place with Rattle Brain third and Forced Landing, the favorite, fourth. The time was :33 3-5, twofifths seconds off the world mark established here by Blind Barney.

The winner paid $8.00, $4.20 and $3.60. Blaze Home was $10.40 and $6.00 to place and show, respectively. Rattle Brain paid $4.40 to show.

Jay Berwanger Puts Shot 47 Feet 10⅜ Inches.

Taking first place in seven of eleven events, Marquette university's track team defeated the University of Chicago, 58 1-3 to 36 2-3, in a meet at the Midway fieldhouse last night. Marquette won firsts in all but one of the running events, while Chicago captured three field events.

Outstanding performances were those of Calvin Beckett, Marquette half miler, who covered the 880 yards in 1:57.8, and Jay Berwanger, Chicago, who, despite his injured knee, tossed the shot 47 feet 10 3-8 inches. Other good marks were made by Jimmy Jessel, Marquette, who ran the 440 in :50 flat; Paul Phillips, Marquette, who did :06.3 in the 60 yard dash, and Stuart Abel, Maroon sophomore, who cleared 12 feet 4 inches in the pole vault.

Johnny Beal, Chicago sophomore, was high point man with firsts in the high hurdles and high jump. One of the best races of the evening was the two mile, in which Orville O'Neil, Marquette, and Ed Rapp, Chicago, battled all the way, the former winning by two yards.

Summaries:

MILE RELAY—Won by Indiana [Collier, Marker, Bicking, Gill]. Time, 3:26.9.

TRIANGULAR MEET AT N. U.

A triangular track meet involving teams from Northwestern, Wisconsin and Purdue will be held at Patten gymnasium tonight. The meet will be the first of the season for the Wildcats. Both the other teams have seen action, the Badgers having defeated Marquette and Purdue having lost a close match to Chicago.

Wisconsin is a strong favorite as a result of its showing against the Hilltoppers. In that meet the Cardinals showed power in all events, principally in the middle distances and the mile. Outstanding among the Badger entries are Karl Kleinschmidt, half miler; Carlton Crowell, quarter miler; Bob Clark, hurdler, and Irv Rubow, shot putter.

Purdue's strength centers around Ken Sandbach, leading conference hurdler; Ed Skoronski, shot putter, and Moore, miler. Sandbach is a favorite to capture the high hurdles despite the fact that he will encounter a strong field, including Clark of Wisconsin and Phil Doherty, Northwestern sophomore.

Northwestern's personnel, while short in numbers, is long in ability. Coach Frank Hill has a pair of capable runners in Capt. George Farley, miler, and Jack Fleming, half miler. The Wildcats are also counting heavily on several sophomores, including Bob Swisher in the pole vault and sprints, Doherty in the hurdles, and Vange Burnett in the shot.

MICHIGAN IS VICTOR

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Michigan's track team amassed 72½ points to overwhelm Michigan State and Michigan Normal in a triangular meet here tonight. The Spartans, placing second, scored 24 1-3 points, while Normal had 22 1-6. Michigan's team, Big Ten champion, was intact for the first time this season.

Two fieldhouse records were broken, both by Normal runners. Bill Zepp ran the two mile in 9:21 to lower his own record of 9:21.8, made two weeks ago. He beat his old rival, Tom Ottey of State, by 55 yards. Abe Rosekrantz, Normal, cut two-fifths of a second from the fieldhouse record when he won the half mile in 1:55.1. Willis Ward tied his own mark of 8.2 seconds in the 65 yard high hurdles.

The Wolverines took seven first places, Normal two and State two. Michigan finished first in the mile run, 60 yard dash, 440 yard dash, both hurdles, mile relay, and pole vault, while Normal scored its firsts in the events won by Zepp and Rosekrantz. State took the high jump and shot put.

Willis Ward won one event, the high hurdles, and finished behind two teammates, Sam Stoller and Dave Barnes, in the dash.

JOLIET CATHOLIC PREPS HAND LEO 33 TO 31 DEFEAT

Leo High school's heavyweight basketball team, leader of the south section of the Chicago Catholic High School league, suffered its second defeat of the season last night. It lost to Catholic High of Joliet, 33 to 31, in one of the most exciting games of the season at Leo's gymnasium.

In another south division heavyweight contest De La Salle, which occupies second place, triumphed over St. Rita, 30 to 22. It was St. Rita's fifth sectional defeat.

Fenwick took a west section double header from St. Ignatius at Oak Park. The Fenwick heavies scored their second triumph of the season, 24 to 16, while the lights handed St. Ignatius their fifth setback, 22 to 9.

The second place St. George heavyweights won from Loyola, 19 to 18, at Loyola gymnasium. The St. George lightweights also triumphed, 26 to 23, to take second place in the north section.

Downers Grove's defeat at the hands of the La Grange heavyweights featured the West Suburban conference schedule. La Grange won in an overtime period, 36 to 30, after leading at the half, 21 to 12. Balaty starred for the winners with five baskets and three free throws. Lineups:

Cubs Line Up Demaree; List Is Complete

Manager Charley Grimm is at liberty now to concentrate on building the Cubs into a contender for the National league championship. The last of his pre-season worries was removed yesterday when the postman delivered to the club's offices in the Wrigley building the signed contract of Frank Demaree, hard hitting outfielder, who was recalled from the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league last fall.

Demaree, a husky fellow, had his first chance with the Cubs in 1932, but except for an occasional extra base hit failed to live up to his billing, and was returned to the Cubs' farm at Los Angeles for seasoning. Last year he pounded out a .385 average.

Manager Grimm revealed after the contract was received that he wasn't really greatly alarmed over Demaree's refusal to sign when first approached.

The first group of Cubs will head for Catalina island and the spring training grind over the Santa Fe at 9:15 Monday night. Players in the party will be Lon Warneke, Clay Bryant, Hugh Casey, and Carl Vaicek, pitchers; Grimm, Woody English, Bill Jurges, Fred Lindstrom, Phil Cavaretta, Billy Herman, and Stanley Klores, infielders, and Gabby Hartnett, Walter Stephenson, and Jim O'Dea, catchers.

WORLD SWIMMING RECORDS BROKEN AT LAKE SHORE

Establishment of three new world records last night overshadowed a dual swimming meet between the University of Michigan and the Lake Shore Athletic club at the latter's pool. Michigan won the meet, 26 to 25, by capturing the 300 yard medley relay, but the individual performances of Mrs. Eleanor Holm Jarrett and Adolph Kiefer stole the show.

Mrs. Jarrett, who set a new mark for the 100 meters in the Lake Shore pool on Jan. 25, lowered her own record for the 300 yard back stroke event, doing it in 4:31. She had set the old time of 4:37 1-5 in July, 1932.

It was the 16 year old Kiefer, a Roosevelt High school student, who contributed the high light of the evening by shattering two world marks in one swim. He swam the 500 yard backstroke, setting a new mark of 6:02.4, and while so doing was clocked in world record time for the 400 meters. He negotiated the latter in 5:18.3, to break the record of 5:42 held by Toshio Iriye of Japan. The old mark for 500 yards was 6:48.4, held by Joe Wohl of Syracuse university.

50 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Gordon Cornelius, Lake Shore; Art Highland, Lake Shore, second; Ed Drew, Michigan, third. Time, :23.3.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

HARDSHIPS of college athletic life as gleaned from Northwestern university's daily paper of 1882: "As the days are becoming shorter the students are unable to make use of the bowling alleys in the gym after 5 o'clock. As this is the hour when most of the boys take their exercise it is to be hoped that a few lamps will ere long be put up and the darkness relieved." . . . Al Simmons, in a letter from Hot Springs discussing a prophecy printed in THE TRIBUNE which calculated Al in 1935 will win the American league batting championship for the third time, says he accepts the nomination and expects to lead the pack if he can hit as well in his home park as he does on the road. . . . And he adds that he feels able to throw off the Comiskey park bugaboo. . . . Duke Millheam, who won a letter at half back with Notre Dame in 1931, has sprouted a beard and is touring the country as a member of the House of David Collegians' basketball team. . . . Cincinnati expects to start the season with a $100,000 infield. . . . Mize, first base, cost $55,000; Kampouris, second, $23,000; Myers, shortstop, $30,000, and Riggs, third base, $20,000. . . . Do you think they compare with Connie Mack's old hundred grand combination of McInnis, Collins, Barry, and Baker? . . .

Fay Lewis, young brother of Spud Lewis, who was Dick Hanley's assistant at Northwestern, is said to be the best Rugby player on the Pacific coast. . . . He attends Stanford. . . . In 1920, when the late Ernest Barnard was business manager of the Cleveland Indians, he inaugurated a system whereby every player on the team received $3 extra in pay for every day the Indians were over the .500 mark in the percentage column. . . . This, along with the other bonus features, kept the Indians moving at such a steady pace they won the pennant. . . . When the Cubs travel to their training camp next week Manager Charley Grimm will have nothing to do except get acquainted with his new players. . . . There will be no club officials present to demand attention. . . . The officials will go to Catalina Island on different trains. . . . Hal Schumacher of the Giants has a perfect record against Cincinnati. . . . He has won all eleven games he has pitched against the club. . . .

Ambrose Schindler, ballyhooed as the best high school half back developed on the Pacific coast, has enrolled at Southern California. . . . He had thought of going to the United States Naval academy. . . . The players got 10 per cent of the money wagered in the mutuels at the Agua Caliente golf tournament. . . . Dixie Howell of Alabama may coach the University of Mexico next season if he doesn't land a pro contract to his liking. . . . Carland Braxton, former Washington and White Sox lefty pitcher, now with Milwaukee, a few days ago was finalist for the second successive year in the tournament to determine the city championship of Sarasota, Fla. . . . Braxton shoots golf right-handed. . . . The city championship of Sarasota is taken seriously by one and all, for Sarasota claims to be the site of the first golf course on the American continent and has been golf conscious since 1885. . . . Tom Howard, former TRIBUNE photographer, will be godfather of Umpire Emmett Ormsby's eleventh child, born a few days ago. . . .

Mostly About Dogs

By Bob Becker

Boston Terrier Show.

Chicago dog fans will have an opportunity to look over scores of pedigreed Boston terriers tomorrow at the Hotel Sherman because the Western Boston Terrier club has picked this Sunday for its annual show. The dogs that will compete for honors will be benched in the morning, but judging will start at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Inasmuch as this show is for Boston terriers it should be a friendly, intimate affair that will give visitors a chance to get well acquainted with the breed. Therefore, any dog fan interested in the popular American made Boston ought to find this show extremely entertaining.

There seems to be no stopping this breed in its popularity march through the dog world. Looking at registration figures of the American Kennel club for 1934, you find the Boston terrier [frequently called the Boston bull] again led all breeds for the year. There were 10,460 Boston terriers registered with the American Kennel club last year, which gives the breed first place. In other words, more than 17 per cent of all dogs registered in the United States in 1934 were Boston terriers.

It is one thing to be the leader for a single year, but when we realize that this breed has been the leader in registrations for almost ten years then we have a better idea of what a hold the little terrier has on the fancy of the American dog buying public.

The Boston terrier is a short haired dog, a point that has been much in its favor, because it is easy to keep around the house. It is rather significant that the largest entry at the recent New York dog show, where 2,837 dogs were benched, also was a breed devoid of long silky coat. It was the squatty little dachshund that rang the bell in New York with 187 of that breed showing their stuff before the judges.

The dachshund has a dense, short, shiny coat, although most of us who look at dachshunds in a show are apt to think more about the funny shaped feet of the breed than the quality of its coat. Right behind the little German dogs in entries came the cocker spaniels with 179. The wirehaired terriers placed third with an entry list of 163. Then the popular Boston terriers and well known Scotties [another American favorite] came in fourth place, being tied with 122 entries each.

Now that the New York show is history it will be interesting to watch the entry list of the Chicago show to see which breed goes to the top in entries. The Chicago show opens March 29 and continues through until the 31st. With many strong clubs behind various breeds, as, for example, the Boston Terrier organization, the Cocker Spaniel club and others, we may look for some very large breed entry lists here in March.

A. A. U. Track Meet Will Be Held Tonight

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—America's outstanding track and field performers will vie for national championships at Madison Square Garden tonight when the Amateur Athletic union stages its forty-seventh annual indoor title games. So strong is the entry list and so keen is the competition expected to be that even the Cunningham-Bonthron-Venzke struggle may be just another event on the program.

The third of the clashes that have Glenn Cunningham, Bill Bonthron and Gene Venzke as their principals has not quite the appeal that the others had, mainly because of the convincing way the Kansan has defeated his two foemen at the mile route. This time they will meet at 1,500 meters, a distance that certainly is better for Venzke and probably for Bonthron, too.

New Records Expected.

The possibility of a new world's record looms for the event, as it does for most of those on the program. Only the pole vault mark seems beyond the reach of tonight's field, and in every other test a record is just as likely to be broken as not.

If Cunningham can run in the style he did in unfolding his 4:09.8 mile a week ago he should be able to drive the 1,500 meter figures down below the 3:52.2 standard he set in an eyelash finish with Bonthron a season ago.

Bonthron's Last Indoor Meet.

For one man of the 327 entered this meet will hold more than the usual significance. This will be Bonthron's farewell to indoor track.

MME. HENROTIN, M'AULIFF WIN IN NET DOUBLES

New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, France's second ranking player, teamed with Dr. Eugene McAuliff, Yonkers, today to gain the final round of the national indoor mixed doubles tennis tournament. They defeated the defending champions, Norma Taubelle and Frank Bowden, New York, in three sets, 7-9, 9-7, 6-3.

Survivors of preliminary play in the lower bracket were Eleanor Jane Sharp, Pasadena, Cal., and Gregory S. Mangin, Newark, N. J., who conquered Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, New York, and Berkeley Bell, ranked seventh in the nation, 7-9, 9-7, 6-3.

They will meet Mme. Henrotin and Dr. McAuliff for the championship tomorrow afternoon after Miss Sharp and Helen Pedersen, Stamford, Conn., play for the singles title.

Ticks Triumphs Over Green in Cue Tourney

In the all star handicap three cushion tournament at Kleckhefer's last night Harry Ticks defeated Bud Green, playing 42, 45 to 19, in 57 innings. High runs were: Ticks, 4; Green, 2.

C. Y. O. Girls to Start Basketball Playoffs Tonight

The opening round in the C. Y. O. Girls' Basketball league intersectional playoffs will be held tonight at St. Rita, St. Ignatius parish, Holy Trinity and St. Willibrord's gymnasiums. Four games are scheduled for each gymnasium.

Winners of tonight's games will meet in the second round of the title series Monday night, followed by quarter-final games on Wednesday and semi-finals on Thursday night. The championship finals will be staged at Loyola university gymnasium Sunday afternoon, March 3.

Topping the opening round card of 16 games tonight is the St. Rita-St. Philip Neri contest at St. Rita. St. Rita's girl players last year won the league championship, and so far this season have come through a schedule of eight sectional games undefeated.

JOHN DAWSON TO MEET MORELAND IN HOUSTON GOLF

Houston, Tex., Feb. 22. — (AP) — Johnny Dawson of Chicago, titleholder, and Gus Moreland, Dallas amateur, will meet for the third time in the annual Houston Country club invitation golf tournament tomorrow with a personal championship at stake. They are paired for the semi-finals. Each has won the title once. Dawson finished as runnerup to Moreland in 1931. Last year Moreland lost the title to Dawson.

Dawson came through with a 6 to 5 victory today over Harry Todd of Dallas. Moreland eliminated Ed White, University of Texas ace, in a 35 hole struggle.

Other semi-finalists are Zell Eaton of Oklahoma City, western amateur champion, and Fred Odom of New Orleans. Eaton ousted Lonnie Wendland of San Antonio, Tex., 4 and 3, and Odom beat George Dawson of Chicago, 4 and 3.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Visiting National Hocky league players at the Stadium generally make their entrance to games through the front door, giving the knowing customers who may be loitering in the lobby a closeup view of them. The majority are easily identified, if only by ancient wounds and patches of plaster covering fresh ones.

The Hawks' guests tomorrow evening will be the Montreal Maroons, and if you should chance to see in their party a young man of ministerial mien, wearing thick lensed spectacles, do not take him for a little brother of one of the players. He is a player himself—Russell Blinco—and a right good one. His associates on the Maroons call him Joe, and Manager Tommy Gorman rates him as the perfect hocky workman, a statement which does not seem so far fetched after a glance at current league records.

He Is Bad News.

Young Mr. Blinco may appear like a college professor off the ice, but on it, sans the spectacles, he's something else again. He is the Maroons' second highest scorer, having collected 22 points with 12 goals and 10 assists to date. His clean, hard play is attested by the fact that he has spent only two minutes in the penalty box in 25 games. During this period he has scored four goals in a single game and made himself the bane of every goalie in the league by his deportment around enemy cages. Nels Stewart of Boston is recognized as the closeup terror of the league, but he achieves his end by a calculated indolence, whereas Blinco has developed a technique of stopping and wheeling around a goal which has many a gateman dizzy.

Blinco, although a native Canadian from Grand'mere, Que., got his real start in American hocky. He is 27 years old, stands 5 feet 10 inches, and weighs 170 pounds. He was educated at Bishop's college and McGill university, and then migrated to New York, where he starred with the Crescent A. C., national amateur champions.

Leafs Come First.

He was first spotted by Lester Patrick of the Rangers, and after a short term with them, wandered through such minor league clubs as Springfield, Mass., and Windsor, Ont., finally being purchased by the Maroons last season.

Lorne Chabot, the National league's leading goalie by six goals, and the rest of the Blackhawks will not worry about Prof. Blinco & Co., however, until tomorrow night, for they have much more urgent business at Toronto this evening, when they meet the Maple Leafs for the sixth and last time during the regular season. The Hawks lost the first four games to the Leafs and then took the fifth.

St. Paul, leading the Central league, is to become a Blackhawk farm, according to arrangements completed yesterday at St. Paul by Bill Tobin, business manager of the Hawks.

ABRAM HARRIS DIES; FORMERLY N. U. PRESIDENT

Leader in Education Work of Methodist Church.

Funeral services for Abram Winegardner Harris, a former president of Northwestern university, will be held this afternoon in Philadelphia. Mr. Harris died Thursday night in Philadelphia while visiting at the home of a son, A. W. Harris Jr. He was 77 years old.

A. W. HARRIS.

Mr. Harris was president of Northwestern university from 1906 to 1916. He resigned to become secretary of the board of education of the Methodist Episcopal church. He held this position until his retirement in 1924, when he went to live at Manset, Me.

William A. Dyche, business manager of Northwestern during the presidency of Mr. Harris, yesterday paid tribute to him as an administrator. Mr. Dyche pointed out that Mr. Harris had founded the commerce and engineering schools during his régime.

Originator of Housing Plan.

"Mr. Harris conceived the idea of the quadrangular fraternity system," Mr. Dyche said, "in which the fraternity houses are built in one section forming a squadrangle. This system is unique at Northwestern and is recognized as the best college housing system."

The university entered a period of rapid growth under Dr. Harris, officials said yesterday. Swift hall of engineering and Patten gymnasium were among the buildings constructed.

Dr. Harris was graduated from Connecticut Wesleyan university in 1880, and later obtained his master's degree there and a doctor's degree at Bowdoin college.

Once Head of Maine U.

Before becoming president at Northwestern Dr. Harris served as president of the University of Maine from 1893 to 1901. He held the position of headmaster and director of Tome school, Maryland, from 1901 to 1906.

Dr. Harris was the author of numerous scientific and administrative documents for the department of agriculture and was an official of a number of associations. He was president of the American Social Hygiene association from 1915 to 1917, executive chairman of the vice commission of Chicago and vice president of the Committee of Fifteen.

THIRTY RUSSIANS FREED FROM JAIL BY MANCHUKUO

MOSCOW, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Six stationmasters and 24 other soviet Russian citizens employed by the Chinese Eastern railway, who were arrested by Japanese and Manchukuan authorities last summer, were reported in a soviet news agency dispatch from Harbin today to have been released.

The arrests caused the soviet foreign office last August to demand explanations from Manchukuo. Reports published here at that time charged many soviet citizens were arrested and maltreated in an effort to force confessions for a series of train wrecks and bandit raids.

These disorders the soviet press at the time attributed to the Japanese and Manchukuans themselves for the purpose of forcing the U. S. S. R. to sell the railroad cheaply.

DOWIE MANSION IN ZION SOLD FOR MISSION SCHOOL

Shiloh house, the $100,000 mansion built in Zion by that community's founder, John Alexander Dowie, was sold yesterday by Mrs. Lillian Se Rine to the Assemblies of God and is to be used as a Bible school for training missionaries. Dowie lived in the home until his death in 1907. The mansion changed hands several times, was bought a few years ago by Mrs. Jane Dowie, widow of the builder, her son, and Mrs. Se Rine, and recently passed into Mrs. Se Rine's possession. It was understood the Assemblies of God assumed a $10,000 mortgage. The purchase price was not revealed.

Woman Lives on Minnesota Farm 90 Years; Dies at 109

St. Vincent, Minn., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Angeline Gooselaw, 109, believed to be Minnesota's oldest inhabitant, was buried today following funeral services in the Catholic church. She had lived on her isolated farm home north of here for 90 years. She was the mother of 12 children, ten of whom are living. Her husband died in 1894. There are 53 grandchildren and 78 great-grandchildren.

Dies at 100; 67 Descendants.

Find Earliest Example of Plastic Art in Palestine

LONDON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Prof. John Garstang, noted British archæologist, was reported today to have unearthed the earliest example of plastic art known to Palestine. A letter from Sir Charles Marston, a member of the Garstang expedition to Jericho, said Garstang considered a cult image in clay, unearthed by the party, to have been made about 3000 B. C. and an object to be regarded as of first importance.

53D WEDDING DAY.

Aledo, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Merriman, residents of Aledo the last twenty-six years, today are observing their 53d wedding anniversary. He formerly was in the stock and grain business many years.

BOYS' REPUBLIC DEALS OUT STOCK FOR OWN STORE

Four hundred members of the Boys' Brotherhood republic, 1532 South Hamlin avenue, last night became the holders of as many shares of stock at $1 a share in a citizens' cooperative store which will soon be opened in the club headquarters. Although the club has 1,200 members, the first 400 to enter its quarters last evening were the lucky ones.

Said to be the only store of its kind in the world, the new coöperative venture will offer to the republic, according to its mayor, A. Marks, a full line of candy, ice cream, and athletic supplies. Each stockholder's signature was sufficient last night on a note to the republic's savings bank, but the stock will have to be paid for in full by Sept. 5.

On March 6 a massmeeting of stockholders will be held to elect a board of seven directors for the store. The following night the board will appoint two managers, who will receive salaries. The store's profits will be divided among the stockholders. Mayor Marks pointed out that the new venture is intended to provide business training for the republic's members.

The club, established in 1914, is self-governed.

JAP PUBLISHER TO RECOVER FROM ASSASSIN'S KNIFE

TOKIO, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Babe Ruth's Japanese pal, Matsutaro Shoriki, probably will live, his physicians said today, despite stab wounds by an assassin.

Shoriki, prominent Japanese publisher, was mainly responsible for last fall's barnstorming tour of Japan by Babe Ruth, Jimmy Foxx, Lou Gehrig, Lefty Gomez and other American baseball stars. The Americans were received with veritable hero worship by the baseball-loving Japanese public.

A blood transfusion was administered when Shoriki's death appeared probable and he subsequently rallied. The assailant, Katsuke Nagasaki, 28, told police he attacked Shoriki because the publisher had been guilty of several unpatriotic acts, including sponsorship of Babe Ruth's tour of Japan. Nagasaki argued that the American baseball stars' exhibitions drained money from Japan at a time of depression.

$13,500 ESTATE BRINGS $4,875; TO PAY CLAIM

Galesburg, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—John Smeth's estate of $13,500 invested in a local savings association was bid in for $4,875 at a public sale here today. Smeth, who came to this country from Poland, died four years ago, leaving no known heirs.

The sale of his stock, which represented his savings during twenty-five years as a brickyard worker, was ordered by the County court in order that a $1,000 claim, allowed Mrs. Anna Ericson, who cared for Smeth many years, might be paid. The balance will go to the county general fund if no heirs are found.

A number of claimants have sought to prove relationship to Smeth, but the fact that he dropped his Polish name of Wikowski when he was naturalized and that this was not generally known resulted in no one offering proof of authentic heirship.

RUDOLPH SPETH, EASTMAN KODAK TREASURER, DIES

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Rudolph Speth, 66, treasurer of Eastman Kodak company, died today of septicæmia. He is survived by a brother, Carl of New York, and two sisters, the Misses Josephine and Margaret Speth of Chicago.

He was accountant for a large Chicago brewery, accountant for Swift & Co., and secretary for the American Copper, Brass and Iron Works for five years before coming to Rochester to join the Eastman Kodak company in 1912.

J. F. Crooks, Ex-Chicagoan, Warehouse Official, Dies

Information was received here yesterday of the death in Kansas City Thursday of Joseph F. Crooks, 43 years old, vice president of the Crooks Terminal Warehouses, Inc., a concern operating in Chicago and Kansas City. Mr. Crooks, a native Chicagoan, lived here until he moved to Kansas City ten years ago. He is survived by his widow, five children, and three brothers. Funeral services will be held here Monday morning from the residence of his late father, David L. Crooks, 3254 West 67th street, to St. Nicholas of Tolentine church. Burial will be in Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Baseball broadcasts are again to be sponsored on W-G-N this season by the big drug store concern that has promoted them for the last two seasons. New contracts between the Chicago Cub owners and local stations, however, provide that this season the baseball clubs participating in the game broadcast must be given credit along with the sponsor and call for a definite limitation of commercial copy.

Thus, in the case of W-G-N, a typical announcement would run: "Walgreen's brings you this broadcast by permission of the Chicago Cubs and the New York Giants [or team played] to stimulate interest in our national game and in your local team." The phrase about the home town was asked for to ease the supposed resentment against big league baseball broadcasts which reach smaller cities.

The new agreement also limits the number of commercial announcements to eight per game and the total number of words in the continuity to 1,000. The contract also provides that the stations broadcasting baseball make five announcements during the day calling attention to the game for the day. Bob Elson again will broadcast the W-G-N games.

Loretta Poynton, NBC actress, is to marry William Carroll, Chicago lawyer, at Notre Dame, Ind., on June 8. Miss Poynton plays the part of Glory Whitcomb in Tony Wons' "House by the Side of the Road." She also is one of the best baby impersonators on the air. Her cooing and gurgling is a regular feature of the serial, "Betty and Bob," in which she portrays the part of Baby Bob Drake.

LORETTA POYNTON.

Don Mario, tenor of the Penthouse Serenade program, makes a hit with the ladies with his romantic singing. And now he has turned out an invention that will win him a following among husbands. He has had patented a non-removable cap for the toothpaste tube. A half turn allows the ribbon of cream to come out but the top can't be taken off.

Francis Lederer, new Hollywood leading man, will play opposite Mary Pickford in "Seventh Heaven," Wednesday. . . . Lydia and Joresco, dance team that appeared at the Palmer house last season, are soon to start a series of sponsored dance lessons over NBC. . . . Art Jarrett and his orchestra, Eleanor Holm Jarrett, Earl Rickard, Francis Willard, and Beverly Kirk, featured soloists, will go out to Edward Hines hospital Tuesday afternoon to entertain the veterans.

Fred Waring is at the end of the trail; he has looked over the last of 53,000 song lyrics, all written by amateurs in a contest he judged. And one of these Thursday evenings he will present the three best songs on his sponsored program. One is a comedy number, another a glee club piece, and the third a boy and girl ditty. Watch for them.

COLLEGE PAPER ASKS TEACHING OF BIRTH CONTROL

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Decrying "the present medieval taboos," the Cincinnati Bearcat, student paper of the University of Cincinnati, today editorially advocated the teaching of birth control by "every college."

It concluded: "Information on this important subject is too little known. Every college should offer instruction to its young men and women instead of continuing the present medieval taboos."

Wm. F. Rollo, Long Active in Insurance, Dies at 75

William F. Rollo, veteran insurance man, died yesterday of heart disease in the Presbyterian hospital. He was 75 years old and lived at 2305 Commonwealth avenue. Funeral services and interment will be Monday afternoon at Rosehill cemetery. Mr. Rollo started in the insurance business in 1877 as an office boy in the firm founded by his father in 1859. He remained active in business until 1931. He is survived by his widow, Mary R. Rollo, two daughters, Mrs. A. L. Kaye of Seattle and Mrs. J. N. Wright of Pasadena, and three sons, Egbert, Thomas R. and John N.

CHAS. HACKNEY, AURORA, DIES AT 85; HURT IN FALL

Charles C. Hackney, 85 years old, lifelong resident of Aurora, died in the Copley hospital in Aurora yesterday of injuries incurred in a fall in his home several days ago. He was a member of a widely known Fox River valley family.

Mr. Hackney, born in Aurora in 1850, was the son of Jeremiah Hackney, promoter and managing director of the Aurora branch railroad, which later was absorbed by another line. He entered the merchandising field and was associated for a time with Frank Vanderlip, the financier, in Green Bay, Wis. Later he became associated with the First National Bank of Aurora. He was safety deposit manager of the bank until his retirement four years ago.

His widow, Kitty, and two nieces, Mrs. Louise Kinney of Aurora and Mrs. Helen Lynn of Chicago, survive. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon. Burial will be in Spring Lake cemetery.

PRUSSIA BOASTS 75% OF CRIMINALS ARE IN CUSTODY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—More than 75 per cent of Prussia's 8,000 professional criminals are under lock and key. This was the boast today of the Nazi Criminalistic Monthly. It declares that 5,000 are in prison serving sentences, 838 "have been made secure"—that is to say, held in prison camps for life—and 391 arrested "to prevent crime."

Police authorities declare they are defeating crime through systematic supervision of released criminals, who are arrested as soon as they make a suspicious move. The police's strongest weapon is the "safety detention" of criminals who have served a double sentence and who may be imprisoned for life if the authorities have the impression they are not going straight.

RICHARD BENNETT CHEERED BY VISIT OF HIS DAUGHTER

LONDON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Barbara Bennett, daughter of the American actor Richard Bennett, rushed to her father's side in a hospital near London as soon as she arrived in England today.

"Hello, father, so glad you're getting better," she greeted him as they embraced.

"Everything is all right with Barbara here," said the actor, who was seriously injured in a fall from a horse.

"I am ready to stay as long as father needs me," she said, "but I want to get back to Morton [Morton Downey, her husband] and our three children as soon as possible."

3 Students Are Injured Trying to Make Tear Gas

Wabash, Ind., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Jack Vangilder, Mentone, Ind., may lose his sight, while Eldon Heckman of Polo, Ill., and Robert McCune, Mount Morris, Ill., were badly cut and burned when they tried to make a tear gas mixture at Manchester college last night. All are sophomores. Town policemen earlier in the week used tear gas on a group of college students to break up their attempt to rush a movie theater.

2 CUBAN CABINET MEMBERS OUSTED IN SCHOOL STRIKE

Quit After Death Threat Made by Students.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 22.—President Carlos Mendieta tonight accepted the resignations of José Capote Diaz, secretary of public education, and Rafael Santos Jimenez, secretary of commerce, after striking students threatened to kill them unless they quit the government.

With the week old strike of many thousands of students and teachers assuming revolutionary proportions the faculty of the University of Havana adopted resolutions supporting the students' demands for educational freedom from military dictation. The resolutions also bitterly criticize the government for "its inability to establish social and political peace instead of anarchy and disorder."

"We protest vigorously the intrusion of military authorities in Cuban civil affairs," faculty members said.

The law offices of Raul de Cardenas, secretary of justice, were demolished tonight by a bomb a few hours after martial law was established in Havana. Cardenas, also acting secretary of interior and one of Mendieta's closest friends, has voted in a cabinet meeting against the government plan to accept mediation in the school strike. Another bomb exploded in the Cardenas residence in Vedado.

Col. Fulgencio Batista, commander of the army, ordered the university and all high schools and primary schools in the island taken over by the military after midnight. Thousands of students armed with rifles, hand grenades, and bombs have fortified the school buildings. They have announced they will destroy the properties if Batista attempts to eject them.

Political parties opposed to the government continued to swing to the support of the students. The Autentico party's leader declared that the students' demands are virtually the same as those submitted during the régime of Gerardo Machado, such as abolition of military power, restoration of democratic principles, liberty of political prisoners and suppression of urgency courts.

MARSHALL FIELD REPORTS SALES OF 100 MILLIONS

Profits from Retail Units Increase.

Marshall Field & Co. sold over 12 million dollars more goods in 1934 than it did in the preceding year. Total sales reached $100,795,000, an increase of approximately 14 per cent over 1933. This was disclosed in the annual report to stockholders released yesterday by John McKinlay, president.

The record in the retail division of the company's business showed decided improvement. Results of the company's real estate operations, which includes the Merchandise Mart, were also more favorable. In the manufacturing and wholesale division of the business, however, the company ended the year with a loss after operating profitably in this branch in 1933.

Operating Profit Drops.

The combined results of all divisions of the business was an operating profit for the year of $646,747 as compared with operating profit of $1,029,206. After interest on the funded debt there remains a net loss for period of $166,295, which was charged to surplus. In 1933 net profit was $97,605.

Explanation of the final deficit lies in the slump in wholesale and manufacturing business. This division operated at a loss of $1,142,610 as compared with a profit of $740,760 in 1933. It was in the summer of 1933 that retailers, fearing rising prices, stocked up on merchandise in excess of their normal requirements. As a result, President John McKinlay pointed out, there was a reaction in 1934. Another contributing factor was the condition of the silk market. Raw silk prices experienced a nine months' decline which carried them to the lowest level in history. As a result the silk products division suffered.

Retail Stores Show Gain.

The company's record in retailing afforded a sharp contrast. Operating profit of the retail stores amounted to $1,798,096, or more than four times the 1933 profit of $426,516. For the first time the company in its report showed the results of the separate divisions instead of the combined results.

Real estate operations resulted in a loss of $8,739 against a 1933 loss of $138,070. This includes operations of the Merchandise mart, the Annex office building and miscellaneous properties not used in merchandising. The company put aside $112,000 more in depreciation reserve on the Merchandise Mart than it did in 1933. An additional $325,000 was appropriated from surplus to bring up the existing depreciation reserves to the new rate.

Net Sales by Quarters.

Total sales of the company were above 1933 in three quarters of the year. Only in the September quarter did volume fall behind the comparable 1933 period. The following table shows total sales by quarters:

First quarter.$	22,058,300	$15,433,200	+42.9
Second quar..	23,221,500	20,561,300	+12.9
Third quarter	23,665,800	24,745,600	— 4.4
Fourth quar.	31,849,500	27,717,900	+14.9

"The net profits of our principal store in State street alone were greater than the amount earned by the entire retailing system," Mr. McKinlay said. "Various factors were responsible this—not the least of which were the courage and foresight shown in the modernizing program begun when things were at their worst in 1932 and carried through 1933 and 1934, at a cost of $1,600,000 incapital expenditures, besides many more thousands charged to current operations. The chief item of capital expenditures was $630,000 for our escalators, which have proved to be economical and efficient and has attracted much favorable attention."

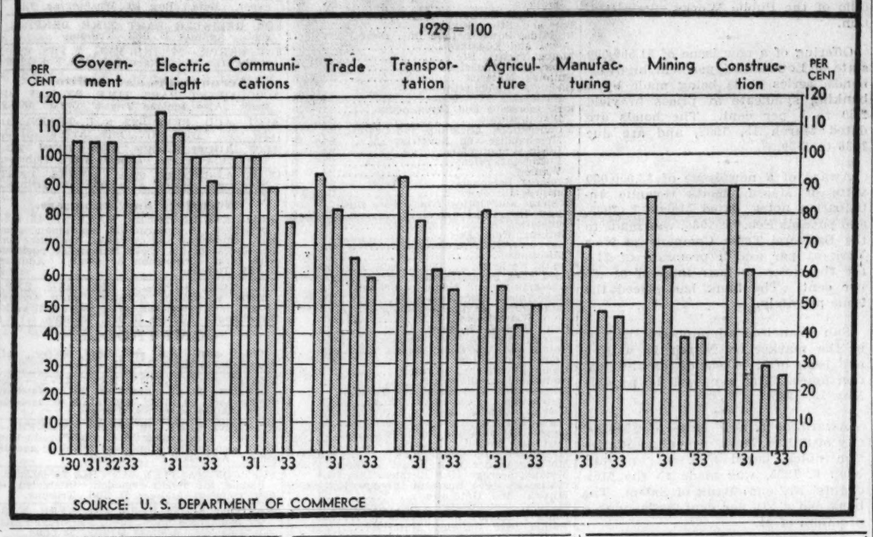
Mr. McKinlay stated that liquidation of the assets of four of the company's small stores was initiated and partially accomplished during the year. This program will be completed by March 1, 1935, and will bring the number of retail stores to seven against the original fourteen units.

Spend $2,370,000 on Improvements.

Total additions to plant and equipment during the year were $2,370,000, of which the escalators were the principal item, Mr. McKinlay said. The company dissolved four of its wholly owned subsidiaries and made them divisions of the company in the interest of simplifying the capital structure. Only three important subsidiaries remain. They are the Woven Fabrics corporation, a selling unit; Lamb Knitting Mills, in which there is a minority interest and Marshall Field & Co. of New Jersey, under which the foreign offices are operated.

Mr. McKinlay in his letter said that the company holds 15,265 shares of its stock in the treasury acquired through cancellation of employés' purchase contracts. Mention of this was made at the suggestion of the stock exchange although it was reflected in the Dec. 31, 1933, balance sheet, he added.

Income Disbursed by Industrial Divisions for Four Years Compared



GOLD PRICE IN LONDON IS PUSHED UP 7 PENCE TO NEW ALL TIME HIGH

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The London open market gold price was pushed upward 7 pence today to the new all time high of 143 shillings 6½ pence as pressure to move funds to the continent sent the franc steadily upward in terms of sterling exchange. The previous high was 143 shillings 3 pence on Oct. 11.

The cross rate in London was 73.50 francs to the pound today, against 73.75 at the close yesterday and 73.93 a week ago. Last November the franc rate was as low as 75.87 francs to the pound.

The dollar also jumped sharply against sterling in London, being quoted at $4.86⅞ to the pound, 1¼ cents higher than at the close yesterday. This brought the dollar equivalent for gold up to $39.94½ a fine ounce, as compared with $34.91½ yesterday. In January the London gold price equivalent almost reached $35 an ounce, and at other times has been above that figure.

In Paris the dollar gained 1¼ centimes, closing at 15.1175 francs to the dollar [6.614 cents to the franc], as compared with yesterday's close of 15.105 francs [6.62 cents]. The opening was at 15.11 francs [6.175 cents].

RUSSIA TO SEND GOLD TO LONDON INSTEAD OF U. S.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—It was learned from an authoritative soviet source today that Russia in the future intends to ship gold to London in settlement of trade debts instead of to the United States as has hitherto been her practice.

Since the breakdown of the debt negotiations between the soviet and the United States, there has been some speculation as to the soviet's next move regarding her foreign trade. A well known authority on Anglo-Russian trade explained that the shipment of gold to London is a more or less logical sequel to the break with the United States.

A second important factor is the production of gold within the soviet union itself, which last year showed a record output. Russia's biggest creditor for the last year has been Germany and the German debt has been practically liquidated, a large part of the payments having been effected in gold.

The soviet is increasing her purchases in Great Britain and is not using the export credit scheme because of its expense and it is not surprising that with her increasing production of gold, Russia intends to use it for the purpose of increasing Anglo-Russian trade.

The Daily Herald declares the soviet decision will pave the way for negotiation of a five year loan she is anxious to raise in London which, it is added apparently without any foundation of truth, "now has the support of big financial interests in the city, including some joint stock banks."

NATIONAL BISCUIT PROFIT EQUALS $1.57 PER SHARE

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The National Biscuit company today disclosed 1934 earnings of $16,320,892 before depreciation and taxes, compared with $20,340,276 in 1933. Net earnings for the year were $11,597,578, or $1.57 a share on the common, compared with $14,995,305, or $2.11 a share in 1933. After adding to surplus $2,003,106 for revaluation of securities, compared with a deduction on this account in 1933 of $3,092,483, and deducting dividends paid and awaiting payment, earned surplus at Dec. 31 stood at $14,042,793, compared with $20,381,456 at the close of the year before.

More than half this reduction in profit and loss surplus was accounted for by charging out of surplus the $3,138,577 common dividend payable Jan. 15, 1935, which is carried on the balance sheet as a current liability. No such chargeout of a dividend awaiting payment was listed in the 1933 report. Preferred dividends actually paid during 1934 were $1,735,699, compared with $1,736,315 in 1933. Common dividends actually paid during 1934 were $1,735,699, compared with $1,736,315 in 1933. Common dividends actually paid [excluding the Jan. 15, 1935, distribution] aggregated $15,065,066 last year, compared with $13,207,452 in 1933.

Flandin, Straus Assail Bars to Foreign Trade

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Side by side at the George Washington anniversary dinner here this evening the premier of France, Pierre Etienne Flandin, and the ambassador of the United States, Jesse Isidor Straus, addressed to their own and each other's countrymen this message, that it is the trade barriers which have been built up all over the world for the protection of national industry which have killed international trade and so produced national business stagnation and unemployment.

Premier Flandin put the case this way: "Our pressing duty is to restore international exchange without which each national economy is compelled to fall back on its internal market with limited possibilities which must become weaker and weaker. No one can sell without buying and no one can buy without selling."

Straus Tells of Trade Need.

Ambassador Straus, starting from the statement of Secretary of State Hull that world trade is less than half normal, made this appeal for common sense in international trade relations:

"We need foreign markets for our prosperity. Other countries need for their prosperity a share of our markets. The policy of the present administration is to negotiate commercial treaties that are in their effects bilaterally fair and equitable. Economic isolation is both unwise and unfruitful. War usually finds its beginnings in economic jealousies and bickering. World peace can only be attained by friendly commercial intercourse."

Urges Reciprocal Buying.

To business men members of the American club, about 200 of whom attended the banquet the ambassador said:

"Many of you gentlemen are here in France to sell products of your producing organizations at home. In your correspondence with home offices you should advocate that in the interests of their own foreign selling campaigns they should approve of a more liberal foreign buying policy. A reasonable reduction in tariff rates despite the dollar being devalued in relation to other currencies will enable our foreign friends to sell us more and consequently buy more. In the negotiation of commercial treaties broader tactics than those of mere horsetrading should be employed. Endeavor to exact a pound of flesh rarely leads to productively permanent relations."

Hints of U. S.-French Treaty.

The ambassador hinted negotiation of a commercial treaty between France and the United States may be undertaken in the not distant future and made a note to listeners in the hall and on the radio that the three chief officials who will direct the course of these negotiations, the president, the secretary of state and undersecretary of state have all expressed themselves in favor of the most favored nation doctrine.

Premier Flandin made an unusually bold reference to the debt question and had the satisfaction of hearing his words loudly cheered.

"One obstacle," he said, "to the restoration of sentiment of security in the economic life of the world is the international financial obligations which derived from war have been suspended without any prospect of a general settlement being yet in sight. Experience has proved what reason had already shown that there is a strict interdependence between international financial settlements and commercial exchange."

"If public opinion insisted on preserving intact respect for signed engagements," M. Flandin continued, "some other solution must be finally found for liberating the world economy from these mortgages born of the war."

Hot Oil Control Measure Passes; Sent to Roosevelt

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The house today completed congressional action on a bill designed to stop the flow of illegal oil in interstate commerce. The measure now goes to the White House.

FRENCH TO CONTINUE PAYING BOND INTEREST ON OLD DOLLAR BASIS

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Uninfluenced by the United States Supreme court's decision on last Monday upholding the gold clause, the Paris-Orleans Railroad company, sponsored by the French government, will pay on March 1 the interest then due on its 5½ per cent bonds maturing in 1968 at the old rate of 25.52 francs to the dollar, according to A. Iselin & Co., fiscal agents for the bonds. Payment will be made at the average buying rate here for exchange in Paris on the day of presentation of coupons. However, as a matter of form, holders of coupons are offered the option of receiving payment merely in United States currency at the face value of the coupons, or a little more than 15 francs to the dollar.

This means that for each $1 coupon value, when the franc was at par, the holder now will receive approximately $1.69 in American funds.

Although this payment will follow exactly the lines of previous payments made on dollar bonds of the French government and of municipalities and railroads in France, it will be the first definition of policy since the gold clause was upheld.

The French dollar issues of all descriptions have held firm this week in anticipation of continuance of payments in terms of gold. The market for the Paris-Orleans Railroad 5½s is 161¼.

POWER TO BOOST ASSESSMENTS IS SOUGHT BY FDIC

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Efforts to give the Deposit Insurance corporation authority to increase assessments as a means of "discouraging undesirable banking practices" developed today in the house banking committee hearing on the administration omnibus banking bill.

Numerous Democratic members echoed a suggestion that the corporation be empowered to boost the assessment beyond the levy of one-twelfth of 1 per cent on all deposits which the measure would provide.

Leo T. Crowley, FDIC chairman, told the committee that should it become necessary to increase the assessments to keep the insurance fund sound, "we should have the power to do it."

Representative Goldsborough [Dem., Md.] said:

"I see no objection to giving the corporation the right to raise the contribution from banks beyond a twelfth of 1 per cent. We have given the banks $13,000,000,000 in the last few years. As they grow stronger and arrogant, we ought to let them know they will hold the bag if they go too far."

Present law limits the assessment to one-half of 1 per cent of insured deposits.

PORTO RICO'S SUGAR CROP CUT DESPITE PROTEST

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Over the protests of producers and processors, the AAA today announced a two year program for reduction of sugar production in Porto Rico.

The program provides for reduction of approximately 263,000 tons in the current crop and limitation of next year's crop to the quota which will be established for 1936 under the Jones-Costigan act.

Producers and processors of sugar will be required under the contract to be submitted to them shortly to bring the present crop down to the 779,000 tons quota for export and 60,000 tons for insular consumption fixed under the act.

In return producers will receive cash benefit payments totaling approximately $11,000,000 during the two years through which the program will run.

WHEAT PRICES HOLD WITHIN ¼ CENT RANGE

Winnipeg Dullness Near Record.

A near record for dullness in speculative interest in the grain markets was established at Winnipeg yesterday, the only action being small buying of wheat credited to Chicago interests. Wheat futures held within a range of ¼ cent a bushel and closed ⅛ cent lower.

Action in the Liverpool market was the main influence. The English market lost ⅝ to ⅞ cents per bushel for the day, with a decline in sterling responsible for part of the lower level of prices. All American grain markets were closed yesterday.

Sell Some Cash Wheat.

In the face of the small speculative trade it was estimated around 500,000 bushels of cash wheat had changed hands at Vancouver, presumably representing sales to United Kingdom millers. Reports of dry weather and dust storms from the American southwest were ignored.

According to reports to James E. Bennett & Co., dust storms prevailed again yesterday in Kansas, Oklahoma, and the Texas panhandle, extending as far south as Dallas, Tex. No rain was received in the dry area and the forecast suggested generally fair weather with somewhat higher temperatures for the sections where moisture is most needed.

Other Nations' Wheat Exports.

Argentine exports of wheat the last week aggregated 4,075,000 bushels, including 37,000 bushels to Japan and 180,000 bushels to Peru. Australian wheat exports were 2,431,000 bushels for the week. Buenos Aires wheat prices were ¾ to ⅞ cents higher and corn ⅛ to ⅜ cents higher.

FORD SPEEDS UP MARCH OUTPUT TO 160,000 UNITS

Dearborn, Mich., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The largest domestic production of Ford V-8 cars and trucks since the V-8 engine was introduced by the Ford Motor company three years ago, has been scheduled for March, it was revealed today at the company's home offices here. Production of 160,000 units is planned.

Under the March schedule, the Ford company will build more than 6,000 units a day, in order to keep pace with continued increase in demand for cars and trucks. March production this year will be more than twice as great as Ford's domestic production last March when 77,947 units were built.

Since the new cars were announced late last December, Ford production has moved steadily upward. Production in January totaled 100,793 units, and February's production will approximate 130,000 units. With the March schedule set at 160,000 units, the Ford company by the end of March will have produced more than 400,000 1935 model cars and trucks in the United States.

ARGENTINE GRAIN BOARD REPORTS LOSS OF $2,211,500

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 22.—The Argentine Grain board's operations last year produced a loss of 8,846,000 pesos, equivalent to $2,211,500, according to the board's report to Luis Duhau, minister of agriculture. The board was appointed in November, 1933, to purchase grains from farmers at minimum prices fixed by the government and sell to exporters at market prices. Its report shows that it handled 144,686,000 bushels of wheat, 5,598,100 bushels of corn and 74,440 bushels of flaxseed. It did not handle more flaxseed because the market price rose above the government's minimum price.

Demand for Details of Bond Sales Seen as Control Move

The inquisitiveness of the federal government has expressed itself in new form. The federal reserve bank in New York has asked dealers in United States government bonds to make a daily written report giving intimate details of their transactions.

The bank has supplied dealers with detailed forms upon which to fill in the desired information but nowhere on the questionnaire is given the reserve bank's name. The move is regarded as inspired by the treasury department.

The purpose of the questionnaire is to give the government a line on operators who have been credited with conducting extensive bear raiding in the government bond market, it is asserted. A year ago the bank asked dealers for oral reports on their transactions at various times but apparently this was not sufficient.

The information now sought includes a written statement of the net position of the dealer each day, whether long or short the market, and a report on borrowings of money or securities to maintain these positions. The reports are to be so made as to separate the dealer's position in separate government issues.

While some dealers professed to be undisturbed by the procedure, others saw in it a plan on the part of the treasury to effect the closest possible control of the market. Other means by which the treasury already controls the market to a large extent is through its own transactions.

Other dealers said that the practice will help to discourage illegitimate operations and that no reputable dealer need fear to disclose his position in the market.

Distribution of the forms coincides with the start of the most extensive financing by the treasury since the world war. Refinancing operations aggregating close to $2,500,000,000 must be carried out in the next six weeks. President Roosevelt has also stated that $4,600,000,000 of new money must be raised by the treasury during the first half of this calendar year.

EXTEND MODERN HOME EXPOSITION ANOTHER WEEK

The Modern Home exposition, now at the Coliseum, which was to have closed its doors tomorrow, is to be continued for another week, it was announced last night. It will remain open through Sunday night, March 3, according to Harry H. Potts, operating manager of the show.

He stated that to date 25,000 people have entered the Coliseum and that approximately $300,000 in orders for merchandise have been taken by exhibitors.

Visitors have registered from as far as the state of Washington in the west and Pennsylvania in the east. The bulk of the attendance, however, is from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Ohio, it was said.

BUYERS' STRIKE CHECKS RISE IN COST OF MEATS

Likely to Bar Gain in Live Stock Prices.

Consumer boycott of high retail meat prices loomed yesterday as a very real and inescapable hurdle for rising live stock markets. Resistance to soaring prices in retail channels is being reported in all parts of the country, and particularly at the eastern distributing points where trading in meats has been exceptionally sluggish the last few days. A "strike" of Jewish consumers in Philadelphia and surrounding area has become so effective that wholesale markets for kosher beef at that point have come to almost a complete standstill.

Boycotting of high priced meats has undermined the market for top grades of beef steers, while demand for cheaper cuts of beef has stimulated buying of the lower grades, despite the fact that this switching of buying demand

How a Holding Company HELPS ITS UTILITIES From Maine to Texas

"Don't put all your eggs in one basket!" The wisdom of this old saying is recognized by those utility holding companies which own operating units in several States, even though these States are as far apart as Maine and Texas.

Barring times of world-wide depression when business everywhere is poor, it is true that the map of the country's business is generally spotted with good and bad. Some areas may be affected by droughts, floods, fires, crop failures, labor troubles. At the same time, other areas may be prosperous. Steel mills in Western Pennsylvania may be closed down while the textile mills of Massachusetts are booming.

Insurance Companies Spread Risks

Insurance companies have long known that it is safer to spread their business over the country. A life insurance company might be ruined if it insured people in only one region, and that region was swept by an epidemic. The San Francisco fire and earthquake in 1906 threw into bankruptcy fire insurance companies whose business was centered there. It taught fire insurance firms the soundness of spreading their risks over different geographical areas.

Varied Sources Stabilize Income

In the electric and gas industries, this principle is applied when one holding company owns operating utilities in areas widely different as to industrial character and geographical location. Local conditions may temporarily reduce the earnings of one operating company, but generally such losses will be offset by the gains of another company in some area where business is better. The result is that, under ordinary conditions, the income of a holding company is more stable than the income of a single independent operating utility.

Help to Operating Companies

For this reason, the holding company is better able to raise funds. With these funds it helps its operating companies which may be in temporary distress because of poor business in the areas where they are located. The financial assistance given by its holding company to one of the largest operating companies in the Associated System in 1932 made it possible for that company to meet successfully a debt coming due and prevented a serious default. Without such help the credit of this important operating company would have been damaged, and it would have had to suspend dividend payments to 7,600 holders of preferred stock.

ASSOCIATED SYSTEM ELECTRIC OUTPUT

Net Gain of 2% for System in 1934

Depression Justifies Holding Companies

It is true that utility holding companies, like companies in other businesses, suffered during the depression. They were unable to offer as much financial assistance to operating companies as they had given before the crash. But the mere fact that some of the larger operating companies under holding company control have had to do their own financing during the depression does not reflect upon the holding companies; in fact, it justifies their existence. If the holding company had not done the financing for these companies in other years by buying their common and preferred stocks, thereby supplying junior equity, many of them would have been so heavily mortgaged that they would not have had any credit to use during the depression when they needed it most. The present financial difficulties of some utility holding companies are not caused by the fact that they are holding companies. They are caused by exorbitant increases in taxes and forced and drastic reductions in rates.

These Benefits Threatened

In spite of the advantages derived from holding company control of utilities in different areas, the Rayburn-Wheeler Bill now pending in Congress provides that by January 1, 1938 all holding companies must dispose of any utility companies not necessary to the operation of "a geographically and economically integrated utility system." It provides for the complete elimination of utility holding companies by January 1, 1940.

PROTEST THIS HOLDING COMPANY BILL

The benefits of holding company assistance to local operating companies and their customers would be wiped out if this legislation now pending in Congress is passed. Several million owners of utility holding company securities would suffer great losses.

Every citizen should write his Representative and Senators in Congress immediately, protesting this unfair and destructive bill. Ask them to explain the necessity for such drastic legislation.

ASSOCIATED GAS & ELECTRIC SYSTEM

GOLD RULING SPUR TO STOCK TRADING BUT SHORT LIVED

Volume and Prices Rose Before Decision.

A broad expansion in speculative activity took place on the New York Stock exchange during the few days immediately preceding the announcement of the Supreme court's decision in the gold cases.

The activity centered largely in a group of well known issues, such as General Electric, General Motors, National Distillers, and Radio corporation. Trading reached its peak last Monday, the day the decision was given out, when more than 77,000 shares of one stock, General Electric, changed ownership.

Trend Upward Before Decision.

The trend of prices during the last three days last week was upward. A further and sharper spurt developed Monday when it became publicly known that the court had upheld the government's monetary policies.

Stock—	Feb. 14.	Feb. 15.	*Feb. 16.
Alaska-Juneau	1,300	800	1,600
Atchison	2,100	3,700	1,000

Pennsylvania R. R.	3,700	2,200	1,300
Radio	3,000	3,900	1,900
Union Carbide	2,800	6,000	1,200
U. S. Steel	3,500	7,400	1,900

*Feb. 16 was Saturday and the exchange closed at 12 noon, after a half day session.

Volume Falls After Ruling.

Stock—	Feb. 18.	Feb. 19.	Feb. 20.
Alaska-Juneau	11,200	3,900	1,300
Atchison	21,900	9,900	6,000
Chrysler	30,100	16,800	18,900
Consolidated Gas	10,000	6,400	27,000
Continental Can	6,300	2,300	2,500
General Electric	77,500	33,000	20,500
General Motors	49,700	21,000	19,700
Homestake Mining	100	.....	.....
Montgomery Ward	22,600	7,500	5,100
National Distillers	28,200	7,500	7,700
N. Y. Central	25,800	9,700	9,400
Pennsylvania R. R.	13,500	5,800	3,400
Radio	34,800	13,100	13,700
Union Carbide	7,800	9,700	4,900
U. S. Steel	35,700	9,300	10,800

The last table shows that there has been a gradual decline in activity since Monday. Prices have been rather heavy, although actual losses have been slight. Judging from the market's action the anticipation of a decision favorable to the government had a more buoying effect on prices than the actual findings.

INTERMEDIATE CREDIT BANKS' BUSINESS RISES

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—An increase of 45 per cent in the volume of business handled by the 12 federal intermediate credit banks during 1934 was reported today by W. I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit administration.

Total credit extended was reported as $405,885,559, compared with $278,673,376 in 1933. Of the 1934 total, $124,948,535, or 31 per cent, represented paper discounted for private commercial banks, agricultural credit corporations, and live stock loan companies; $113,434,699, or 28 per cent, represented notes discounted for regional agricultural credit corporations; $110,133,809, or 27 per cent, loans and discounts for production credit associations, and $57,368,516, or 14 per cent, loans to farm cooperatives.

A major portion of the expansion of the intermediate credit banks' loans, Myers reported, was in advances to production credit associations, the farmer owned financing organizations.

Phillips Jones 1934 Profit Less than Half of 1933

Phillips-Jones corporation and subsidiaries report a net profit for 1934 of $104,144, after all charges, or less than half the net of $225,961 reported for 1933.

Ryerson Debentures.

Investor's Guide: I shall thank you to give me your opinion regarding Ryerson debenture 5s, due 1943.—G. H. C.

Answer: Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, Inc., is an independent distributor of steel, operating in the Atlantic and middle western states. It specializes in production for immediate delivery. Output is varied and is sold to about 38,000 consumers in many different industries.

The company covered fixed charges every year except two, 1932 and 1931, for the last ten years. Charges were earned by the substantial margin of 10.63 times in 1934, against 2.99 times in 1933. In 1932 loss before bond interest of $151,000 was $78,000, while in 1931 loss before bond interest of $178,000 was $232,000.

Current position at the close of 1934 was strong. Working capital of $10,136,000 was well in excess of funded debt of $2,869,000.

Although the debenture 5s, due 1943, are unsecured, the company's earnings record is favorable and current position is secure. The bonds are considered sound. They are callable at 102 to Nov. 1, 1937.

First Come, First Served.

Investors' Guide: I had a stock to sell at ⅞ and I ordered the broker to sell it at that price. It was that way for a week and they didn't sell my stock. Now it's at ⅝ and, of course, I am the loser.—G. W.

Answer: A broker cannot sell a stock at a quoted price unless he can find a buyer for it at that price. Often a buyer will bid for a stock at a certain price and more stock will be offered to him at that price than he is willing to purchase; in that event those orders that were placed first are sold first, and the transaction is recorded on the records at that price, even though all the stock offered at that price was not sold. This is a common occurrence at a time when the volume of trading is not large and the general price trend of stocks is downward.

What lends strength to the assumption that this is what happened in your case is the fact that the price of the stock dropped, indicating that there was more stock offered at ⅞ than there were purchasers willing to buy it at that price.

An Independent Oil Company.

Investors' Guide: Does Cities Service own the controlling interest of Pure Oil company? If not, is it an independent oil company?—V. F. E.

Answer: Cities Service company does not own a controlling interest in Pure Oil company. Pure Oil is an independent. Two of the large stockholders, at latest reports, were Warren C. Fairbanks, who held 28,516 shares of common, and Bemen G. Dawes, who held 2,604 common shares.

CHARGE NEW DEAL BANK RULE LEADS TO DICTATORSHIP

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—The federal administration is about to achieve an economic dictatorship by "the simple procedure of confiscating complete control of our banking and credit structure," Business Week says today.

The federal reserve system was praised as "one of the soundest and most efficient banking systems in the world," whose failures have been those of management. Improvement in banking control should come through better central bank management and the "appointment of competent central bankers, which it now lacks, to the federal reserve board," the editorial states. "Something in the nature of a supreme court of finance and economics" is proposed.

The collapse of thousands of individual banks was occasioned by four principal evils, in the opinion of Business Week.

"The first and most potent evil," the editorial states, "was that, under the encouragement and often under the leash of the politically controled federal reserve board, banks put a dangerously large part of the commercial credit into capital employment where it inevitably became frozen and depreciated."

Other evils referred to were the laxity surrounding issuance of bank charters which resulted in a "scandalous excess of banking facilities"; the competition between the state and national banking systems whereby political trading weakened banking safeguards, and the "lax, incompetent, and frequently dishonest bank examinations under political control."

WORKERS ELECT STRIKE ARBITER AT SOUTH BEND

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—As 1,400 Oliver form equipment workers returned to their jobs today after a twenty-five day strike, they cast their ballots for a representative on the board which is to settle all labor differences at the plant.

L. P. McGirr, a local labor leader and a member of the Motion Pictures Operators' union, was elected. J. A. Fix, plant manager, said the company representative is to be chosen by officials in Chicago. The third member of the complaint board is to be named by the two chosen members, with consideration of nominations to be made by Mayor George W. Freyermuth.

The Rev. John C. McGinn, C. S. C., of Notre Dame, and the Rev. Gilbert S. Cox, D. C., pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, supervised the ballot boxes for the election of the employé's board member.

PENNSYLVANIA ROAD SPENDS $56,910,000 ON ELECTRIFICATION WORK

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Wages paid and orders placed in 1934 by the Pennsylvania railroad, under its electrification and improvement program financed by the Public Works administration, totaled $56,910,000, the company announced today.

Of this sum, wages amounted to $10,194,000, and purchases from the equipment and supply industries to $46,716,000. A very large part of this latter sum also goes into wages paid to their employés by the suppliers and producers of materials.

The wages paid out by the railroad, chiefly to employés on furlough from regular service, included $8,400,000 for roadway electrification, $194,000 for electric locomotive construction at the Altoona works, and $1,600,000 for labor in the building of 7,000 freight cars.

Orders placed for materials, supplies, and equipment included $11,000,000 for the New York-Washington roadway electrification, $8,390,000 for electric locomotives completely built by outside companies, $11,000,000 for materials and parts for electric locomotives built or assembled at the Altoona works, $12,600,000 for materials and supplies used in constructing the 7,000 freight cars, and $3,700,000 in round figures for 100,000 tons of new steel rail.

Under the contract between the government and the railroad covering the advance of PWA funds, the company is required to report each individual order of purchase, regardless of size. Approximately 25,000 separate items were so reported during the year, ranging from two purchases of four cents and one cent respectively, to such items as a single order of more than $5,000,000 for electric locomotive propulsion and control parts and nearly $3,700,000 for fourteen streamlined electric engines.

LABOR LEADER DENIES CHARGES OF AUTO MAKERS

Detroit, Feb. 22.—(AP)—A protest by the Automobile Manufacturers' association that their industry had been unfairly indicted by the NRA research committee on labor conditions brought answering criticism today from the American Federation of Labor, representing a fraction of the workers.

Francis J. Dillon, general organizer for the A. F. of L. in the industry, said, "Stripped of all evasions and technicalities, their reply constitutes a confession of the accuracy of every charge made by labor."

Coincident with publication of the two statements, Dr. Leo T. Wolman, chairman of the automobile labor board, which has been conducting collective bargaining elections in automotive plants, asked automobile workers to work together for industrial democracy. "Workers in the industry have something that can be run fairly and effectively," Dr. Wolman said, referring to the collective bargaining program, "but if they are going to be petty about it, it will be a long time before they get anything as a substitute."

BUYERS' STRIKE CHECKS RISE IN LIVE STOCK PRICE

Consumers All Over Nation Using Less Meat.

A weak undertone existed in the markets for top grades of cattle yesterday, and some sellers holding good to choice steers were forced to carry them over for next week's markets because of the unsatisfactory outlet. Packers were in a bearish mood and determined to lower the live costs of their top grades of beef, bidding weak to unevenly lower for the limited number offered.

Steers Top Price $13.

The top sale at $13.00 was made on a carload of 1,424 pound steers, with the bulk of the day's offerings at $8.00 to $10.25, but the quality, as usual on Friday, was plain. Comparatively little had to sell at $6.75 and below. Beef cows and heifers showed fair action yesterday and prices were mostly steady. Calves were steady to slightly higher.

Hog receipts were far below normal for a Friday and prices moved up 5 to 10 cents at the opening, but the trade soon found the supply more than adequate for immediate needs and the gains were rubbed out later. Packers paid up to $11.30 for selected 226 pound butchers, processing tax included, which is within 5 cents of the highest since September, 930. The general average for the day at $11.10 indicated 5 cents advance and both the top and average prices show 45 cents advance, compared with the close of last week.

Fresh Pork Sells Slowly.

Trading in fresh pork was reported slower yesterday, with some of the larger interests buying up pork to relieve pressure on prices, according to reports from some sources. Offerings of pork are down to starvation volume, but with prices high the trade does not need many hogs to fill the limited demand, packers report.

Lambs, too, showed a weaker undertone yesterday. Prices ruled steady to 10 cents lower, with occasional sales as much as 25 cents under the high point of Thursday. Big packers were the principal buyers at the lower rates, getting the bulk of the good to choice grades of slaughter lambs around $8.60, although some sales of fair quality stock were made around $8.25 and below. Old ewes sold for slaughter at $5.25. Feeding lambs were bought to go back to the country for feeding at $7.35 to $7.50.

LIVE STOCK GROUP PRESIDENT FIGHTS PROCESSING TAX

Opposition to the federal processing tax on live stock was voiced yesterday during a general discussion of AAA policies before the advisory board and directors of the United States Live Stock association at the Palmer house. The association is holding its second annual meeting which will continue today.

D. M. Hildebrand, Seward, Neb., president of the association, was an outspoken critic of the tax. He characterized it as a "stone round the producers' neck." "The tax must be removed before the producer can again rise to the level of real prosperity," he declared.

Hildebrand is a member of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's corn-hog committee of 25 and has opposed the processing tax in the past both in principle and application. Advocates of maintenance of the present tax were also heard among the members of the association which claims to represent 60,000 stockmen in all sections of the country.

Denunciation of the tax was made during a discussion of cattle problems. Hildebrand said that he expected a heated controversy before the association took any stand on the tax.

Loan Chief Asserts Private Capital Can Finance Homes

Private capital can continue to meet the demand for credit in the home building industry, William R. Gibbon, president of the Building and Loan institute, told members of the organization at the midwinter conference yesterday at the Palmer house. Building and loan associations, he declared, are spending money studying plans for home financing, and this is an indication of their willingness to furnish capital. They are as well prepared to handle such financing as any public agency, he declared.

MUNICIPAL BOND NOTES

Formal offering will be made today of a new issue of $1,964,000 New York City Rapid Transit and Water Tunnel 4 per cent bonds due July 1, 1936 to 1949 and from 1950 to 1958, at prices to yield 1 to 3.60 per cent. Offering will be made by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., who were awarded the issue earlier in the week by the Reconstruction Finance corporation from the portfolio of the Public Works administration.

Offering of a new issue of $1,500,000 state of Louisiana 5 per cent highway bonds, series F, is being made by a banking syndicate at prices to yield 2.50 to 5 per cent. The bonds are dated March 15, 1932, and are due 1936 to 1959.

Award of a new issue of $3,000,000 state of Massachusetts revenue anticipation notes, dated March 1, 1935, and payable Feb. 21, 1936, was made to the Bankers' Trust Company of New York at par and a premium of $11, for the notes to bear interest at .24 per cent. The bank has placed the issue privately.

San Francisco announces it will be in the market on March 11 with a new issue of $2,000,000 of tax anticipation notes. The issue will be payable May 15, 1935.

Award of a new issue of $500,000 city of Salem, Mass., revenue anticipation notes, dated Feb. 21, and due Nov. 6, 1935, was made to the Merchants' National Bank of Salem. The bank bid a .31 per cent basis, plus a premium of $1.

Halsey, Stuart & Co. are offering an issue of $198,000 Pawtucket, R. I. 4 per cent sewer and city hall bonds, due 1936-'54, at prices to yield from 1 to 3.60 per cent. The bonds were purchased from the RFC.

The Boston Safe Deposit and Trust company was the successful bidder for a new issue of $500,000 city of Newton, Mass., tax anticipation notes, payable Nov. 1, 1935. The bank bid a .23 per cent basis, plus a premium of $7.

NONUNION VOTES FAR IN MAJORITY AT AUTO PLANTS

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Dr. Leo Wolman, chairman of the automobile labor board, this afternoon announced an up-to-date summary of election results which include the votes at the Fisher Body corporation and Pontiac Motor company in Pontiac. The total number of votes already cast is 74,162, with the Federation of Labor running fourth in the list. The voting shows the following results:

Unaffiliated, 56,715; employés associations, 8,039; Associated Automobile Workers of America, 3,254; American Federation of Labor, 3,137; Mechanics' Educational Society of America, 482; scattered, 75; blank, 995; void, 1,465.

Today the labor board ordered a new election in district No. 24 of the Dodge Brothers' main plant. The reason for this action by the board is that "acts took place directly contrary to instructions from the management that members of the supervision were to have nothing to do with the election."

Gardner Denver Company Reports Sharp Profits Gain

The Gardner Denver corporation yesterday reported net earning for 1934 of $340,000 after depreciation and all charges. After preferred dividends the net was equivalent to $1.12 a share on the common stock. In 1933 the company earned $95,777.

PRODUCE MARKETS

A weak undertone prevailed in the butter and eggs Friday, but in view of the holiday on the Chicago Mercantile exchange the markets were quoted as nominally unchanged. Owing to the holiday, receipts were not posted. Live poultry was in fair demand with the market firm. Receipts, 23 trucks. Potatoes were slightly firmer for russets and unchanged on white stock. Receipts 75 cars.

BEAUTY SHOPS
Want DeLEE
GRADUATES

Beauty shop owners know that only DeLEE students are trained in a school where the equipment is 100% new and up to date. They know that only at DeLEE do students receive personal individual instruction. Shop owners like to tell their patrons that their operators were trained under Madame Louise personally at DeLee.

Learn for yourself exactly why DeLEE is equipped to prepare you for a better paying position in a shorter time. Come in and talk with the DeLEE Dean or write for the interesting illustrated book, "Your Career in Beauty Culture." [It's free.]

Enroll at DeLEE and insure yourself [1] perfect training; [2] pleasant surroundings; [3] a good paying position after graduation. At DeLEE you get "more for your money." Visit DeLEE FIRST.
